

THE FOUR COLUMNS

A life audit. Do this once, then each season.

Name the few things that matter most to you. Then ask the one honest question of each: what have I actually been doing about this? Not what you intended. What the entries show, in black ink and red.

1. _____
What I have actually been doing here:

2. _____
What I have actually been doing here:

3. _____
What I have actually been doing here:

4. _____
What I have actually been doing here:

THE RECKONING

The column most out of balance: _____

The first entry I will change: _____

The standard I am setting: _____

The columns are not the point. The honest accounting is.

The Ledger Never Lies | Bill Stovall | theledgerneverlies.com

© 2026 Bill Stovall · The Ledger Never Lies · Free to print and share for personal use. Not for resale.