Land Acknowledgment

SunMUN III and the University of Florida Model United Nations team acknowledges that the land we occupy for this conference is the homeland of the Seminole and Miccosukee people. We recognize that the Seminole and Miccosukee peoples, as well as many other tribes, were forced out of their rightful land. The consequences of this brutal removal on the Indigenous communities are still being felt to this day. SunMUN III and the UF Model United Nations team honor the history, perseverance, and strength of the Indigenous people on a national and international scale. As students in the state of Florida, we continue to educate ourselves and reflect on the state's history of colonization and advocate for awareness about Indigenous cultures and issues. During SunMUN III, we ask for everyone to reflect on the effects of colonization while in committee and participating in conference activities this weekend.

Committee Policies

Materials & Technology Policy

Directives and related documents, including press releases and communiqués, in all Crisis style committees will be written on loose leaf paper. Delegates will be able to use paper from their delegate padfolios, which will be distributed before the first committee session. Crisis notes and joint personal directives will be written and sent on paper using a two-pad system. Delegates will be able to write joint personal directives on paper and submit them to the crisis staff when crisis notes are collected. The use of cell phones is strictly prohibited during committee sessions, unless in the event of an emergency. Delegates may not use laptops or other similar technology for any reason during committee sessions, without the express permission of the Chair and/or Crisis Manager.

Plagiarism and Pre-Writing

SunMUN III has a zero-tolerance policy for plagiarism and pre-writing. Plagiarism is considered the passing of other people's work as your own. This includes crediting other delegate's clauses, directives, or ideas as your own. Plagiarism also includes the reuse of clauses submitted at other conferences, or the reuse of clauses on actual UN resolutions. Pre-writing, as defined by the SunMUN III team, includes writing directives, crisis notes, clauses, and other Model UN materials that increase a delegate's standing in awards OUTSIDE of the allotted committee time. SunMUN III has a zero-tolerance policy for both of these activities and encourages delegates to present original ideas that are created within the confines of the conference weekend.

SunMUN III encourages delegates to cooperate with the secretariat if they are accused of plagiarism or prewriting. Our USGs and/or Chief of Staff will conduct a thorough investigation into any claims and make a judgment on the provided evidence.

Important Statements

Love is Love Island

Islanders on the show are encouraged to “couple up” with other delegates, regardless of gender. This inclusive approach allows delegates to explore a range of connections, fostering an environment where couples can be based purely on collaboration efforts. This committee serves as a space where diversity and all identities are celebrated and valued.

The following is intended for mature audiences...

We understand that themes related to romance and intimacy are inherent to Love Island, however we ask that delegates maintain decorum when referencing these topics in debate and within crisis arcs. Any crisis arc involving romantic or intimate themes deemed inappropriate by the staff will be addressed with the delegate and pivoted from.

Rules of Procedure

This committee will follow regular crisis rules of procedure.

Coupling and Recoupling

Delegates will have the opportunity to “couple up” with another delegate in committee, to pursue a fictional connection and to accomplish committee goals together. Delegates will not need to be in the same couple for all sessions, and strategically recoupling with another delegate is encouraged. The main goal of coupling up with another delegate is collaborating in a way that makes sense for both delegates’ positions. Similar to the show, couples will be judged based on mutual effort and the quality of the collaboration. However, delegates will be assessed based on individual performance.

Notes and JPDs

Instead of a two-pad crisis note system, the committee will operate off a one-note system. Delegates will work on a joint personal directive (JPDs) instead of a second note. Each crisis cycle will include a personal note, followed by a couple note (JPD). As the focus of this committee is collaboration, delegates will use JPDs to convey the strength, progression, and future of their connection with another delegate. Use JPDs to share the conversations, moments, and inner feelings about your couple that would be shared in a Love Island confessional or diary room. As committee progresses, additional JPDs may be sent alongside your personal notes.

Special Mechanics

Motion for a Chat - Special Unmod

“Can I pull you for a chat?” On the show, islanders develop connections by pulling other islanders for chats, or private conversations away from everyone else. In order to replicate this as a mechanic in our committee, we created this special motion to allow delegates to have an unmod specifically to discuss creating JPDs with other delegates.

Recoupling

Delegates will decide on who they will officially be coupled up with before each crisis update and submit their couple to the chair. One delegate within each couple will be chosen to give a 30 second recoupling speech about why they’ve chosen to couple up with this other delegate.

Bombshells

“Another bombshell enters the villa.” In Love Island, a "bombshell" refers to a new contestant who enters the villa during the course of the show. Bombshells are typically introduced to shake up existing couples, as they often bring new attraction or competition into the mix. For the simplicity of this committee, we decided to incorporate bombshells as a mechanic that will appear occasionally in crisis updates for delegates to gain access to resources that will help further personal crisis arcs.

Dumping from the Villa

On the show, islanders are dumped from the villa when an individual is left single during a recoupling or if a couple is voted out. For this committee, we will not be dumping any islanders from the villa.

Letter from the Director

Hello Islanders,

My name is Emme Lee and I am a third year Public Relations major with a minor in Event Management. I am so proud to be your director for “Eat, Sleep, Crack On, Repeat: Love Island 2025.” I’ve been doing MUN since my senior year of high school, and I am currently the secretary of the UF Model UN team.

This committee has been in the back of my head ever since I was a first year, and is partly an excuse to use an awful British accent for an entire weekend. I started watching Love Island when I was a junior in high school, and it became a huge source of comfort for me. Rue from the television series Euphoria described my situation best, I would “lay down one moment and then look around the next and realize I have watched 22 straight hours of “Love Island” over a two-day period and yearn for more.” The Love Island series offers a unique platform for viewers to analyze relationships, social dynamics, and how people make decisions under pressure. My hope for this committee is to spark discussion about today’s romantic social norms. From navigating villa politics to making strategic competitive moves, this committee will be a test of creativity, kindness, loyalty and interpersonal skills. I encourage islanders to embrace the drama, tackle challenges, and make yourselves at home in the villa. Whether you’re here for the banter, the prize money, or to truly find love, I can’t wait to see how you all crack on with your Love Island journeys!

Best,

Emme Lee

Committee Introduction

What is Love Island?

Love Island is a globally popular reality TV dating show that combines romance, competition, and social strategy. While there are multiple versions of the show, the show originated in the UK and was first known as Celebrity Love Island¹. The UK version currently takes place on the island of Mallorca, Spain². The show centers around a group of single contestants, known as Islanders, who live together in a villa while seeking romantic connections. The show revolves around the concept of coupling up, which is when islanders pair up with another contestant to further explore a romantic connection. Couples are formed for romantic, strategic, or friendly reasons. During the process of recoupling, which occurs regularly, islanders decide to either remain with their current partners or pursue new connections. Those who fail to form a couple risk being “dumped from the villa” and eliminated from the show. The ultimate goal for the Islanders is to form the strongest couple and make it to the finale, where the public votes for the winners. The chosen couple typically receives a cash prize, and in some versions, one partner must decide whether to share the money with their partner or keep it for themselves³. This final twist underscores the show’s focus on both romance and strategy.

Casa Amor

Casa Amor is a dramatic mechanic on Love Island, designed to test existing couples by introducing new contestants⁴. Typically, the original islanders are split into two villas: the main villa and Casa Amor, where a group of new singles are introduced to tempt the couples. The twist challenges the couples’ loyalty, as they are confronted with the possibility of romantic connections outside of their initial partnerships. The main goal of Casa Amor is to create tension and shake up relationships, leading to potential recouplings when the islanders return to the main villa. It’s one of the most talked-about and controversial aspects of Love Island, often resulting in emotional confrontations and high-stakes decisions⁵.

Love Island: Aftersun

Love Island: Aftersun is a spin-off talk show that airs after Love Island UK episodes. It serves as a live discussion and analysis of the main show, often featuring celebrity guests, former contestants, and fan interaction⁶. The program provides viewers with exclusive behind-the-scenes content, recaps of the latest episodes, and a deeper dive into the drama and relationships from the villa. Hosted by various presenters, Aftersun also includes audience participation, allowing fans to share their opinions and questions. It's essentially a way for fans to get more commentary and insight on the Love Island experience, with a lively and often humorous tone.

After the Villa

Many Love Island couples have stayed together long after their season, with some even having children together. However, many Love Island couples have also experienced messy, public breakups, with Molly-Mae and Tommy Fury's (from Love Island UK Season 5) tumultuous relationship serving as a prime example⁷. Many past Love Island contestants have gone on to have successful influencer careers, from Maura Higgins (from Love Island UK Season 5)⁸ to Leah Kateb (from Love Island USA Season 6)⁹. For some contestants, Love Island is truly about finding love, while for others, it's a stepping stone into the influencer industry¹⁰.

PPG (PowerPuff Girls) (USA Season 6)

Leah Kateb, Serena Page, and JaNa Craig are three contestants from Love Island USA who gained significant attention for their close friendship, affectionately dubbed "PPG" by fans¹⁵. Their dynamic became a standout aspect of Love Island USA Season 6, drawing attention to their bond rather than just their romantic pursuits. Committee Goals

It's early days in the villa. We're back in sunny Mallorca for Love Island Season 12—but things are heating up in unexpected ways. Ratings are at an all-time low and the Islanders are feeling the pressure. The show's producers have warned that if ratings don't improve soon, they'll have to cancel the season and send everyone home. The low ratings are primarily due to weak marketing efforts. The producers were overconfident in the success of the previous seasons, and their promotional campaign failed to keep audiences engaged in the franchise. In a desperate last attempt to save the show, the producers have placed all their hopes on the contestants. It's now up to the Islanders to bring back spice and drama to make Love Island Season 12 the best one yet!

Marketing and Sponsorships

Many major brands that have partnered with Love Island have withdrawn their sponsorships as a response to the show's low ratings. This is a significant loss for the show, as these partnerships are crucial for maintaining the production value and luxurious appeal that viewers associate with the series. Some brands that Love Island has successfully partnered with include eBay, Reddit, and Boots, a UK beauty retailer¹⁸. Islanders must leverage their charisma, influence, and connections to secure new sponsorship deals and take the season's promotional attempts into their own hands.

Mental Health

Viewers have voiced significant concerns over the mental and emotional toll placed on Islanders during and after their time on the show. Contestants are thrust into the spotlight, where they face intense public scrutiny, relentless media attention, and impossible expectations from viewers. The highly edited nature of the show often creates exaggerated narratives, which can lead to online trolling, harsh judgments, and unfair labeling of contestants.

Many former Islanders have opened up about the challenges of adjusting to life post-show, including managing newfound fame, dealing with invasive questions about their relationships, and maintaining their self-esteem in the face of constant criticism¹⁹. These pressures have been linked to serious mental health struggles in some contestants, sparking wider conversations about the responsibility of the show's producers to safeguard their participants.

Fans are calling for more mental health support for Islanders, for both during the span of the show and after their departure from the villa. By supporting contestant mental health, Islanders can create a safer environment for its participants while reassuring viewers that contestant well-being is a priority.

Group Challenges

Viewers have expressed dissatisfaction with the group challenges, describing them as dull and unengaging, with many admitting that they often skip through these segments entirely. This feedback is a major issue, as these challenges are intended to serve as crucial tests of chemistry, compatibility, and teamwork among the couples. Viewers have criticized challenges like the Heart Rate Challenge and Snog, Marry, Pie for being overly raunchy and sometimes unnecessarily hurtful²⁰.

Islanders must brainstorm fresh, innovative challenges that resonate more with the audience. These new challenges should not only entertain but also showcase the dynamics and strengths of each couple in ways the current producer-planned activities fail to achieve. By reimagining the Love Island challenges, the Islanders have an opportunity to keep viewers invested while reinforcing the emotional and competitive stakes of the show. Please remember that proposed challenges should be PG-13 and challenges deemed inappropriate will be pivoted from.

Environmental Impact

Love Island viewers are becoming increasingly eco-conscious and critical of the show's environmental footprint. The luxurious villa lifestyle—marked by excessive energy use, single-use plastics, and other wasteful practices—has faced growing criticism. Fans have commented about the negative environmental impact of filming on islands such as Mallorca and Fiji, including the strain on local ecosystems, carbon emissions from international travel, and the disruption caused by production crews. In recent seasons, the show has attempted to address environmental concerns by promoting sustainable fashion through the hashtag #preloved²¹. The show had previously partnered with fast-fashion brands and shifted to more sustainable options in an attempt to appease viewers. However, the viewers found these efforts to be insufficient and called for more meaningful change. Many are urging the producers to adopt sustainable practices, such as incorporating eco-friendly materials in the villa, minimizing waste, and offsetting carbon emissions. By pitching greener initiatives, Islanders could help reduce the show's environmental impact and set a positive example of eco-friendly initiatives within the entertainment industry.
