To whom it may concern,

Re: Neil Rideout

Please allow this to serve as a personal reference for Neil Rideout, who is applying for a management position at your firm. He deserves serious consideration. Neil reported directly to me in his role at executive contract consultant for us. He did excellent work, and we were sorry to see him go.

Over four years ago, after careful research, we contracted with Neil's company to develop a casino and a certain video application. Neil's hard work and dedication to these projects was a key component to the success of these project. He is intelligent and skilled, but more importantly he is a gifted manager. His natural people skills and intuitive leadership style earned Neil respect with his contacts throughout the company. His team-building skills are unmatched, and the camaraderie he helped build during the Belcastle and Vidavibe projects exists here to this day.

I would highly recommend Neil for employment and I know that he will bring his amazing attributes, dedication and determination to your company.

Yours truly,
