InterGenic Project

InterGenerational Activities

Over the past months, the project has been implementing intergenerational activities, bringing youth and seniors together to exchange experiences, learn from one another, and co-create ideas. These actions have strengthened collaboration within local communities and laid the groundwork for the project's final phase.

On 18 June 2025, partners gathered online for a transnational session dedicated to presenting and discussing the intergenerational actions. Each country shared highlights from their activities and reflected on the process. The strongest impressions came from participants themselves: youth expressed how much they learned from seniors' life experience, while older participants shared how rewarding it was to work alongside younger generations and see their creativity in action.

Consortium

The consortium of the InterGenic project is comprised by 8 different institutions from 7 EU countries: Spain, Belgium, Greece, Cyprus, Austria, Ireland and Romania

Outcomes from the Intergenerational Actions

As part of the recent activities, each partner country developed creative ideas that reflect the collaboration between youth and seniors:

- Spain: a mobile app encouraging local citizens to recycle, with information and incentives.
- Austria: a community garden supporting local production and sustainability.
- Belgium: a Health Center designed for both youth and seniors to benefit from.
- Cyprus: an Intergenerational Sustainability Center for learning and community action.
- Greece: a YouTube channel promoting a sustainable and modern lifestyle diet.
- Ireland: a mobile app connecting seniors and youth with local farmers and products.
- Romania: a cultural programme for exchanging practices and knowledge across generations.

Upcoming Conference

The InterGenic Conference will take place in Castellón, Spain, on 20 October 2025, welcoming partners, stakeholders, and community members both in person and online. The programme will feature keynote talks, a partner roundtable, and networking opportunities, followed by consortium discussions and cultural activities in Castellón.
