

Why New Horizon

New Horizon Social Enterprise was created to fill the gaps left by Canada's traditional economic system, which has too often failed to serve visible minorities, newcomers, and vulnerable communities. In response, New Horizon offers a community-driven, inclusive, and equitable economic model—one that prioritizes people over profit and opportunity over exclusion.

By combining business principles with a social mission, New Horizon creates meaningful employment, skills training, and entrepreneurship opportunities for those who are systematically excluded from the mainstream labor market. It reinvests revenue back into community programs, supports local talent, and empowers individuals to build sustainable livelihoods and futures.

New Horizon Social Enterprise is more than an initiative—it's a step toward reshaping the economy so that no one is left behind. By centering equity, inclusion, and opportunity, we are creating a future where every person, regardless of background or circumstance, has a fair chance to contribute, grow, and thrive.

A path to shared prosperity

New Horizon Social Enterprise was established to challenge economic exclusion by creating opportunities for visible minorities, refugees, newcomers, and other vulnerable groups. Our model combines business with social impact to foster equity, empowerment, and sustainability.

Our key activities

Inclusive Employment Creation

- Hiring individuals from marginalized communities
- Offering flexible and supportive work environments
- Providing transitional job opportunities as a stepping stone to the mainstream labor market

Community Partnerships and Collaboration

- Partnering with non-profits, government, and private sector to scale social impact
- Engaging local businesses for contract work that creates employment opportunities
- Advocating for inclusive economic policies and procurement practices

Entrepreneurship Support

- Incubating small business ideas from underserved individuals
- Providing micro-grants, training, and business mentorship to aspiring entrepreneurs
- Facilitating cooperative models for shared ownership and growth

Skills Development and Training

- Delivering hands-on job training in areas such as food services, cleaning, construction, administration, or digital skills
- Offering life skills workshops (financial literacy, time management, communication)
- Supporting professional development and credential recognition