Detailed Description of the Training

1. Training Summary

This workshop focuses on the link between organised thinking and effective use of AI. Participants will learn simple frameworks and methods to organise their thoughts, break down problems, and structure information clearly. Once their ideas are organised, they will then practice transforming them into structured AI prompts. By approaching prompts as the final step of organised thinking, participants will see how a clear input leads to organised, well-understood, and higher-quality output from AI systems or software. Through guided examples and hands-on exercise, they will practice turning messy or unclear ideas into structured prompts that generate high-quality results when working with AI systems.

2. Training Aim

 To equip participants with the ability to organise their thoughts using simple frameworks and methods and then transform those structured ideas into clear AI prompts. The aim is to help individuals understand how organised thinking directly improves AI interactions, ensuring that their inputs are precise and their outputs from AI systems are well-structured, relevant, and high quality.

3. Learning Outcomes

By the end of this workshop, participants will be able to:

- Explain the link between organised thinking and the quality of Al-generated outputs.
- o Apply simple frameworks and methods to organise their thoughts before using AI tools.
- Transform structured ideas into clear and effective AI prompts.
- Evaluate the difference between unstructured and structured prompts by comparing AI outputs.

4. Overview of the Training

Welcome & Icebreaker

Participants reflect on how they currently use AI tools and discuss challenges when writing prompts.

o Part 1: Why Organised Thinking Matters for Al

An introduction to how AI systems interpret prompts, showing the difference between vague vs. structured inputs and their outputs.

Part 2: Frameworks for Organising Thoughts

Participants learn simple frameworks and methods to organise their thoughts, break down problems, and structure information clearly before prompting.

Part 3: From Thoughts to Prompts

Guided demonstration of how to transform organised thoughts into clear, effective Al prompts.

Main Practical Exercise

Participants take messy or unclear ideas, organise them using the taught frameworks, and convert them into structured prompts. They then compare outputs from unstructured vs. structured prompts to evaluate the difference.
