Hello
I'm Sakib

I design brands, take photos, and make art!

For over a decade, I have had the opportunity to collaborate with some amazing people and organizations to turn their vision into reality. My career began as a multi-disciplinary designer and quickly connected with crafting brands. Today, I design memorable brand identities with effective creative direction.

Creative Background

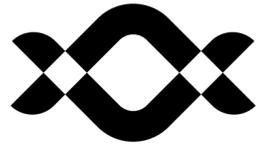

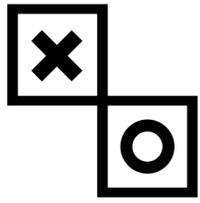

How it started and how it's going.

Like many creatives, I began with a piece of paper and some crayons and fell in love with art at a very young age. I kept learning and experimenting with various media and discovered many avenues of visual arts along the way - ultimately falling in love with design and photography.

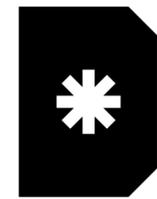

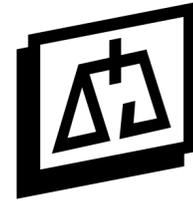

I was tasked with designing the logo of my high-school basketball team, then one thing led to another and graphic design became my bread and butter. Photography and art remain as some of my biggest passions, and have embedded into my creative process.

I love crafting brands and visuals that are bold, fresh, and meaningful - producing work that is not only aesthetically pleasing, but speaks to the viewer and solves a problem.

Shaman Visuals

Never underestimating personal branding again!

Shaman is the identity I have been using to providing freelance brand design design and creative strategy services.

Branding yourself is no joke, and every creative professional probably struggles with it, too. I always knew what I wanted Shaman's branding to look like, but it took a few different iterations to finally produce what I was really happy with.

Design Descisions

Shamans act as an intermediary between the spiritual world and our world. This concept of bridging the two worlds is what inspired me.

The Chameleon is a key symbol in Shamanism that acts as a spirit guide towards transformation and represents adaptability.

Design Decisions

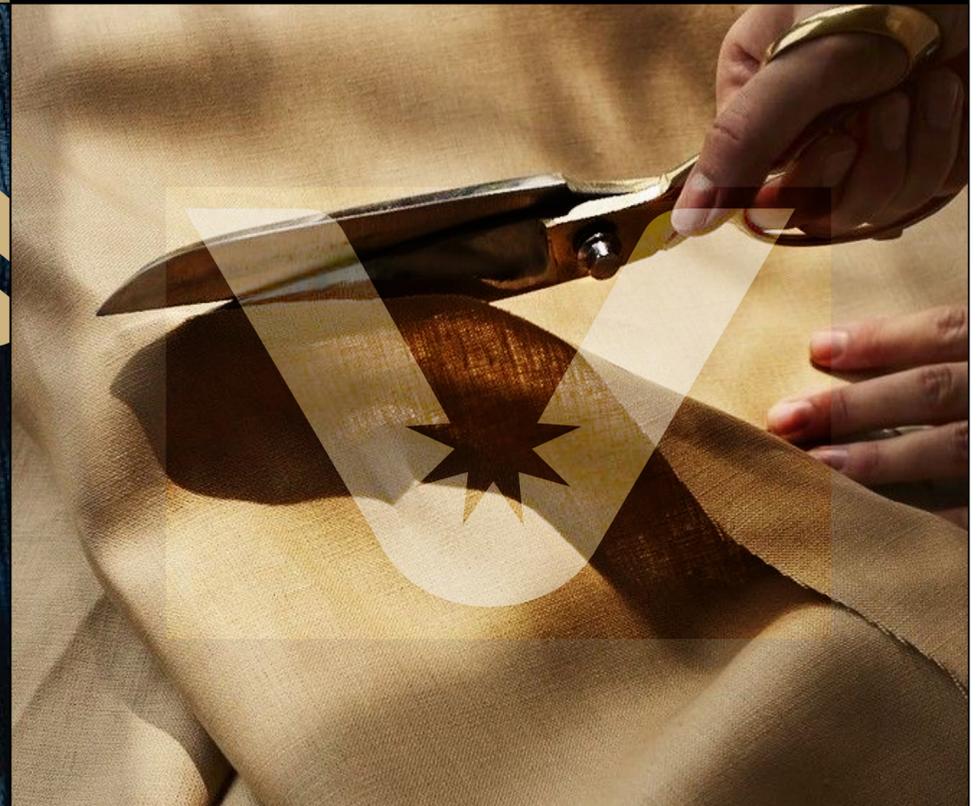

Before jumping into design, I ensured that me and the client were aligned on the direction of this branding project. Much of the work went into ideation and conceptualizing.

We wanted to create a bold brand mark that reflected the core values of the company.

Versatile Fashion Sourcing

Building a modern apparel merchandiser brand to serve European markets.

The goal was to find the balance between an astute, professional organization and a modern and minimal brand that connects with young business owners. The core audience cares about quality of materials and services, sustainability, and a strong brand presence.

El Churros

Making a brand look irresistibly “delicioso”!

I never had churros before taking on this project but it's one of my favorite snacks today. The task at hand was to translate the deliciousness of the churro into a visual identity that pulled customers to the stores from as far as they could spot it. The founders had recently travelled to Spain and were determined to bring the taste of Seville to Dhaka.

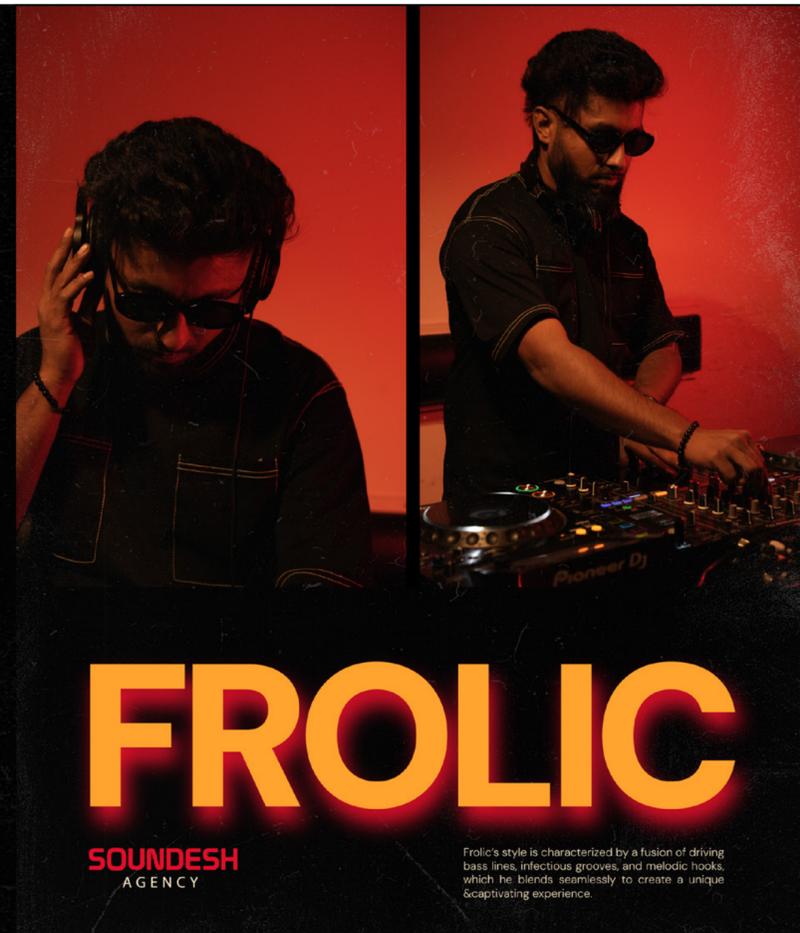

Design Decisions

Like the churro itself, the brand mark needed to look organic, crisp, and emit warmth.

I chose to design it with custom typography and bright, bold colors of Spain to compliment the imagery.

Design Decisions

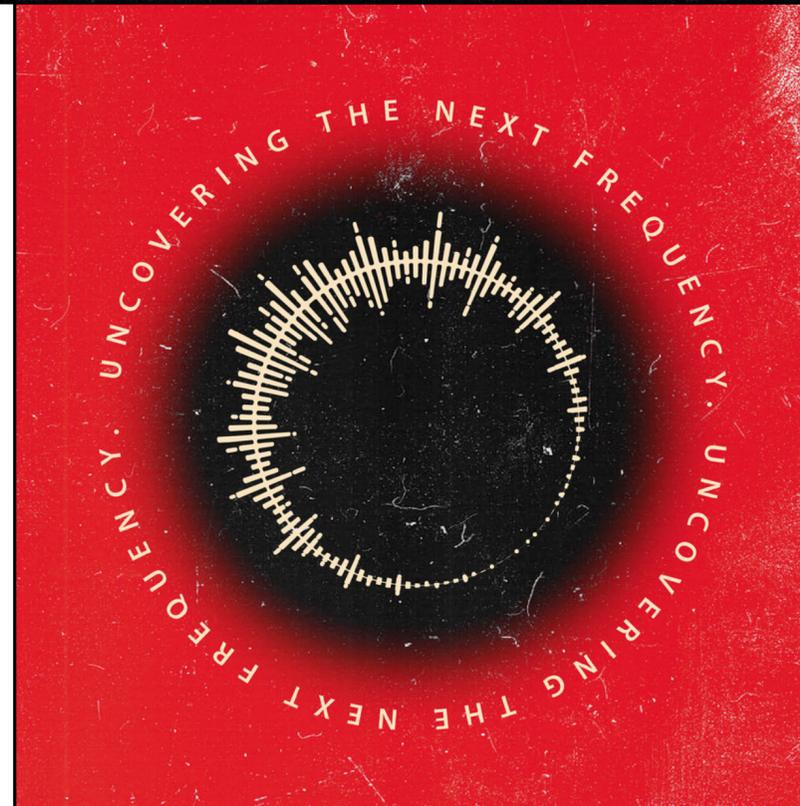

Following design trends isn't always on my list of priorities, but this project demanded something contemporary and hip that veteran artists would embrace and fresh talents could endorse.

For Soundesh, I chose black and red as the primary palette and a grungy texture that compliments the music produced by the artists.

Soundesh Label + Agency

The art of keeping everyone happy.

Designing a good visual identity is always a challenge, but the game changes when one identity represent a whole collective. This was the case of designing the brand identity for Soundesh - a music label and agency for both veteran and up and coming DJs in Bangladesh. It took some work, but we reached an end result that every artist can be proud to be a part of.

Based in Australia, Byte71 is a software services company that provides 360-degree tech solutions. They began their journey with a pretty basic logo and identity, but once they grew, they realized they needed something meaningful to represent what they did. Design Descisions

The 71 represented the year 1971 when Bangladesh became an independent nation. The concept was to combine their services of in the tech industry with their principles of excellence, progress, and innovation.

The branding needed to look calm, clean, and mature, and reflect an organization that clients could trust.
