Streetline Performance Expands Direct Japan Sourcing Network and Begins Development of First Dedicated Parts Contract

Streetline Performance & Accessories continues to build momentum in the global automotive aftermarket industry with the expansion of its direct sourcing network across Japan and the early development of its first dedicated parts supply contract.

Following the successful launch of its new website and international sourcing capabilities in April, Streetline has rapidly established multiple new connections with exporters, dismantlers, and auction partners throughout Japan. These relationships are already opening new opportunities to source rare and hard-to-find JDM components directly from the origin.

As part of this expansion, Streetline is currently working toward securing its first full parts supply contract, focused on consistent access to dismantled vehicles, front clips, and specialty components for high-demand platforms.

This next phase of growth will allow Streetline to:

- Secure direct access to Japan-based inventory before it reaches global markets
  - Increase availability of rare JDM parts, including clips, firewalls, and specialty components
  - Improve turnaround times on imported parts through stronger supplier relationships
  - Lay the foundation for consistent container-based importing operations
  - Strengthen long-term partnerships with dismantlers and auction networks in Japan

“Our focus right now is building strong, direct relationships in Japan and locking in reliable supply channels,” said Streetline Performance. “We’re not just sourcing parts - we’re building a system that gives our customers access to inventory most companies never see.”

In addition to supplier expansion, Streetline is actively refining its import process, including logistics coordination, auction sourcing strategies, and preparation for its first large-scale parts shipment.

This continued progress reinforces Streetline’s commitment to becoming a direct pipeline for rare and performance automotive components, with a strong emphasis on JDM imports and specialty builds.

Streetline Performance will continue to provide updates as new partnerships are finalized and the first contracted shipments move into production.
