

Jacelyn Kee

ARTIST, ART EDUCATOR, PUBLIC ADMINISTRATOR

JACELYN KEE IS AN ARTIST, ART EDUCATOR AND PUBLIC ADMINISTRATOR WHOSE INTERESTS LIE IN THEIR INTERSECTIONS. SHE IS CURATING "8288 NAUTICAL MILES," A VISUAL EXHIBITION FOR "SOMETHING TO WRITE HOME ABOUT," AN ARTS FESTIVAL HAPPENING IN NEW YORK FROM SEPTEMBER 12 - 22, 2015.

WWW.SOMETHINGTOWRITEHOMEABOUT.NYC

SHORT LIST

This Artist-Revolutionist Is Bringing Singapore to Downtown Manhattan

SHORT LIST

Meet the Smart and Resourceful Duo Behind the Singapore Literature Festival

By Jacelyn Kee

SHORT LIST

Five Short, Deeply Singaporean Films, Curated by Award-Winning Filmmaker Kirsten Tan

By Jacelyn Kee

Trending Now

CULTURE

Ricky Gervais Is the Funniest Man Alive

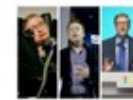

INNOVATION

Why I Stopped Angel Investing (And You Should Never Start)

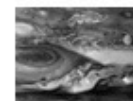

OPINION

Think the Left Won the Culture War? Think Again

OPINION

Stephen Hawking, Elon Musk, and Bill Gates Warn About Artificial Intelligence

OPINION

The Search for Extraterrestrial Life in Our Solar System

This Artist-Revolutionist Is Bringing Singapore to Downtown Manhattan

By Jacelyn Kee | 08/17/15 8:59am

COMMENT

With a life divided between New York and Singapore, Dr. Hong-Ling Wee uses clay to create work that centers on the theme of home. To her, home is defined by relationships, shared memories, and experiences. Her installations bring a contemporary freshness to a traditional craft by transforming everyday utilitarian pottery into decorative art, and can be found in the collections of major institutions in Asia.

This September, Hong-Ling endeavors to bring the real Singapore to downtown Manhattan. Her inaugural Singapore Arts Festival in New York City, Something to Write Home About, will bring together renowned Singaporean artists from across the U.S. and from Singapore for a ten day celebration of visual arts, music, film, dance, theater and cuisine.

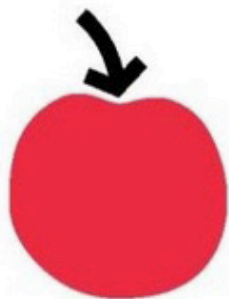

Trending Now

SHORT LIST
Road Trip-Worthy: The Eric Carle Museum of Picture Book Art

AdChoices

Something to write home about

Singapore Arts Festival in New York

12-22 September 2015

Meet the Smart and Resourceful Duo Behind the Singapore Literature Festival

By Jacelyn Kee | 08/17/15 8:50am

COMMENT

Paul Rozario is an author and editor while Jee Leong Koh is a poet and essayist who just released a new book of poems, "Steep Tea" by Carcanet Press. This smart and resourceful literary pair has brought the Singapore Literature Festival and Second Saturdays to New York.

Lately, Paul has been flexing his editorial and administrative muscles on the Singapore Arts Festival committee, while Jee Leong prepares to moderate "Take Out, Take Home: Footloose Writers on Food and the Sense of Belonging," as part of the event on September 13. Hear them in action!

Trending Now

SHORT LIST
Road Trip-Worthy: The Eric Carle Museum of Picture Book Art

SHORT LIST
Five Short, Deeply Singaporean Films, Curated by Award-Winning Filmmaker Kirsten Tan

Five Short, Deeply Singaporean Films, Curated by Award-Winning Filmmaker Kirsten Tan

By Jacelyn Kee | 08/17/15 8:44am

COMMENT

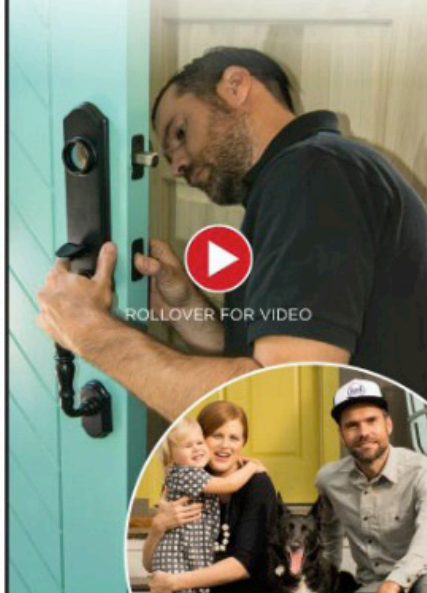

Kirsten Tan's films have been showcased in over 40 international film festivals, including Toronto, MoMA, Rotterdam, and Busan.

For "Something to Write Home About" in New York this fall, Kirsten has selected five short, deeply Singaporean films to screen, exploring topics from military service to religion, mandarin radio, and more. The films will be shown on September 14 at La MaMa, tickets here.

Security lets you enjoy your home

Adam of HATCH WORKS

ROLLOVER FOR VIDEO

Kwikset

Trending Now

SHORT LIST
Road Trip-Worthy: The Eric Carle Museum of Picture Book Art