Abstract

Algae Farm® is pioneering a revolutionary disruptive form of tokenization known as Special Purpose Token™ or “Blank Check Token”.

Utility vs Security Token

A utility token does not imply nor offer any ownership in the company (see disclaimer section on cover page) and its purpose is to be used as a means of payment for goods and services if, where and when, accepted. In addition to exchange for other currencies on any exchange that supports SPT2™/ETH, SPT2™/BTC SPT2™/USDT, and possibly others, a security token implies ownership, share of profits (see disclaimer section on cover page) and must be registered as a security in some jurisdictions, like the United States of America.

What is a Special Purpose Token™ (“SPT™”)?

Special Purpose Token™ or SPT™ is a non-operating project token whose purpose is to identify and purchase a private or publicly traded company, allowing the acquisition target to have a link to blockchain.

SPT™ is also known as a blank check company. When a SPT™ or a publicly traded company (“PUBCO”) purchases a private company, it is called a reverse merger. A traditional SPAC merger is when a private company is taken public via the merger with a PUBCO. SPT’s™ are similar in concept to Special Purpose Acquisition Companies* (“SPACs”) but SPTs™ are not registered as a security to be publicly traded on a stock market or sold privately.

SPT2™ IS NOT AVAILABLE FOR SALE TO CITIZENS AND/OR RESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

*According to SPAC Insider, in 2020, 247 newly formed SPACs raised $83 billion in capital through initial public offerings. In 2019 and 2020, more SPACs were created in those two years than in the prior 18 years combined.

Not only are the number of SPACs increasing, but each SPAC is raising more capital through IPOs to allow them to purchase larger private companies. The average SPAC IPO in 2020 was $336 million compared to $230 million in 2019.
