Your DiSC® Style

INTRODUCTION

Miguel, when you think of your best work experiences, what do they have in common? Maybe you had a familiarity with your team, where everyone just clicked. Coworkers considered the way you liked to communicate and collaborate. Things got done, and even conflicts ended up being productive. The environment empowered you to stretch in new ways.

DiSC® helps you transform these “best” work experiences into everyday work life. It does this by helping you understand yourself and others better, improve your relationships, and become more effective in the workplace.

To get you started, this section will introduce you to the DiSC model, your DiSC style, and the story your style reveals about you. With this foundation, you’ll be ready to explore how DiSC can help you grow and thrive across a variety of contexts.

YOU WILL LEARN

1. The basics of the DiSC model
2. Your DiSC style
3. What your style says about you

Fundamentals

CORNERSTONE PRINCIPLES

- All DiSC styles and priorities are equally valuable and everyone is a blend of all four styles.

- Tactful

Your DiSC® Overview

YOUR DOT

This report is personalized to you, Miguel, based on your assessment results. In order to get the most out of your experience, you'll need to understand your personalized DiSC® map, pictured to the right. As you saw on the previous page, the Everything DiSC® model is made up of four basic styles: D, i, S, and C. Each style is divided into three regions. The picture to the right illustrates the 12 different regions where a person's dot might be located.

Your dot location shows your DiSC style. Because your dot is located in the middle of the D region, you have a D style.

Keep in mind that everyone is a blend of all four styles, but most people tend strongly toward one or two styles. Whether your dot is in the center of one style or in a region that borders two, no dot location is better than another. All DiSC® styles are equal and valuable in their own ways.

Your DiSC® Style: D

People with the D style tend to be direct, strong-willed, and driven to achieve.

CLOSE TO THE EDGE OR CLOSE TO THE CENTER

A dot's distance from the edge of the circle shows how naturally inclined a person is to encompass the characteristics of his or her DiSC style. A dot positioned toward the edge of the circle indicates a strong inclination toward the characteristics of the style. A dot located between the edge and the center of the circle indicates a moderate inclination. And a dot positioned close to the center of the circle indicates a slight inclination. A dot in the center of the circle is no better than one on the edge, and vice versa. Your dot location is about halfway between the edge of the circle and the center, so you are moderately inclined and probably relate fairly well to the characteristics associated with the D style.

Now that you know a little bit about the personalization of your DiSC Map, you'll learn more about what your dot location says about you. You'll also learn some basic information about the other DiSC styles.

Your D Style

YOUR DOT TELLS A STORY

Miguel, one of the words that best describes people with your D style is driven. You probably prefer to have variety and forward momentum. Because of this, you may become bored or restless if forced to slow down for too long. Sitting still may be difficult for you. When you reach your goals, you may not always take time to celebrate. Instead, your attention tends to quickly shift to the next goal.

You probably like to get things out the door quickly, and you may emphasize results over how you get there. Consequently, you're probably willing to question the rules if you think they don't make sense. And when you sense something is wrong, you may do whatever it takes to save the situation. At times, you may fail to realize that this forceful approach can be stressful for the people around you.

People with the D style have little patience for small talk, and you may grow restless listening for long periods without the opportunity to speak. You probably dislike working with people whom you see as incompetent, and it may be hard for you to hide your annoyance at times. When you get really upset, you may let your irritation show in your body language and facial expressions.

You have a fairly strong competitive side, and at times, you may be fueled by disagreements or conflict. In fact, the idea of losing is probably more upsetting to you than it is to most people. You may suspect that people are driven by self-interest and will take advantage of you if you let them. Consequently, you're unlikely to take kind words at face value, tending to look for the intentions behind them.

You tend to speak up when you see a problem, even when no one else will. And although you may realize that others can be taken aback by your directness, you're probably unwilling to compromise what you see as honesty. Because you can be fairly intense, others may sometimes feel that you're irritated with them.

Although everyone questions their decisions from time to time, you probably do it less often than most people. Those with the D style usually exude self-confidence. This can be infectious, allowing other people to feel good about your bold plans. However, your belief in your opinions may make it difficult for you to admit that you sometimes need to depend on others.

Like others with the D style, you probably like to be in charge. At times, you may even take control over projects where authority was meant to be divided, alienating some people. This is particularly true when you feel that others are not competent to carry out your vision or don't see it as clearly as you do. When there is no question that you are in command, you may encourage input, but you may disregard those opinions that conflict with your ideas. Once you've had your say in the important decisions, however, you may be more than willing to delegate.

Miguel, like others with the D style, your most valuable contributions to the workplace may include your drive to get results, your tendency toward bold action, and your willingness to challenge assumptions. In fact, these are probably some of the qualities that others admire most about you.

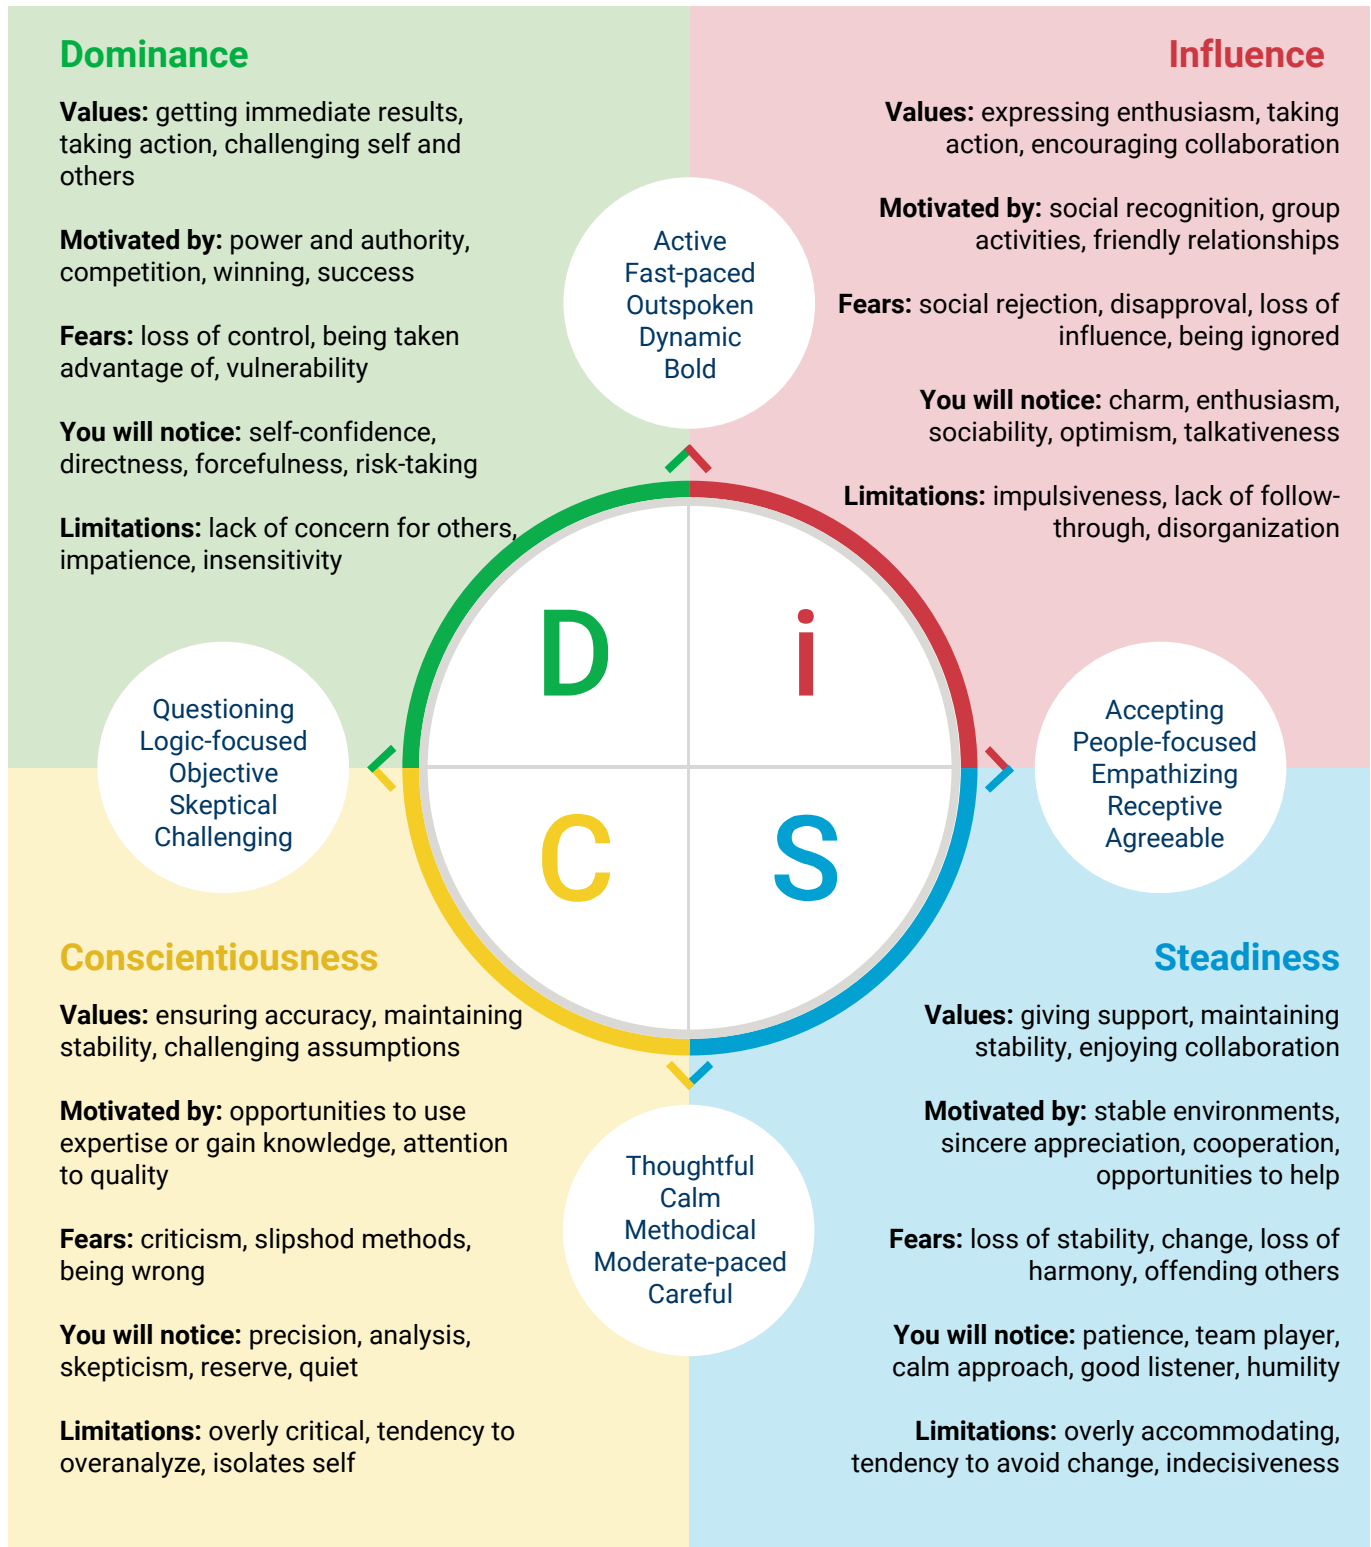

Your dot location determines your shading, which indicates your comfort zone. Activities associated with your comfort zone may come more naturally to you, while those outside may take more energy.

Overview of DiSC®

The graphic below provides a snapshot of the four basic DiSC® styles.

What Drives You

INTRODUCTION

Miguel, have you ever noticed that there are certain things you tend to focus on at work? Or that you're energized by some tasks but dread doing others?

We all bring different preferences and tendencies to the workplace. Some of us focus on making rapid progress. Others advocate for a more cautious approach. Some people seek out collaboration and interaction. Others prefer to go it alone.

In the pages that follow, you'll gain a deeper understanding of what you bring to the workplace. What do you care about? What motivates you? What frustrates you? Personalized strategies built on these insights will then help you increase your effectiveness and satisfaction at work.

YOU WILL LEARN

1. Your workplace priorities
2. Your workplace motivators
3. Your workplace stressors
4. Strategies to be more effective

Your DiSC® Style at Work

WORKPLACE PRIORITIES

The eight words around the Everything DiSC® map are what we call priorities, or the primary areas where people focus their energy in the workplace. Your shading shows your comfort zone and the priorities that tend to shape your workplace experience. The closer your comfort zone shading comes to a priority, the more likely you are to focus your energy on that area. Everyone has at least three priorities, and sometimes people have four or five. Having five priorities is no better than having three, and vice versa.

Typically, people with the D style have shading that touches Results, Action, and Challenge. Your shading is characteristic of the D style.

Getting Results

Miguel, you're willing to do what it takes to reach your goals. Once you've established what needs to be done, you go after it, and you're not going to let a few obstacles stand in your way. Furthermore, you aren't likely to make excuses for failure, nor to accept any. You focus on getting results and showing the ambition it takes to succeed.

Taking Action

People with the D style are eager for success and like to hit the ground running. You're likely to make rapid decisions so you can advance at a fast pace. As a result, you have little patience for people's hesitancy or other obstacles that stand in the way of immediate progress. Once you choose a course, you want to take quick action and keep things moving.

Offering Challenge

Like others with the D style, you're likely to speak up when you see flaws and inefficiencies. You don't beat around the bush, and others might find your bluntness intimidating. However, you probably don't see the benefit of sugar-coating things. To you, being straightforward is realistic and saves time. You value efficiency and candor, and you aren't afraid to challenge others with tough questions to get things done.

Motivators & Stressors

WHAT MOTIVATES YOU?

Different people find different aspects of their work motivating. Like other people with the D style, you probably enjoy situations that allow you to take charge and have authority. Most likely, you prefer working in a high-energy environment, and you're often willing to do whatever it takes to get the impressive results you're after.

You probably enjoy many of the following aspects of your work:

- Implementing ideas
- Having authority
- Achieving results
- Overcoming obstacles
- Working in an innovative setting
- Making key decisions
- Getting things moving
- Working toward challenging goals
- Convincing others

WHAT IS STRESSFUL FOR YOU?

Then there are those aspects of your work that are stressful for you. Because you tend to focus on the end result and achieving your goals, you may find it particularly frustrating when your authority is challenged or you feel you don't have control over your own success. In addition, you probably get irritated when you feel bogged down with tasks or procedures that waste your time.

Many of the following aspects of your work may be stressful for you:

- Following strict rules or protocols
- Getting bogged down in inefficient procedures or meetings
- Having your ideas or authority challenged
- Having little independence or autonomy
- Lacking control over situations
- Slowing down your pace
- Dealing with people who don't meet your standards
- Performing routine tasks
- Being forced to pay attention to the emotional needs of others

Strategies for Effectiveness

Miguel, the three key strategies below can help you apply what you've learned about your style to becoming more effective at work and positively contributing to your organization's culture.

1 GIVE OTHERS A CHANCE TO SHARE THEIR IDEAS

You may have a tendency to dominate conversations so that others don't have the opportunity to speak up. Keep in mind that not everyone is as outspoken as you tend to be, and you may end up missing out on their valuable insights. By inviting more collaboration and dialogue, you can benefit from the talents of those around you.

- Consciously seek out the opinions of those who tend to be more soft-spoken.
- Listen actively and acknowledge everyone's contributions, even if you disagree.

2 SHARE YOUR ENTHUSIASM WITH OTHERS

You can probably come across as a bit intimidating at times. While you might not hesitate to be outwardly expressive with your frustration or impatience, you may internalize more positive emotions. However, when people can see what excites you rather than just what upsets you, it can be very motivating for them, and you may even seem more approachable.

- Recognize people for good work and be more open with compliments.
- Celebrate what's going right instead of focusing on what's going wrong.

3 CONSIDER THE IMPACT OF YOUR WORDS

You may have a matter-of-fact approach when dealing with others. At times, you may focus so intently on the topic at hand that you fail to read how others are receiving your words. Keep in mind that some people you work with may be more sensitive, and being too blunt could hurt their feelings. It's important to recognize when taking the time to exercise diplomacy would be more effective.

- Remind yourself that even if you think you're just stating the facts, others might take your message personally and shut down.
- In situations when your message seems to hurt someone, even if it's unintentional, apologize rather than brushing past their feelings.

You and Other Styles

INTRODUCTION

Miguel, have you ever wondered why you connect well with some people, but find it harder to relate to others?

DiSC® gives you insight into your relationships by helping you appreciate where others are coming from. In this section, you'll learn about the different DiSC styles, so you can see what you and your colleagues have in common and where you differ. You'll explore how others' priorities compare to yours, and what that means for your relationships.

Seeing these priorities for what they are—areas where work is most meaningful for each of us—creates opportunities to appreciate differences. This lays the groundwork for stronger relationships based on understanding and respect.

YOU WILL LEARN

1. The workplace priorities of other styles
2. How well you might relate to those priorities
3. Your similarities and differences

Workplace

DiSC® MODEL AND WORKPLACE PRIORITIES

The priorities around the circle show where the different styles focus their energy at work. Your dot and surrounding comfort zone (shading) are also shown. Typically, people with the D style have shading that touches Results, Action, and Challenge. Your shading is characteristic of the D style.

Dominance

You will notice:

- Driving toward results
- Taking quick and bold action
- Challenging things that aren't working

Conscientiousness

You will notice:

- Striving for accuracy and high quality
- Taking a systematic approach to ensure stability
- Challenging flawed ideas and approaches

Influence

You will notice:

- Maintaining enthusiasm
- Taking quick action toward exciting possibilities
- Collaborating and socializing

Steadiness

You will notice:

- Being supportive and patient with others
- Collaborating and cooperating
- Being dependable and even-tempered to ensure stability

The D Style & You

HOW MIGHT YOU REACT TO THE D STYLE?

Imagine that you regularly interact with someone who also has a D style. Like you, she's focused on results and wants to see big things accomplished, and you probably share her initiative and strong determination. She's well-respected by the organization as a go-getter who delivers on her promises, and you probably have no trouble relating to her direct, forceful approach.

Like you, this colleague seems confident, assertive, and ready to tackle anything head-on. Because you both prefer an action-oriented and demanding work environment, you're probably comfortable with her fast pace and intensity.

Furthermore, the two of you share a questioning nature and a desire to challenge the status quo, so you're likely to appreciate the healthy sense of skepticism she brings to a situation. However, because you both like to control how things are done, you may butt heads at times, and you may prefer to fly solo on important projects.

To you, people with the D style may seem:

- Driven
- Competitive
- Forceful
- Strong-willed

WHAT IS THE MOTIVATION FOR THEIR BEHAVIOR?

Results

People with the D style tend to be strong-willed individuals who prioritize Results. Because they are so driven, they constantly look for new challenges and opportunities. They strive for success and won't give up just because they run into a few obstacles. Most likely, you can relate well to their goal-oriented nature and may even compete with them at times.

Action

In addition, they prioritize Action, so they focus on achieving their goals quickly and forcefully. Cautious and predictable environments are particularly tedious for them, and they may get impatient if others spend a lot of time analyzing ideas rather than acting on them. Since you share their bold style, you can probably relate well to their desire to keep moving.

Challenge

Furthermore, those with the D style also prioritize Challenge. Because they want to control outcomes, they're often questioning and independent-minded. They are unlikely to accept things they're unsure about, and they won't hesitate to challenge ideas that they don't agree with. Since you probably share these qualities, you may find that the two of you get locked into stubborn arguments at times.

The i Style & You

HOW MIGHT YOU REACT TO THE i STYLE?

Now, imagine that you also work with someone with an i style. He seems to know everyone on a first-name basis and always has the latest scoop. You probably don't share his positive approach and enthusiasm, and you may find him to be overly optimistic.

Because you share his priority of action and interest in rapid change, you probably admire his spontaneity and flexible approach. However, you're likely more concerned with getting tangible results than he is. And while you both enjoy coming up with bold ideas, you're probably more driven to implement them.

To you, he may seem overly concerned with being in the spotlight, and you may wonder how he gets any work done with all that socializing and joke telling. Since you tend to be fairly independent and want to control how things get done, you may not appreciate his desire to work collaboratively.

To you, people with the i style may seem:

- Talkative
- Optimistic
- Naïve
- Passionate

WHAT IS THE MOTIVATION FOR THEIR BEHAVIOR?

Enthusiasm

People with the i style put a high priority on Enthusiasm and tend to maintain an upbeat attitude. Because they get excited about new possibilities, they may be very expressive when communicating their ideas. Because you probably focus more on achieving success and getting concrete results, you may not relate well to their desire to create a lively atmosphere.

Action

In addition, they prioritize Action, so they focus on making quick progress toward exciting solutions. Because they tend to be fast-paced, they may be eager to get going without spending a lot of time considering the consequences. Since you also tend to move swiftly and decisively, you may relate well to their spontaneous approach.

Collaboration

Furthermore, those with the i style also prioritize Collaboration. They enjoy meeting new people, and they probably have a talent for getting everyone involved and building team spirit. They appreciate teamwork and often gather the group to work on projects collaboratively. Since you tend to be more interested in individual accomplishments, you may not relate to their need to promote teamwork.

The S Style & You

HOW MIGHT YOU REACT TO THE S STYLE?

Now, let's imagine that you regularly interact with someone with an S style. To you, he seems calm and compliant, and whenever you ask him a question, he's always patient and eager to help. However, since you're most interested in bottom-line results, you may become frustrated by his tendency to worry about keeping everyone happy.

He is well-liked by everyone and can always be counted on to perform his job consistently. But while he's certainly a "rock" around the office, he's not likely to shake things up with daring ideas or push others to achieve, like you tend to do. And because you tend to make bold decisions confidently, you may find him to be overly cautious or wishy-washy.

You may find that he's much more concerned with including everyone than you are. While you tend to be outspoken and assertive, he seems more easygoing and concerned with group harmony. He doesn't share your interest in victory, but instead he keeps a low profile and seems embarrassed when someone showers him with praise. In response to this kind of recognition, he tends to say, "It's really not a big deal."

To you, people with the S style may seem:

- Soft-spoken
- Indecisive
- Unassertive
- Trusting

WHAT IS THE MOTIVATION FOR THEIR BEHAVIOR?

Support

People with the S style place a high priority on providing Support. They tend to be good listeners, and as a result, they're often seen as patient and accommodating. They don't hesitate to help out when they can, and they value a warm and easygoing environment. Because you tend to strive for quick results, you may find it difficult to relate to their laidback approach, which may get in the way of immediate progress at times.

Stability

In addition, they prioritize Stability, so they often focus on maintaining a predictable, orderly environment. Since they tend to be cautious, they're probably methodical and avoid rapid change whenever possible. Because you're probably willing to shake things up to get results, you may find them to be too cautious and hesitant to accept change.

Collaboration

Furthermore, people with the S style also prioritize Collaboration. They enjoy working with others in a trusting, warm environment, and they may go out of their way to make sure people feel included and accepted. Because you tend to focus more on individual accomplishments, you may find their desire for friendly teamwork to be unnecessary or counterproductive.

The C Style & You

HOW MIGHT YOU REACT TO THE C STYLE?

Imagine that you regularly interact with someone with a C style. She's not highly sociable, and she insists on working tirelessly on tasks until they're done according to her high standards. While you share some of her desire for quality and accuracy, you may think her tendency to hole up in her office—checking her work two or three times before being satisfied—is overly cautious and can cause unnecessary delays.

To you, this colleague often seems overly careful and methodical. She wants a stable environment where she can ensure reliable outcomes. While you tend to be forceful and decisive, she seems to overanalyze big decisions. And since you want to see plans become reality as quickly as possible, you may think that her nitpicking stands in the way of progress.

Furthermore, you both may have strong feelings about how things should be done, and the two of you may be equally challenging and determined that your way is the right way. However, you can trust that when she does commit to something, she will follow through.

To you, people with the C style may seem:

- Analytical
- Private
- Precise
- Methodical

WHAT IS THE MOTIVATION FOR THEIR BEHAVIOR?

Accuracy

People with the C style place a high priority on Accuracy. Because they want to ensure superior results, they tend to analyze options rationally and separate emotions from facts. They value being precise, and as result, they will often ask in-depth or skeptical questions. While you can probably relate to their detached approach, you may find their systematic nature to be too tedious to get the quick results you seek.

Stability

In addition, they prioritize Stability. Because they tend to value follow-through and restraint, they're uncomfortable with quick or risky decisions and prefer to take time to make an informed choice. They tend to analyze all the options, and they often make decisions that promise predictable outcomes. Because you're usually more interested than they are in achieving quick results, you may grow frustrated with their cautious approach.

Challenge

Furthermore, people with the C style also prioritize Challenge. In their quest to find the most streamlined or productive method of completing their tasks, they may openly question ideas and point out flaws that others may have missed. While you usually share their tendency to ask questions, you may find their skepticism frustrating when it stands in the way of quick forward progress.

Build Better Relationships

INTRODUCTION

While everyone wants good relationships in the workplace, we may disagree on what that really means. A first step is simply understanding what that looks like for each other—how do we want to be treated?

DiSC® helps you understand the various ways people approach communication and collaboration. In this section, you'll explore how to connect with your coworkers, based on strategies that take their style and priorities into consideration as well as your own.

With this information, you can meet your coworkers where they are, leading to smoother, more effective relationships and a work culture built on respect.

YOU WILL LEARN

1. How to be more effective with each DiSC style
2. How to solve problems when working with each DiSC style
3. How to manage tension with each DiSC style

Workplace

DiSC® MODEL AND WORKPLACE PRIORITIES

The priorities around the circle show where the different styles focus their energy at work. Your dot and surrounding comfort zone (shading) are also shown. Typically, people with the D style have shading that touches Results, Action, and Challenge. Your shading is characteristic of the D style.

D style responds well to:

- Directness
- Confidence
- Ability to get to the point quickly

C style responds well to:

- Facts and logic
- Calm and order
- Time and space to think things through

i style responds well to:

- Enthusiasm and excitement
- Positivity and optimism
- Warmth and openness

S style responds well to:

- Patience and calm
- Warmth and acceptance
- Diplomacy and consideration

Connecting with D

WHEN YOU NEED TO BE MORE EFFECTIVE:

Miguel, people who share your D style usually like to get right to the point, and this might affect the way you relate to one another. Because you both tend to be straightforward, the two of you may try to clear the air and get things moving. However, since you also share a strong-willed and competitive nature, you may end up overwhelming each other's ideas with your own opinions. As a result, neither of you may listen to what the other has to say.

Therefore, when you need to be more effective with people who have the D style, consider the following strategies:

- Focus on dialogue rather than talking over each other.
- Acknowledge your shared desire to move things forward.
- Give them time to present their case without interruption before offering your own ideas.

WHEN PROBLEMS NEED TO BE SOLVED:

People who share your D style make quick, firm decisions, and they want to make progress and keep moving. Because you're both eager to confront issues head-on and overcome obstacles rapidly, you may agree on the need for immediate action and bold ideas when solving problems. However, if the two of you disagree on the proper course of action, your mutual drive to be in charge may cause a power struggle.

Therefore, when solving problems with people who have the D style, consider the following strategies:

- Don't be so insistent on your own solutions that you dismiss the merit of their ideas.
- Remember that the goal is to solve problems together, not for either of you to win as an individual.
- Be willing to compromise at times to ensure a swift solution.

WHEN THINGS GET TENSE:

Because neither of you is inclined to gloss over differences or avoid confrontation, both you and your "D" coworkers may challenge ideas and even become argumentative in conflict. The two of you can become competitive, creating win-lose scenarios in which compromise is seen as a sign of weakness. As a result, disagreements between you may become heated, and you may fail to find the common ground needed to come to a resolution.

Therefore, when things get tense with people who have the D style, consider the following strategies:

- Address the situation directly but avoid becoming overly insistent.
- Focus on resolving the issue rather than on winning.
- Resist the urge to escalate the conflict.

Connecting with i

WHEN YOU NEED TO BE MORE EFFECTIVE:

Because people with the i style want to collaborate on fun or exciting projects, Miguel, they probably don't share your focus on bottom-line results. Therefore, they may want to spend time being sociable while you just want to get down to business. While you may have little patience for their efforts to build team spirit, they might find your frank and forceful approach to be pushy or insensitive.

Therefore, when you need to be more effective with people who have the i style, consider the following strategies:

- Find ways to recognize them so they feel well-liked and appreciated.
- Avoid dampening their enthusiasm.
- Show more willingness to engage in friendly small talk before launching into the business at hand.

WHEN PROBLEMS NEED TO BE SOLVED:

People with the i style like to dive in and move quickly when confronting a problem, so your tendency to pick a course of action decisively may appeal to them. However, they also want to consider people's needs, so they may see your push to implement unpopular solutions as insensitive. In turn, you may think that they worry too much about what other people think.

Therefore, when solving problems with people who have the i style, consider the following strategies:

- Avoid insisting on tough-minded solutions that might alienate others.
- Use your shared energy to maintain momentum.
- Show that you understand the value of taking relationships into account.

WHEN THINGS GET TENSE:

Because people with the i style want to maintain friendly relationships, they're more likely to initially gloss over differences, while you tend to address issues head-on. However, self-expression is very important to them, so they may insist on being heard in confrontations, even if it means that they become emotional and lash out at others. Since you can become forceful in conflict and may argue passionately for your opinion, the two of you might end up escalating the situation.

Therefore, when things get tense with people who have the i style, consider the following strategies:

- Be careful that your directness doesn't come across as a personal attack.
- Express a desire to work through the conflict quickly but thoroughly.
- Let them know that a disagreement now doesn't mean a poor relationship down the road.

Connecting with S

WHEN YOU NEED TO BE MORE EFFECTIVE:

People with the S style value cooperation and friendly interaction, Miguel, and this might affect the way you relate to one another. You aren't as concerned with personal connections as they are, and they may see your matter-of-fact approach as callous at times. In addition, your tendency to be straightforward may overwhelm them, and your sometimes aggressive manner may discourage them from offering their opinions and collaborating with you.

Therefore, when you need to be more effective with people who have the S style, consider the following strategies:

- Provide a safe environment so they feel comfortable speaking up when something is bothering them.
- Show a willingness to collaborate rather than just pushing for results.
- Be proactive in seeking their ideas and opinions.

WHEN PROBLEMS NEED TO BE SOLVED:

Compared to people with the S style, you're probably more driven to make swift decisions when it comes to solving problems, and you may be quite willing to take risks if the potential payoff is big. Their more cautious approach may seem indecisive to you, and because they like to make decisions collectively, they may think your hard-charging approach overlooks others' input.

Therefore, when solving problems with people who have the S style, consider the following strategies:

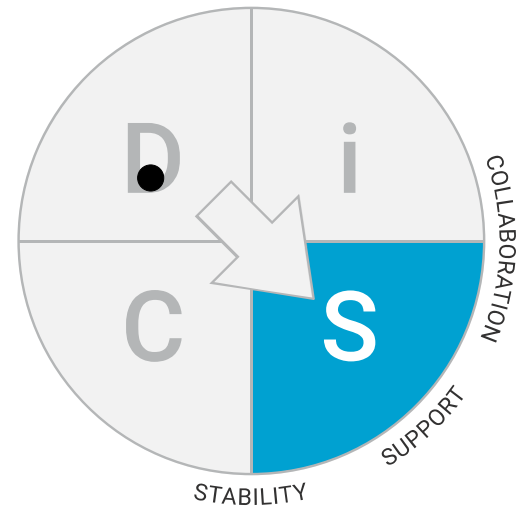

- Respect their cautious pace, but work together to make decisions more efficiently.
- Consider establishing a mutually agreed-upon deadline rather than pushing them to act.
- Acknowledge their desire to work together and consider other people's feelings when making decisions.

WHEN THINGS GET TENSE:

Because people with the S style want to support others, they avoid rocking the boat and upsetting the people around them. In conflict situations, you tend to confront issues more directly than they do. As a result, you may overpower them and cause them to give in to avoid prolonging the disagreement. While you may win arguments by being forceful, this aggressive approach could undermine their trust, and they may end up burying their growing resentment.

Therefore, when things get tense with people who have the S style, consider the following strategies:

- Take a more diplomatic approach and focus on uncovering the true source of the conflict.
- Keep in mind that forceful tactics may leave them feeling anxious or resentful.
- Don't interpret their silence as a resolution to conflict, as they may be hiding bitterness.

Connecting with C

WHEN YOU NEED TO BE MORE EFFECTIVE:

Miguel, people with the C style would often rather focus on facts than feelings, and this might affect the way you relate to one another. They probably appreciate your tendency to concentrate on the task at hand. However, they like to carefully analyze ideas, while you're more likely to want things to happen quickly. As a result, they may find your more forceful approach to be too pushy and reckless, and you might think their tendency to be systematic delays forward progress.

Therefore, when you need to be more effective with people who have the C style, consider the following strategies:

- Talk to them about the objective, fact-based aspects of ideas and projects.
- Avoid pressuring them for immediate action.
- Give them time to analyze their options.

WHEN PROBLEMS NEED TO BE SOLVED:

When it comes to solving problems, your "C" coworkers want to thoroughly consider all the consequences before choosing a plan. On the other hand, you're more willing to take risks and change directions. As a result, you may become frustrated when they second-guess your ideas during the problem-solving process. In turn, they may see your push for quick decisions as imprudent or reckless.

Therefore, when solving problems with people who have the C style, consider the following strategies:

- Respect their need to consider all the options, and remember that this may lead to solutions that have a bigger impact on the bottom line.
- Show appreciation for their logical viewpoint by backing up your arguments with evidence.
- Find ways to balance your sense of urgency with their caution.

WHEN THINGS GET TENSE:

Because people with the C style often view conflict as a disagreement over who is correct, they usually avoid direct aggression and focus on challenging the reasoning behind an argument. On the other hand, you tend to be quite blunt and outspoken in a confrontation. Since they prefer more time to process and consider the situation objectively, they may withdraw or become defensive in response to your sometimes forceful tactics.

Therefore, when things get tense with people who have the C style, consider the following strategies:

- Keep in mind that a forceful approach may make them defensive.
- State your position objectively and give them time to present their side.
- Support your opinions with logic and facts, and avoid pushing them to settle the matter immediately.

Personalized Style Index

DC STYLE

Goals: Independence, personal accomplishment

Judges others by: Competence, common sense

Influences others by: High standards, determination

Overuses: Bluntness; sarcastic or condescending attitude

Under pressure: Becomes overly critical

Fears: Failure to achieve their standards

Would increase effectiveness through: Warmth, tactful communication

Miguel, people with the DC style want to explore all options and make sure that the best possible methods are used. As a result, they may be very questioning and skeptical of other people's ideas. This may be easy for you to relate to since you aren't afraid to challenge opinions and ask questions.

In addition, they're also focused on getting results, so they're often very direct and straightforward. When they're concentrating on the bottom line, they may overlook the feelings of others. You also tend to be driven, so you can probably relate to their desire for results.

Finally, those with the DC style also ensure accuracy. Because they want to control the quality of their work, they prefer to work independently, and they may focus on separating emotions from facts. While you sometimes share their desire for accuracy, they may be somewhat more focused on analyzing the data.

D STYLE

Goals: Bottom-line results, victory

Judges others by: Ability to achieve results

Influences others by: Assertiveness, insistence, competition

Overuses: The need to win, resulting in win/lose situations

Under pressure: Becomes impatient and demanding

Fears: Being taken advantage of, appearing weak

Would increase effectiveness through: Patience, empathy

People with the D style are strong-willed individuals who prioritize getting results. Because they want to make their mark, they constantly look for new challenges and opportunities. Most likely, you can relate well to their goal-oriented nature and may even compete with them at times.

In addition, they also tend to be action-oriented, so they often focus on achieving their goals quickly and forcefully. Since they are often very fast-paced, they like it when people cut to the chase. Since you share their bold style, you can probably relate well to their desire to keep moving.

Furthermore, those with the D style also speak up when they see a problem. Because they want to control outcomes, they're often questioning and independent-minded. Since you probably share these qualities, you may find that the two of you get locked into stubborn arguments at times.

Di STYLE

Goals: Quick action, new opportunities

Judges others by: Confidence, influence

Influences others by: Charm, bold action

Overuses: Impatience, egotism, manipulation

Under pressure: Becomes aggressive, overpowers others

Fears: Loss of power

Would increase effectiveness through: Patience, humility, consideration of others' ideas

People with the Di style move at a fast pace, and they probably come across as adventurous and bold. Because they grow bored easily, these individuals often seek out unique assignments and leadership positions. Since you also like to maintain a fast pace, you can probably relate well to their high-energy approach to work.

In addition, they're focused on getting results, so they often work to accomplish their goals rapidly. While they are competitive, they can also use charm to persuade others to help them succeed. Because you are also results-oriented, you may respect their drive to succeed.

Finally, those with the Di style tend to be energetic and enthusiastic, so they may come across as charming and fun. They probably use their excitement to inspire others and to create a lively environment. You may have trouble relating to their high-spirited approach.

iD STYLE

Goals: Exciting breakthroughs

Judges others by: Ability to think creatively, charisma

Influences others by: Boldness, passion

Overuses: Impulsiveness, outspokenness

Under pressure: Becomes impulsive, lashes out at others

Fears: Fixed environments, loss of approval or attention

Would increase effectiveness through: Focusing on the details, patience, listening to others

Miguel, people with the iD style value taking action, so they tend to focus on moving toward their goals quickly. They like to maintain a fast pace, and they're probably comfortable making decisions on the fly. Because you share their active pace, you may join them in working to create momentum.

In addition, they tend to be enthusiastic, and they may come across as high-energy people who like to rally others around a common goal. Most likely, they maintain an upbeat attitude and bring a genuine optimism to their work. You may think their high level of enthusiasm is a bit distracting.

Furthermore, those with the iD style focus on getting results, so they may come across as ambitious and goal-oriented. Most likely, they enjoy leveraging relationships to achieve new accomplishments. You also want results, so you can probably relate to their ambition.

i STYLE

Goals: Popularity, approval, excitement

Judges others by: Openness, social skills, enthusiasm

Influences others by: Charm, optimism, energy

Overuses: Optimism, praise

Under pressure: Becomes disorganized, gets overly expressive

Fears: Rejection, not being heard

Would increase effectiveness through: Being more objective, following through on tasks

People with the i style put a high priority on enthusiasm and tend to maintain an upbeat attitude. They get excited about new possibilities, and they may be very expressive when communicating their ideas. Because you probably focus more on achieving success and getting concrete results, you may not relate well to their desire to create a lively atmosphere.

In addition, they are action-oriented, so they often focus on making quick progress toward exciting solutions. Since they tend to be fast-paced, they may be eager to get going without spending a lot of time considering the consequences. Since you also tend to move swiftly and decisively, you may relate well to their spontaneous approach.

Furthermore, those with the i style also appreciate collaboration. They usually enjoy meeting new people, and they may have a talent for getting everyone involved and building team spirit. Since you tend to be more interested in individual accomplishments, you may not relate to their need to promote teamwork.

iS STYLE

Goals: Friendship

Judges others by: Ability to see good in others, warmth

Influences others by: Agreeableness, empathy

Overuses: Patience with others, indirect approaches

Under pressure: Takes criticism personally, avoids conflict

Fears: Pressuring others, being disliked

Would increase effectiveness through: Acknowledging others' flaws, confronting problems

People with the iS style value collaboration, so they enjoy teaming up with others as much as possible. Because they want everyone to feel included, they tend to spend time and energy getting people involved. Since you appreciate opportunities to work independently, you may not relate to their emphasis on team efforts.

In addition, they tend to be enthusiastic, and they're likely to bring a positive attitude to their work and relationships. They're light-hearted and encouraging, and they often like to spread their optimistic spirit to others. You tend to be less expressive than they are, and you may have trouble relating to their happy-go-lucky approach.

Furthermore, those with the iS style tend to be flexible people who want what's best for the group. When others struggle, they tend to show concern and offer uncritical support. You may think their accepting approach is too softhearted.

Si STYLE

Goals: Acceptance, close relationships

Judges others by: Receptivity to others, approachability

Influences others by: Showing empathy, being patient

Overuses: Kindness, personal connections

Under pressure: Avoids conflict, tries to make everyone happy

Fears: Being forced to pressure others, facing aggression

Would increase effectiveness through: Saying “no” if necessary, addressing issues

Miguel, people with the Si style are highly collaborative, and they like to involve others in making decisions. Most likely, they try to build team spirit and are less concerned with individual accomplishment. Because you tend to prefer working alone, you may have trouble understanding their strong interest in group efforts.

In addition, they’re also supportive, so they tend to place a high importance on the needs of others. Because they have an accommodating nature, they’re often willing to set aside their own opinions and needs to help others. You may have trouble relating to their accepting approach, which may sometimes seem counterproductive to you.

Furthermore, those with the Si style usually come across as cheerful and upbeat. They tend to see the positive in most situations, and they’re encouraging of other people’s ideas. Most likely, you have trouble relating to their expressive style.

S STYLE

Goals: Harmony, stability

Judges others by: Dependability, sincerity

Influences others by: Accommodating others, consistent performance

Overuses: Modesty, passive resistance, compromise

Under pressure: Gives in, avoids revealing true opinions

Fears: Letting people down, rapid change

Would increase effectiveness through: Displaying self-confidence, revealing true feelings

People with the S style place a high value on providing support. They tend to be good listeners, and as a result they’re often seen as patient and accommodating. Because you tend to strive for quick results, you may find it difficult to relate to their laidback approach, which may get in the way of immediate progress at times.

In addition, they often focus on maintaining a predictable, orderly environment. Since they tend to be cautious, they may use a methodical pace and avoid rapid change whenever possible. Because you’re probably willing to shake things up to get results, you may find them to be too cautious and hesitant to accept change.

Furthermore, people with the S style also value collaboration. Because they appreciate a trusting, warm environment, they may go out of their way to make sure people feel included and accepted. Because you tend to focus more on individual accomplishments, you may find their desire for friendly teamwork to be unnecessary or counterproductive.

SC STYLE

Goals: Calm environment, fixed objectives, steady progress

Judges others by: Reliability, realistic outlook, even temperament

Influences others by: Diplomacy, self-control, consistency

Overuses: Willingness to let others lead, humility

Under pressure: Becomes inflexible, hinders spontaneity, complies

Fears: Time pressure, uncertainty, chaos

Would increase effectiveness through: Initiating change, speaking up

People with the SC style place a high priority on stability and attaining consistent outcomes. Because they tend to be cautious, they may prefer to work in a predictable environment that won’t bring a lot of surprises. Since you’re probably willing to take risks, you may find it hard to relate to their focus on safe, dependable outcomes.

In addition, they’re supportive, so they tend to be accommodating and willing to forfeit their own needs and preferences when necessary. They’re usually patient and diplomatic, and they aren’t likely to become overly emotional when pushed. You may have trouble relating to their patient, obliging approach.

Furthermore, those with the SC style focus on accuracy. They tend to work systematically to produce quality work and effective solutions, and they may be fairly analytical at times. While you sometimes share their interest in accuracy, they may be more focused on producing error-free work than you tend to be.

CS STYLE

Goals: Stability, reliable outcomes

Judges others by: Precise standards, orderly methods

Influences others by: Practicality, attention to detail

Overuses: Traditional methods, sense of caution

Under pressure: Withdraws, becomes hesitant

Fears: Emotionally charged situations, ambiguity

Would increase effectiveness through: Showing flexibility, being decisive, showing urgency

Miguel, people with the CS style value stability, so they probably come across as orderly and precise. Since they prefer to be well-prepared, they tend to avoid taking risks or making rapid changes. Because you're probably more adventurous than they are, you may find it hard to relate to their cautious approach.

In addition, they also place a high priority on accuracy, so they tend to spend time refining their ideas before moving forward. Most likely, they rely on data before making decisions and tend to take an objective approach. While you sometimes share their focus on accuracy, they may be more careful and methodical than you are.

Furthermore, those with the CS style are usually ready and willing to help when their expertise is needed. They also tend to be even-tempered and patient with both people and difficult situations. You might find it difficult to relate to their accommodating approach.

C STYLE

Goals: Accuracy, objective processes

Judges others by: Expertise, systematic processes

Influences others by: Logic, exacting standards

Overuses: Analysis, restraint

Under pressure: Overwhelms others with logic, becomes rigid

Fears: Being wrong, strong displays of emotion

Would increase effectiveness through: Acknowledging others' feelings, looking beyond data

People with the C style focus on accuracy and getting things right. Because they want to ensure superior results, they tend to analyze options rationally and separate emotions from facts. While you can probably relate to their detached approach, you may find their systematic nature to be too tedious to get the quick results you seek.

In addition, they also value stability. Since they tend to appreciate follow-through and restraint, they're uncomfortable with quick or risky decisions and prefer to take time to make an informed choice. Because you're usually more interested than they are in achieving quick results, you may grow frustrated with their cautious approach.

Furthermore, people with the C style are attentive to uncovering problems and mistakes. In their quest to find the most streamlined or productive method of completing their tasks, they may openly question ideas and point out flaws that others may have missed. While you usually share their tendency to ask questions, you may find their skepticism frustrating when it stands in the way of quick forward progress.

CD STYLE

Goals: Efficient results, rational decisions

Judges others by: Competence, use of logic

Influences others by: Strict standards, resolute approach

Overuses: Bluntness, critical attitude

Under pressure: Ignores people's feelings, moves ahead independently

Fears: Failure, lack of control

Would increase effectiveness through: Cooperation, paying attention to others' needs

People with the CD style may come across as skeptical and determined in their focus on making sure things get done correctly. Most likely, they won't accept ideas without asking a lot of questions, and they like to uncover problems that could affect results. You share their tendency to question new ideas, so you may find it easy to relate to their challenging approach.

In addition, they also prioritize accuracy, and they focus on thinking logically to create the best solutions. They tend to avoid letting their emotions get in the way of making rational decisions. You sometimes share their focus on accuracy, but they may spend more time on analysis than you do.

Furthermore, those with the CD style also value getting results and tend to be determined to deliver quality outcomes efficiently. Most likely, they're also willing to take charge of projects when necessary, and they can usually be counted on to keep things on track. Since you tend to share their interest in efficient results, you likely appreciate their determination to succeed.
