

Sarah A. Sarjuprasad is an author of five (5) Picture Books, and counting - all which she has published through her independent imprint YOUNG HEIRS PRESS.

She is a Guyanese native, now naturalized US Citizen, who immigrated to the USA in her early twenties. She is a Columbia University NYC graduate with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Creative Writing. She later trained as a NYC Teaching Fellow teaching ENL (English as a New Language) at Richmond Hill High School, while pursuing her Masters in Education at Hunter College CUNY.

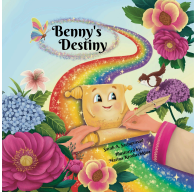

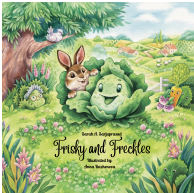

After becoming a mother, Sarah developed a passion for reading delightful Picture Books to her oldest daughter. After encountering hit and miss tries at finding delightful Picture Books, she decided to focus on publishing her own original Picture Book manuscript -Frisky and Freckles- that she had written years prior during her studies at Columbia University. Since then, Sarah has written and published four (4) additional stories, accumulating five published Picture Books to date.

Sarah's stories use a diverse range of characters – angels, weather elements, trees, flowers, animals, “inanimate” objects, vegetables, mythical beings, and humans - to entertain the imaginations of children while teaching impactful life lessons and showcasing character values. Among such life lessons and character values that are shown in her stories are: being willing to try new things, being impactful through serving others, being a true friend, being solution-oriented, being authentic in the midst of rejection, having a destiny and purpose, and taking manageable steps.

Sarah also attends author visits and teaches writing workshops upon request.

Sarah lives in NYC with her husband and their four daughters. She enjoys nature, reading self development books, pursuing her dreams, and cooking delicious treats for her family of 6!
