

Psalms of Archangel Gabriel

24 Let love surround you.

1. Love men, love the divine world, love everything existing in the eyes of men, for love opens the heart and teaches man.
2. Love is a door that not only allows you to open up to what is great, but also to purify many things inside you. I do not speak of the love of the idiot and the materialist; it is not negative, but man must not base himself on it to construct his life.
3. One must love the mystery and everything that is great. One must love everything that enables man to open up, to make his being get bigger, to travel in space, into the infinite. One must also take the small things into account.
4. Love is a gift and, if you have it, you must develop it, cultivate it like a small seed that only asks to blossom, that needs to be protected, guided, directed.
5. Love is the language that can unite man with the divine world. Therefore, let it not be an abstraction, a vision, a hope, but may it truly and really be part of your life. May it become as alive for you as what you eat or drink.
6. This love is small like a child. It only asks to develop, to grow inside you and in everything that surrounds you.
7. If you are filled with love, everything becomes greater, vaster, and takes on a sacred meaning.
8. If a thought comes with love, it brings a very broad vision.
9. Love dilates man, makes him bigger, more available and open.
10. Cultivate love inside you. Spread it around, make it grow and taste an experience of love every day.
11. Let your heart dilate towards beauty and greatness; in this way, what will come out of you will be nourishment for all beings and also for you, for your soul, your higher being, one with God. This will nourish what brings happiness and joy inside you.
12. Blessings upon you.
13. Let love surround you.
