From Farm to Table

Find out more about Poppy Farmer as she shares her urban-farming experience and expertise in the interview below.

Why did you decide to venture into urban farming?

Travelling around the globe made me realise that homegrown produce tastes good, and it's loaded with nutrients. I found that almost everyone overseas maintained a little garden whilst others had small pots of herbs in their kitchen. This makes cooking much more convenient and fulfilling.

What were the challenges faced in starting up this business?

The first and most obvious problem that I faced was land scarcity. I'm really fortunate to be living with my parents who have a home garden. But even then, it's not nearly enough space.

Besides that, another challenge is just lack of experience. I wasn't particularly active in my family's home garden and had no real interest in gardening until recently.

NASI ULAM

Loosely translated from Malay to English as 'rice salad', Nasi Ulam features a number of fresh local herbs & flowers which are not widely available in stores today. As a result, this traditional Peranakan dish is no longer common in the market place and not many people are aware of it.

What inspired you to educate people on urban farming?

I want to tell the story of food. In Singapore, where we import so much of our food, we've become disconnected from what we eat. We get strawberries and pumpkins all year round whereas most people around the world eat food seasonally – making them more appreciative of the produce they have.

Singaporeans have seemingly forgotten that there's a long story behind a simple plate. The ingredients had to be grown, then trucked, shipped or flown over vast distances before we can get hold of them. In order to make better food choices for ourselves, we should consider how our food is grown and the journey it takes to reach our plates.

Therefore, I designed the workshop to encourage people to ask these questions and reflect on them a bit more. During the workshop, I will show participants how to grow crops from seeds. I will also get them to pick some pre-grown herbs, and they'll use their harvest to prepare a meal.

- (2) Food & Fingers

- (2) You get to develop your gardening skills.
- (3) You can relieve stress and anxiety.
- (4) You can eat what you sow.

24 Why are bullet points used on page 8?

- (1) to grab the readers' attention
- (2) to state the outline of the workshop
- (3) to emphasise the importance of farming
- (4) to provide instructions on growing your own food

25 What were the two challenges faced by Poppy Farmer when starting her business?

- (1) the lack of land and experience
- (2) the lack of space and parental support
- (3) the lack of interest and a home garden
- (4) the lack of parental support and a home garden

The meat and fish we eat come from animals. They contain proteins, which help the body to grow and repair _____. Processed meats are meats which usually have other things added to them. Processed foods are generally not very good for us, _____. They should be eaten in small quantities. Ready meals, such as lasagne, chicken casserole or fish pie, often include processed meat or fish. It is always better to cook your own foods from scratch where possible.

Fruits and vegetables help _____. Research suggests that they _____. They contain lots of fibre, which is needed to keep your digestive system _____. Fruits and vegetables _____. They are generally considered healthy but it depends on the way they are prepared. The apples in apple pies, for instance, are mixed with sugar, making them _____. There is a large amount of sugar in foods like fruit juice and jam _____. (36)

Processed foods, in general, taste better _____. They can lead to serious health issues. Hence, we should as far as possible steer clear of them.

Some people shine right from the start and winning comes naturally for them. Then, here are those like Dipna Lim Prasad. One of the 138 students in the Singapore Sports School in 2004, she certainly was not one who stood out immediately. In fact, her growing years as an athelete were marked by the "second best" sindrum. That meant being in the shadow of rising stars. But she purserveered.

(40) (41)

(42)

(43)

(44)

The self-confessed "late bloomer" has indeed coming a long way. Her first encounter with the hurdles several years ago was marked by tears and tumbles. "I was terrified and tended to fell a lot," she recalled, adding she had hoped secretly that her coach would allow her to return to her first love — sprinting.

(45)

(46)

But he saw potential in her and he knew her strength in character. She recalled that in school, she had struggled to find an area she could excel in while others found my niches with ease. She said, "I used to lack confident. There were times when I doubted my ability. So winning the bronze at the SEA Games compeateetion was a huge boost."

(47)

(49)

(50)

Dipna's past dissapointments were valuable lessons. She learnt that "Sports is more than winning medals and records."

Have you ever felt nervous? Maybe you woke up late one morning _____ had (51) to rush through breakfast. You might have felt nervous that you were going to miss your bus and get _____ trouble. Perhaps you had to speak in front of an _____ and the (52) (53) thought of everyone looking at you might have made you very nervous. It is common to have trouble sleeping if you are feeling anxious _____ something. These feelings are (54) anxiety and they are all completely normal. Anxiety is just a form of fear, and fear is _____ to be ashamed of. (55)

We now know _____ a little anxiety sparks extra brain activity. Despite (56) (57) people may think, being a bit nervous about a test is actually a good thing. Studies have _____ that a little anxiety can help your memory. Many skilled (58) performers such as actors, dancers and singers, still have _____ in their stomachs (59) before they step out on stage. That little jolt _____ anxiety can actually result in a (60) better performance. However, when it comes to anxiety, there can be too _____ of a (61) good thing. Large amounts of anxiety can actually cause less brain activity. That is probably why people talk about being _____ nervous that they "freeze up" and "can't think". (62) Scientists believe that a little anxiety speeds up brain activity. In contrast a lot of anxiety (63) _____ down brain activity.

Feeling anxious is part of _____ human. If you are going through a (64) (65) time in your life - for example, if you are moving to a new school - you might feel a lot of anxiety. Do not despair. When the difficult time passes, you will feel better.

This was it! 6 August 2017. I had been waiting for weeks for this day! Since Father had told me that he had successfully obtained the tickets, I had been like a cat on hot bricks. Changi Airport's Terminal 4, its newest terminal, was to open its doors that day. Only the first two hundred thousand lucky people would enjoy this special opening. The terminal would be open to the public only later in the year.

"Jane, let's go!" Father exclaimed. I grabbed my backpack and we set off. The mood was set for an enjoyable day.

The MRT train arrived on time. Unlike other days, the train was not crowded and there were many empty seats. We chose the two-seater at the corner. The long ride was very comfortable. Along the way, we marvelled at the beautiful skyline. Tall buildings were adorned with the National Flag in celebration of the nation's 52nd birthday. In front of me was an elderly man nodding off and it looked like he might tip over any minute. Next to him, a pretty lady was trying to focus on her mobile phone but her eyes could not help looking sideways every so often in fear of what would happen next. I smiled as I recalled an incident which happened just the previous week. My classmate was caught sleeping during a Mathematics lesson and was sternly reprimanded by the teacher.

Subsequently, the train slowed down to a halt and the doors opened at Changi Airport - the World's Best Airport, as voted by air travellers in 2017 for the fifth year in a row. We then transferred to a bus. The ride was over in just three minutes. As the bus turned the corner, I saw a plane taking off from the runway. I hurriedly took out my camera from my bag. "Yes! I snapped a shot of it!" I uttered gleefully.

20

"Good evening and welcome to Terminal 4," a young man with a bright smile greeted us. His name was Melvin and he was our guide. Our tour group had around 20 people, all eager to explore the new terminal. He went on to explain why Terminal 4 was special and different from the other terminals. Although it was Changi Airport's smallest terminal, it was big on features and technology. For example, if you were a traveller, the screening for entry or exit was automated. Security officers were not needed. A machine would scan your passport and take a photograph of your face. Once you have passed the first gate, your thumbprint would be scanned. Only then would the second gate open for you to go through. It was that easy and quick!

25

Melvin also said that there were many shopping and dining options at the terminal. We went on a shopping spree and having over-indulged ourselves with food, my stomach felt like it was about to burst. Our feet groaned and luckily, Terminal 4 also had many colourful and plush lounge chairs. The chairs came with chargers and electricity ports which could be used to charge mobile phones and laptops.

35

The biggest surprise awaited us when we chanced upon a cleaning robot! While Melvin was talking to us, we noticed the robot moving towards our tour group. It suddenly stopped because it had detected a lot of human obstacles blocking its way. It then turned and went off to clean other areas instead! No wonder we did not see any cleaning attendants at the terminal.

40

What an exciting day we had! Some would say airports are boring places but now after this tour, my view has changed!
