

'Lost and Found'

Axford & Robinson

In darkness seen, in silence heard
Breathe into me your living word.
Not in the earthquake, wind or fire
This gentle voice that leads me higher.
From star-swept sky to shining sea
In every breaking wave I see
O Lord of all, my Saviour true
My heart was lost and found in you.

Reach down to me beneath the waves
And reassure me that I'm saved
Your whispered words will calm the storm
And deep within your likeness form.
So sweep away, let nothing stand
In mercy's way and take my hand
O Lord of all, my Saviour true,
My heart was lost and found in you.

On trackless oceans I have been
And losing faith in all I've seen
Your spirit searched the endless deep
So patient was the watch you'd keep.
Now fill my sails, and bring me home
Through water, wind and wave and foam
O Lord of all, my Saviour true
My heart was lost and found in you.

My sounding line, my guiding light
My one true north, my star at night
Your risen life, a rising tide
That sees me safe to harbour's side.
You guide me through the rocks and shoals
The navigator of my soul
O Lord of all, my Saviour true
My heart was lost and found in you
