

Stacey: When did your parents come to Sudbury?

Olga: My father brought my mother to Espanola. And then the Mond Nickel Mine in Worthington opened and he brought her there to Sudbury after that.

Stacey: So that would have been after 1924, after they were married?

Olga: Oh yes.

Stacey: Did he come to Sudbury because his sister was here or did he come to work?

Olga: To support his family.

Stacey: Do you know how he heard about coming to Sudbury? Did he hear that the mine was opening?

Olga: He must have known that there was mines opening but he came back because he thought maybe the mill in Espanola would be opening again, having worked previously there. In the meantime, the Mond Nickel Mine in Worthington started up and I don't know how long it operated.

Stacey: So did they move to Worthington?

Olga: No. He went to work there and not long after that, the mine sunk and everybody had lost their job and in the meantime INCO started up.

Stacey: Frood?

Olga: Yes. They lined up at the gate and he was learning to speak English and he learned to say "Mister boss please give me job," and he got a job and that was it.
