Ortho Times Case Study Guide:

Its Not Always About Success!

A case report is not necessarily about a successful treatment outcome it can also highlight complications, unexpected challenges, or even treatment failures. The purpose of a case report is to share clinical experiences, whether the outcome was positive or not.

Why Report Unsuccessful Cases?

- Learning from Mistakes – Complications provide valuable insights for other clinicians, helping them avoid similar issues.
- Identifying Risks & Limitations – Some cases show the limitations of certain treatments, guiding better decision-making.
- Encouraging Discussion – Complex cases spark discussions that lead to improved clinical protocols.
- Ethical Transparency – Medicine and dentistry evolve by learning from both successes and failures.
