

SELF-PROCLAMATION

Single Woman without Children

I love God. My entire spirit, soul, heart, mind, and body belong to Jesus Christ. He and He alone is my Lord and Savior. I thank Him for every blessing and every obstacle through which I get stronger and closer to Him. I have total and complete faith, trust, and confidence in God and His Word.

I am grateful for the man God is preparing for my life. I believe he will be kind, loving, and good—beautiful in spirit and in heart. I thank God in advance for him, knowing he will be a blessing. I look forward to the day when I can walk beside him, talk with him, hold his hand, and look into his eyes. I long to share my life with him and to build something meaningful together. I trust that he will be a wonderful partner, companion, and future father, and I pray that I will be worthy of the gift of his choosing me.

I love my family, my friends, and business associates. They are a blessing. They are successful in everything they choose to do. They are blessed because they belong to God through Jesus Christ.

I am healthy. I love myself. I love everything about myself. I love where I am spiritually, emotionally, and physically. I am protected by a legion of angels that no evil force can penetrate.

I am wealthy. I am debt-free. Money is good. Money is my servant, and I am its master. I use money and love people. My love for God and people has made me wealthy, and my wealth allows me to help people. All my dreams have come true because of my love and devotion to God and people. With God as my partner, I have accomplished all my heart's desires.

I am happy. I am a winner. Jesus loves me.
