Missionary to the Dominican Republic

Fall in the DR is finally showing up with some cool mornings/ evenings. I'm wearing socks in my living room as I type! (This is not normal for me..)

Summer was a whirlwind with many mission groups coming and being a part of the work here, many long days, and many sweat-soaked shirts.

Mercy has been a rollercoaster as of recent..and when I say recent, I mean always haha. We unfortunately had to fire a woman who has been with us for years because of some serious issues. As sad as it was, it has made a great difference in the environment and for that we're thankful.

Beyond the painful but necessary pruning, we've been praising God for spiritual growth. The majority of our women are coming faithfully to church, taking leadership roles in our Celebrate Recovery meetings, and interacting more in our daily devotions. This is what it's all about!

Photos:

A- I got to translate a visitor's testimony of freedom from a toxic/abusive relationship. It was incredibly impactful for the women.

B- A group took Mercy to the zoo! Many had not been before, and are still talking about it a month later.

C- I'm known for taking selfies with the women during their paid naps. Lol!

D- Basketball season started, and I'm once again coaching and loving it!

E- Our sweet small group met online a few weeks back.
