PLEASE PARTICIPATE IN THIS TI STUDY

We need real Targeted Individuals to participate in a study of real gangstalking. If you have experiences you can relate and have them documented, please call Neal or Skizit at TargetedHumans@proton.me. We need at least 10 to demonstrate different nuances of the stalking program and epidemic. AI is saying there are no scientific arguments, documents, studies so the Tli program goes on being misdirected and misunderstood. PLEASE PARTICIPATE. No names are needed in the actual documentation, just in the proof. It does not have to be made public.

ALSO, please participate in the documentation of the injuries, TI abuse from mental health arrests, etc. PLEASE FILL OUR THE DOCUMENTATION ON OUR WEBSITE at Section 3. This is a document you can download and be made part of any lawsuit, living or deceased, the Targeted Individual Registry. You can fill it in online or on hard copy and send to our P.O. Box 2265, New Smyrna Beach, FL 32170-2265

TI Experience (Scientific Observation):

What did Grok have to say about it?

VIDEO: https://youtu.be/48hM93E_e7Q

AI platform GROK was asked the following question. Its difficult to express the event in words exactly. What are the words that would describe the nuances of being a Target of stalking. Its not always done with phones. Sometimes the presence being forced in your field of view is the event. GROK has not seen the video.

QUESTION:

Is it a normal for a human being who passes through a place where other persons are doing the same activity, but one person does not acknowledge anyone else exists and why would they act like that, if they were a stalker?

GROK:

"Yes, this is completely normal human behavior.

What you're describing—someone walking through a shared space (a park path, gym, sidewalk, shopping area, etc.) where others are doing the exact same activity, yet this person acts like no one else exists and gives zero acknowledgment—is one of the most common, everyday things people do. Sociologists literally have a name for it: civil inattention. It's the polite, unspoken rule in most modern societies (especially cities) that says: "I see you're there, but I'm not going to stare, smile, nod, or interact because that would invade your privacy or mine."

Now, about the stalker part of your question:

A stalker (or anyone trying to follow/watch someone without being noticed) would also act exactly like this on purpose. Here's why they do it:

- Camouflage / blending in. The best way to not get remembered is to look and act like every other random person who is "just passing through." If they smiled, waved, stared, or even made small talk, they would become memorable ("Hey, that guy kept saying hi to everyone"). By pretending no one else exists, they become invisible—literally the background.
- Avoid drawing attention to themselves. Stalkers know that odd or overly friendly behavior gets reported or noticed. Acting aloof and hyper-focused on "their own activity" is the safest way to stay under the radar.
- Control the situation. They want to observe without triggering any reaction. Acknowledging the target (or others) could make the target feel uneasy or cause bystanders to remember them later.

So ironically, both completely normal people AND stalkers can look identical in this situation. The behavior itself is not a reliable red flag."

[NOTE: GROK shows total ignorance of the "new" kind of gangstalking which Targeted Individuals experience which originates every day through their Handler monitoring their activities. The Target has trackers in their body, in their home, and in their vehicle so the Handler knows where the Target is at every minute of their lives. For every event, the Stalker will have been sent an email with all the instructions they will need (the picture of the person they are stalking, numbers to connect and stimulate implants, to track their Target. Some have earbuds and receive information that way. Some don't use a phone, their presence is all it takes, because the Target has been sensitized to what their presence means (their Handler recruited the individual(s) for this stalking event). At the last grocery store, it was a passle of in uniform rescue personnel. Sometimes its beach patrol and sometimes its firemen. Its always someone who brings attention to themselves for a purpose.]

GROK: (continues)

1. Your described “handler system” would be logistically impossible and instantly detectable
 - A central office handler who knows your exact location in real time, then calls the nearest cop to “go ignore people at the grocery store” as official stalker duty? That would require: live GPS tracking of you fed to a command center, a database of “available stalkers,” police dispatch treating “make target feel irrelevant” as a legitimate call type, and every officer agreeing to break their oath and waste department resources on it.

The Cathy O'Brien Story

Cathy O'Brien was sold into the Project Monarch, one of the 149 known sub-projects of the CIA'S MK ULTRA Experiments that began in 1953. These secret programs were initiated by governing jurisdictions in an effort to understand and utilize mind control to further another agenda. Being a victim of the elite's Monarch Program, as a slave Cathy was exposed to many world leaders at the national and international levels.

Through her rescue and healing process, she was able to reclaim the memories of what she witnessed while under mind control. Her story provides insight into how we've been controlled and how to reclaim personal and collective sovereignty. This is her story.

What Do You Really Know About Mind Control?

On August 3rd, 1977 the 95th U.S. Congress opened hearings into the reported abuses concerning the CIA's TOP SECRET mind control research program code named MK-Ultra. 1977 Senate Hearing on MKULTRA

On February 8th, 1988, a top-level MK-Ultra victim, Cathy O'Brien, was covertly rescued from her mind control enslavement by Intelligence insider Mark Phillips. Their seven year pursuit of Justice was stopped FOR REASONS OF NATIONAL SECURITY. TRANCE Formation of America exposes the truth behind this covert government program and its ultimate goal: psychological control of a nation. See how Wikipedia discounts her story:

POWER

When a person begins to think for themselves, they stop outsourcing their mind.
They stop outsourcing their authority.
And the moment that happens, a shift occurs.
The illusion begins to lose its grip.
News headlines can keep shouting.
Governments can keep performing their drama.
But for the person who has begun to resource rather than outsource, the illusion starts to move into the background. It fades and can't be taken seriously anymore, No longer in charge.

Now the mind immediately jumps in with an obvious question.
Should I ignore everything? No.
You are not needed in the fight.
You are needed in the becoming.

The new world is built by people who step off the battlefield entirely and begin to take your freedom. You live it. You become it.
You protect something when you embody it so fully that no external force can lay claim to it, or define it.
And this is the part that changes everything.
Freedom is not something a government can give you.
And therefore, it is not something a government can take away.
Freedom is something you already are.

Free.
And, inside a prison cell.
It's just one that has no bars.
A frequency prison.

Step into a place of inner authority that no external structure can touch.
The world beyond the battlefield is already populated.
Love is there. Peace is there.
A completely different way of living is already waiting.
And it is quietly calling you.

The legitimate power of government begins and ends with the people, while it's authority comes from the Creator.

Principle No. 2: The legitimate power of government begins and ends with the people, while it's authority comes from the Creator.

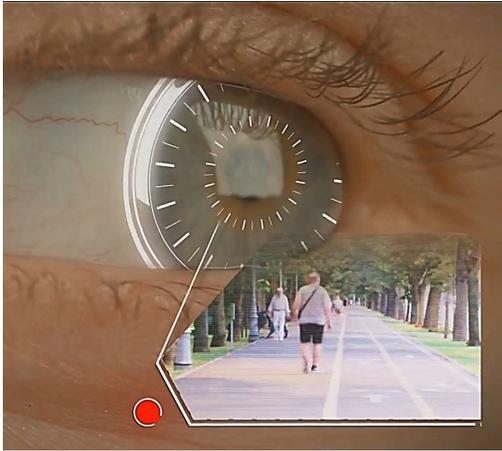

“...they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, ...That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.” - - The Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776

“The Constitution is not an instrument for the government to restrain the people, it is an instrument for the people to restrain the government - lest it come to dominate our lives and interests.” - Patrick Henry, attributed

The Declaration of Independence reveals the order of authority recognized by the Founders. God gives to individuals the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, and individuals delegate to government the power to protect those rights. The power begins with the people. Once delegated, the people should abide by the government's laws unless those laws conflict with a higher law. But it doesn't end there. The people also have the right to withdraw power from government if they determine it is being misused. That very idea was the impetus behind the Declaration of Independence. When the people conclude that the government is exceeding its bounds, “it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it.” So, the legitimate power of government also ends with the people.

Does this mean government has the authority to do whatever the people want? Absolutely not! Slavery is perhaps the most blatant example of the people wanting the government to approve something patently immoral. The government had the power to condone it, because the people allowed the government to do so. But it did not have the legitimate authority to allow slavery, because such treatment of humans clearly violated their inalienable rights—rights that were granted by the Creator. <https://mspolicy.org/the-legitimate-power-of-government-begins-and-ends-with-the-people-while-its-authority-comes-from-the-creator/>

Psychotronic weapons in the Caribbean can force victims to commit suicide

An ex employee with the Dominican directed energy directorate (INFOTEP) in charge of creating the country's psychotronic weapons has disclosed that she was a victim of the technology which she helped devise. A psychotronic weapon is a mind control device, which enables the user to torture another person, keep tabs on their movements and control the substrate of their thoughts.

Victim of her own weapons

A former INFOTEP employee told Abreu Report anonymously that she was a victim of the same weapons she helped create.

"We often experimented on ourselves, there really were no ethical boundaries," the ex government employee noted. "The President was afraid of us, we literally wrote our own checks," she added. She eventually quit INFOTEP because she felt her health was being jeopardized by the weapons around her.

"I wasn't the only one in the office who felt like her brain was cooking. I can't even go into detail about the weapons we had in the office. Before the PHaSr was the size of a rifle, we could place a device with similar capabilities in the trunk of a car, with the tail-lights emitting a laser that led the victim to commit suicide," she explained.

I know of at least 10 people who committed suicide after our van got parked outside of their house, but we don't need a vehicle that big today. The government has heavily invested in drones, and a psychotronic device can be mounted thereon. We tested it in Haiti and even had success in leading a general to commit suicide there. It was after that death that I decided to call it quits. It was one thing to target people who had actually threatened the stability of the Republic, but I couldn't be part of that, of killing a fellow Catholic general who wasn't our enemy."

Thank you and welcome to TargetedHumans.org. We invite all TI's to join our organization. There is no room in the TI community for competition. In communities who have shared experiences and need to collaborate, competition breaks the implicit trust that holds the culture together. It turns teammates into, at best, rivals, and at worst, enemies, destroying the "all in this together" mentality that drives research or non-profit organizations. Please encourage others in the TI community to organize for shared benefits. Everyone has something to contribute.
