5. Two Angels Counseling a Man Sitting in a Chair:

- Description: This drawing signifies divine guidance and protection. The two angels represent spiritual forces offering wisdom and comfort to the man, who appears to be in a moment of reflection or distress. It's a reminder that even in moments of doubt or fear, we are not alone—there is always guidance available to those who seek it.
- Reflection: In times of uncertainty, where do you find your guidance? What does divine counsel or intuition tell you when you feel lost?

| Write about your emotions: |   |  |
|----------------------------|---|--|
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            | · |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |
|                            |   |  |