Introduction

Hi, I'm Jen, the force behind Stitch Street.

Based in Cambridgeshire, I live with my husband and two wonderful children. When I'm not teaching languages part-time, you'll find me unwinding with some crochet, a good book or the occasional run!

Stitch Street® came to life during the challenging days of the first Lockdown in 2020. Transitioning from local to online sales, I witnessed my son's struggles during remote schooling and realised the pandemic's toll on everyone's resilience. This led me to become a Knitting For All Accredited Teacher, a Certified Crochet Tech Editor and a published Crochet Designer.

Today, my business is thriving, offering a variety of crochet patterns, kits and classes for all. I'm passionate about crochet because it builds resilience, boosts confidence and fosters a creativity that resides in each and everyone of us. I am a firm believer that absolutely anyone can crochet and it's why I aim to produce crochet designs and patterns that are accessible to all.

I really hope you enjoy this pattern and cannot wait to see what you create!

Happy hooking,

Jen

Meet the Teacher...

Jen Street was taught to crochet by her grandmother when she was small.

Crochet didn't seem cool during her teenage years, but when she was pregnant with her first child, Jen's love of crochet was rekindled when she picked up her hook again.

Since then, she hasn't looked back!

Over the years, she has developed a range of specialist skills and enjoys passing these onto others through workshops and classes.

Jen is certain that anyone can crochet and aims to provide patterns that are clear, concise and give as much support as possible to crafters of all abilities.

When she's not crocheting, Jen can be found exploring the Derbyshire Dales or curled up on the sofa with a good book.
