

A trip conceived to get to know the richness of Chefchaouen: known as the 'Blue Pearl' of Morocco, because of its fantastic blue houses and streets. Jewish immigrants painted the houses blue, and people have been guessing for years as to why. It is this mystery that gives the city its charm and makes it a long-standing popular tourist destination. The trip start from Casablanca to Rabat, passing past Fez, Chefchouen and. During these few days you will have the chance to discover how the Muslims expelled from Spain developed and enriched from time to time their Andalusian art and history in their host country.
