

TWO-WEEKS INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH METHODOLOGY WORKSHOP ON “BRIDGING PARADIGMS” GLOBAL TRAINING ON MIXED METHODS

(An intensive 30-hour course designed for faculty and research scholars, as per NAAC requirements)

DURATION: 14 DAYS (TWO WEEKS)

HOURS: 30

DATE: NOVEMBER 20TH TO DECEMBER 3RD, 2025

FORMAT: HYBRID MODE (OFFLINE & ONLINE)

About the Workshop:

The Two-Week International Workshop on Research Methodology: “Bridging Paradigms” – Global Training on Mixed Methods Methodology is designed to provide scholars, faculty members, and researchers with a comprehensive understanding of Mixed Methods Research (MMR). Recognizing the growing importance of integrating quantitative precision with qualitative depth, the workshop aims to equip participants with both theoretical foundations and practical skills to design, conduct, and publish high-quality mixed methods studies. Through interactive lectures, hands-on training, and guided exercises, participants will explore key research designs, data collection techniques, and integration strategies that bring together numbers and narratives. This workshop also emphasizes the interdisciplinary applications of mixed methods across the social sciences, education, health, and development studies. Sessions will focus on ethical issues, software tools such as SPSS and NVivo, and approaches to data interpretation, writing, and presentation. By the end of the two weeks, participants will have gained not only methodological competence but also the confidence to apply mixed methods in their own research projects. The program further seeks to foster a global community of researchers who can collaborate, innovate, and contribute to advancing knowledge through methodological pluralism.
