

10 Mistakes To Avoid When Buying A Tombstone

Buying a tombstone is one of the most important decisions a family will make. It's not just about stone – it's about honoring a life, preserving memories, and ensuring dignity for generations. At Tegg's Granite, we've seen families fall into common pitfalls. Here are:

10 Mistakes to Avoid

Choosing Poor-Quality Material

Low-grade stone may crack, fade, or erode within years. Always insist on A-grade granite.

Ignoring Quality Standards

With quality certification, you will be guaranteed of quality and durability.

Not Asking About Guarantees

A Tombstone should last a lifetime. Avoid suppliers who don't offer a material guarantee or fitting warranty.

Overlooking Timelines

Late delivery can ruin unveiling ceremonies. Reliability is critical.

Focusing Only On Price

Cheap options often mean poor quality. Balance affordability with long-term value.

Neglecting Design & Personalization

A tombstone should reflect the life and legacy of your loved one. Avoid generic designs.

Failing To Plan For Maintenance

Ask about cleaning, upkeep, and how the stone will age over decades.

Not Checking Company Reputation

Look for proven track records, testimonials, and years of service.

Skipping Education

Many families don't know what to ask or look out for. Learn the basics before committing.

Choosing Unverified Suppliers

Informal suppliers or "fly-by-nights" may disappear, leaving families without support and their hard-earned cash.

At Tegg's Granite, we believe families deserve clarity, trust, and timeless quality. By avoiding these mistakes, you ensure your loved one's memory is honored with dignity and permanence.
