A Note of Appreciation to Our Coalition Community

The Coalition of Jamaican Alumni Associations continues to demonstrate what committed service, unity, and pride look like. Your unwavering dedication to supporting your alma mater and uplifting the local community has become a model for diaspora engagement. Year after year, you show what can be accomplished when passion meets purpose: strengthening schools, empowering students, preserving Jamaican culture, and building bridges that connect generations. Your leadership, collaboration, and tireless volunteerism remind us that alumni associations are not just social groups; they are engines of transformation, carrying forward the values that shaped us and ensuring they continue to shape others. The impact you make is felt not only in Florida, but across Jamaica and the wider diaspora.

As many of you tune in to the World Cup excitement, we hope your teams have already enjoyed moments of success and celebration. Whether you're cheering from home, gathering with fellow alumni, or sharing spirited commentary in your WhatsApp groups, we know the camaraderie and joy of the tournament are alive and well across your associations.

With Jamaica's Independence celebrations just around the corner, we look forward to joining you in celebrating our heritage, our resilience, and our shared commitment to building stronger communities here in Florida and back home. The coming weeks promise joy, culture, and togetherness, all hallmarks of what makes our diaspora so vibrant.

Thank you for your leadership, your service, and your unwavering dedication.

JAMAICAN EDUCATION SECTOR TO AGAIN BENEFIT FROM PEOPLE PROFILE AWARDS

June 21, 2026 (Jamaica Observer)

THE Broward Centre for the Performing Arts in downtown Fort Lauderdale in Florida is expected to come alive on July 12 as Jamaicans, and mainly people of Caribbean descent, will converge to celebrate excellence at the 2026 People Profile Awards.

In an interview with the Jamaica Observer recently, Dr Allan Cunningham, the founder of People Profile Organisation, said the event next month, which is geared towards recognising excellence and supporting educational development in Jamaica will host 600 patrons this time around.

"We usually attract 700 to 800 people, but this year, we are looking at about 600 people. We want to make sure that we have it at a manageable pace. We have had great sponsors in the past and people continue to sponsor us because they recognise the work that we do," Cunningham said.

"I must tell you that the proceeds from the People Profile Award is used to enhance education in Jamaica. Two years ago, we created a wellness centre at the Maverley Primary school and four years ago we created a reading lab at the Whitfield Town Primary School, plus we have contributed to several alumnus. The money that we raise does not go to one man or any one thing. One hundred per cent of all proceeds go towards servicing education," added Cunningham.

People wishing to attend the event, which will observe its 11th staging, are being encouraged to purchase their tickets early, especially people who want to be seated in the VIP area. Cunningham said that regular tickets cost US$100 while VIP tickets cost US$150.

"Peopleprofile.org is our website. We will have a limited amount of seating for VIP, [which] is usually sold out, so you have to act fast. Check out our website. The donations go towards elevating and recognising primary school education in Jamaica. The People Profile Awards give people the perfect opportunity [to support education in Jamaica]. You can visit our website and make donations through the site," he urged.

Cunningham said that he was happy that for the 11th year, People Profile Awards will be honouring excellence and inspiring people to strive for excellence, knowing their time might come for them to be recognised for their contribution to various professional and other fields.

A cheque in the sum of $1million that was presented to the Whitfield Town Primary and Infant School in St Andrew in 2021.

The founder shared that the possibility of hosting next year's event in Jamaica is being explored.

"For our 12th year, we are looking at going to Jamaica. It is going to be a big deal. I have been invited by several corporate bodies down there and so I just have to put a team together and try to get it moving. That is where we are heading for next year.

"It is a global effort. We have people from New York and London who have received awards, and certainly People Profile has no boundaries when it comes on to just sharing stories and honouring our unsung heroes in our community doing extraordinary work on a global level. It is not just about Jamaicans or the Caribbean. People Profile is about everyone.

"By extraordinary, we are looking at those persons who have stepped out and excelled in whatever they are doing at any level. It might be on a humanitarian effort, it might be based on charities, and it might be based on being an educator or a student. Some of the areas we look at are innovation, sports, courage and just being a great corporate citizen and we also look at persons who are at the end of their careers and award them with the lifetime achievement award," Cunningham said, sharing that the lifetime achievement award has gone to six Jamaicans over 11 years.

They include Oliver Samuels, Glenn Mills, Leonie Forbes, and Winston "Yellow Man" Foster.

Among those to be awarded at this year's event are Cheryl Wynter, Andre Bailey, Dr Tameka Bradley, Dr Germain Smith-Baugh, Chibueze Alutu, and Adanna Alutu.

STETHS To Get Jamaica's First High School Mechatronics And Robotics Lab

The Daily Gleaner

June 27, 2026

In addition to its traditional offerings, come September, St Elizabeth Technical High School (STETHS) will expand its technical and vocational curriculum to include robotics, music production, and television and radio production at the sixth-form level.

Speaking at STETHS' recent 2026 graduation ceremony, Education Minister Dr Dana Morris Dixon said the expansion of the school's curriculum is part of a J$400 million investment to transform technical education in secondary schools.

"You heard on my birthday (September 18) you're having an opening ceremony for a cutting-edge mechatronics and robotics lab," Morris Dixon told members of the graduating class. "No other high school in Jamaica has this, and this is coming to this institution in September."

Before Morris Dixon's announcement, the school's principal, Keith Wellington, had somewhat pre-empted her by announcing that the next cohort of sixth-form students will be exposed to robotics.

"Come September, we will be introducing robotics into the formal curriculum, so students entering sixth form will have robotics as a choice of subject," he said. before adding that music production and television and radio production will also According to Wellington, the expansion forms part of the school's 60th anniversary legacy project and reflects STETHS' commitment to equipping students with practical, industry-relevant skills alongside traditional academic subjects.

Addressing the expected impact of the new subjects, Morris Dixon said the investment reflects the Government's commitment to ensuring that technical high schools are equipped with modern technology to meet the demands of "The minister has taken $400 million in funding from HEART, and we're investing it into our technical high schools across this country," she said. "We believe that our students at STETHS, or any of the other technical high schools in Jamaica, must have the best technology at their fingertips."

According to Morris Dixon, many of Jamaica's technical institutions had not benefited from major equipment upgrades in decades..

"Many of our technical high schools were equipped many moons ago, in the '60s, and there have not been any real upgrades since that time. We are focused on our technical high schools, but we're not focused on the past anymore; we're looking at the future," she said.

She urged the students not to consider technical and vocational education as second-class, noting that the country's future economic growth depends on skilled workers.

"Never allow anyone to convince you that practical or technical education is inferior. Jamaica needs skilled builders, we need electricians, we need welders, we need plumbers, we need mechanics, we need technicians, we need engineers, we need agricultural specialists, we need hospitality professionals and digital creators," she said.

Morris Dixon said the Ministry of Education is strengthening technical and vocational training through expanded apprenticeships, stronger links with industry and entrepreneurship, and new programmes in emerging fields such as mechatronics, robotics, electronics, information and communications technology, data protection and digital animation.

She also highlighted enhanced support through HEART/NSTA Trust, including free tuition for programmes up to Level Five, grants of up to $50,000 for trade tools, $100,000 for business start-ups, and up to $300,000 for graduates in high-tech disciplines such as mechatronics and robotics.

Looking ahead, Morris Dixon said the Government is also establishing a contractor incubator programme through HEART and the Development Bank of Jamaica to help train the next generation of contractors needed to support the country's expanding infrastructure programme.

"STETHS is not a small-thinking place. As a graduate of this institution, wherever in the world you go, you stand with your head tall because you came to this institution," she said.
