

Would you demolish your house just to step outside?

Probably not.

The same goes for comfort zones.

We're constantly being told that we need to get out of our comfort zones by breaking them. But is that really the only way?

Let's flip the script.

While we all love to stay home, what's the one thing that everybody loves even more? Vacations!

Instead of painstakingly demolishing your comfort zone, this workbook will guide you through the enjoyable process of vacationing your way through personal growth in 8 simple steps.

We create our comfort zones through familiar activities and routines, so we can also transform them with new adventures and discoveries.

STEP 1 HALF-DAY TRIP

Be realistic with your very first outing. Having been cooped up for so long, it's impossible to jump straight into an epic world tour. Begin with a short trip not too far from your comfort zone. The goal is to start gently.

Ideas

In the circle write the things that are familiar, this is your comfort zone. Outside the circle list the things that are unfamiliar but interesting to you. It can be a place to visit, an experience, a book to read, a cuisine to eat, a skill to learn or hobby to try.

Plan Pick one thing from outside your comfort zone to try. Research it and make preparations.

What do you plan to do?
Where is it?
How will you get there?
How much will it cost?
Do you need to prepare anything?
Will you go alone or with someone?

R	e	f	le	C.
K	e	tl	le	C.

Did you make any new discoveries? Did you bring home any souvenirs or stories?

P 2 DAY TRIP

Time to venture slightly further afield. A new environment can improve creativity and problem-solving as the new sights, sounds and smells stimulate different neural circuits in the brain. A change of scenery can make a huge difference.

Ideas

List all the places that you usually go and things you usually do. List the places you rarely go and things that you rarely do but would like to do more often.

RARELY GO & DO BUT WANT TO GO & DO MORE OFTEN

Plan Pick one thing from your "rarely" list to do. Research it and make preparations.

What do you plan to do?
Where is it?
How will you get there?
How much will it cost?
Do you need to prepare anything?
Will you go alone or with someone?

P WEEKEND TRIP

You don't need to venture far, this one is about immersing yourself in something and being fully present in the moment. It could be something as simple (and difficult) as a digital detox or cooking classes.

ld	e	a	S

Think about the new things you could immerse yourself in at home and the new experiences you could try over a weekend trip somewhere new.

4 CULTURAL TRIP

Time for something different. Of the 3,000+ distinct cultures in the world, how many have you experienced? Learning about different cultures broadens your perspective, improves communication skills & leads to greater personal growth.

STEP (5) ADVENTURE TRIP

Adventure means different things to different people, ranging from extreme sports to starting a new career to learning a new skill and even trying a new food. Start from where you are now and map out your own ideas of adventure.

Ideas

An adventure is an out-of-the-ordinary experience with a dash of unpredictability, which makes it exciting. List the things that are adventurous from your current point of view.

Reflect	Book a time to do the thing you researched. Was the experience what you expected? Did you make any new discoveries? Did you bring home any souvenirs or stories?

P 6 RELAXATION TRIP

Let's take a breather. Many of us feel guilty about resting, like it's a luxury instead of a necessity. Relaxation is a state of being free from tension & anxiety. It can take many forms such as meditation, hobbies, massages, exercise or self-care.

I	A	Δ	2	c
	u	E	a	3

Think about your available time, space & resources. Your trip can be anywhere for any length of time, it could be a walk in the park or a trip to a spa or relaxing with a good book.

EP 7 ROAD TRIP

Venture off the beaten path with two wheels, four wheels or a good-old-fashioned pair of feet. Your road trip could span half the world or half a block. The true value of travel is not the places you see but the changed perspective you gain.

Ideas

List the interesting places, experiences and journeys that you could take. Think about the uniques details of each and why they appeal to you.

> INTERESTING PLACES

INTERESTING EXPERIENCES INTERESTING JOURNEYS

P (8) REVAMP THE ZONE

Now you have interesting vacations under your belt and your comfort zone is filled with new stories and souvenirs. Reflect on your vacations and how they have impacted you, then remodel your comfort zone to better reflect the new you.

Reflect Compare yourself now to what you were like before you started vacationing. What skills, habits or mindsets changed? How do you feel about trying new things?

YOU BEFORE VACATIONS

Change Think about the mindsets inside your old comfort zone that should be updated or replaced.

Mindset	Keep, Update or Replace? Why?
"I'm not ready for new things."
"I haven't got time to relax."
"What's the point in trying?"
"I'm not the adventurous type."
"I'm too old for all that stuff."

Compass Journals

Our Promise

We promise to support your year of evolution with a dependable weekly framework that blends simplicity, structure, and inspiration.

Our Story

Compass Journals was born from my own transformation. After a decade of busy auto-piloting through my comfort zone, I finally plucked up the courage to grow out of it.

Along the way, I tried countless tools, methods and hacks, learning what worked and uncovering what didn't. I kept losing track with all the different advice available. I struggled to find something structured and sustainable that could fit my life. So I created it myself.

Compass Journals is designed to help busy people build momentum and confidence in their own personal development without burning out.

Our Journey

We are a new UK brand just starting out. If you enjoyed this workbook, feel free to accompany us on our journey to bring sustainable personal development to busy lives. Reach out to us on social media:
