VIRGINIA: ONE OF THE "ZERO POWER" STATES

26 states give their citizens a voice. Virginia gives us zero.

The Problem? The legislative monopoly in Richmond.

Currently, Virginia is one of the few states where citizens have no direct way to propose laws or check the power of the General Assembly. If a law doesn't come from a politician or a lobbyist, it doesn't happen.

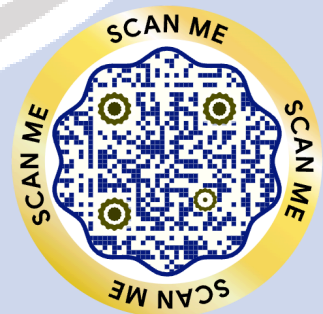

The Solution? Consensus 67 for citizen initiatives & referendums.

We aren't asking for "pendulum politics." We are asking for a 2/3 supermajority (67%) requirement for citizen-led laws.

- True Consensus: A law only passes if it's a popular Virginian idea, not a partisan one.
- The 7-Year Lock: Once the people speak, politicians can't touch the law for 7 years without an 87.5% vote.
- The People's Veto: If the legislature passes a law we hate, we have 90 days to stop it in its tracks.
