

A long, arched stone corridor with a stone floor and a row of columns on the right side. The corridor is dimly lit, with light coming from a window on the left wall. The arches are pointed and the floor is made of large, irregular stone tiles. The columns are simple, rectangular, and have a decorative capital. The overall atmosphere is quiet and somewhat somber.

*“Beauty
is unable to bypass
the senses.”*

Denis Huerre