Illustration Style

The illustration style brings energy and movement to the menu, making the food feel dynamic—tossed in the air, mid-flip, or landing perfectly in the bowl. Going back to physical art, the illustrations will be watercolored and scanned in to create an authentic feel. This approach adds a sense of liveliness, making each dish feel freshly prepared and full of motion.

Colors

The color palette for Kumiko's Teriyaki menu is inspired by the rich hues of Japanese cuisine—plum wine gold and nori green. These vibrant shades bring warmth, energy, and authenticity to the design, creating a fresh and inviting visual experience that reflects the restaurant's bold flavors and cultural heritage.

Textures & Other Elements

Textures that will be in use include the water color paper that has been scanned in and edited in photoshop. In addition, there will be section separators in form of colored bars neatly packing and organizing sections to avoid confusion.
