The Kingdom's Growth

The story is told of a young man who worked in a logging camp during his summer vacation. When he returned home, his father inquired how he had fared as a Christian among the rough loggers. He replied that he had no problem, since the men never knew he was a Christian. How often is this the case with us?

Using our ears selectively and recognizing what is important is especially necessary when we are being bombarded with all the wrong kinds of messages. The more we hear and understand, the greater will be the revelation of God's will to us. Just as you can't understand calculus without first learning basic math, you can't fully understand God's will without studying the Bible and searching for understanding. Through His children is the only way His gospel can be preached.
