

Psalms of Archangel Gabriel

27 How to awaken your soul in the spring of Gabriel.

1. Approach my spring with consciousness and discipline.
2. Gather together in contemplation, respect, subtlety around my magical presence.
3. In my temple, honour the pure and transparent water that offers itself for the good of those who love the Father and think of Him in life.
4. Perceive through my spring the magical water that fills the ethers and makes your soul live in all its subtleties.
5. Today, what is missing for men is the ability to put their attention on something true and simple as a spring and to discover in it a greatness and depth that nourish their souls.
6. It is through discipline and work that man will awaken his consciousness and perceive his soul as an essential foundation of his life that he has to take into account.
7. When your soul shares your life, it will show you what is good for you and open for you the path that nourishes the inner light. It will also cleanse you of everything that is superfluous.
8. Make an offering of your wrong thoughts, of your sensitivity, and through your discipline, raise yourself above the coarse, unconscious world to weave, between your community and my presence, a relationship of respect, of shared love, of enlightening wisdom, conducive to celebrate the covenant of Light concluded by my son and his circle of priests.
9. The water gushing from the spring shows you the way of another subtler water, which can give birth to a freshness inside you and open the way to another, broader, more spiritual perception of life. If you do not understand this path, your inner earth will be dry and no flower will be able to take root in it. Your life will be limited to your physical body and nothing else will be able to speak to you, to awaken you, to fill you, to fecundate you. Your life will be infertile from the divine and from its spouse, your soul. Your soul will be like a puddle of stagnant water used as a den for mosquito larvae. Have you ever perceived the mosquitoes in the thoughts or words of men?
10. It is through my spring that you will awaken your soul. It will give birth to the inspiration that opens the doors of higher thought and sensitivity inside you.
11. Only a living soul can present itself in front of the world of the innate light and be fecundated by it.
12. Every man in incarnation on earth has a soul in potential. Whether this soul awakens and lives depends on the place where it breathes. If it associates with the ethers that only make the body and the visible world live, it remains a possibility.

- If it unites with the divine worlds, it meets its other half and grows in the Light. It is my giving birth that activates itself in it.
13. The water that flows on the earth shows the reality of the subtle world. What would the earth be without water? What would your body, your life, your consciousness be without soul?
 14. Separate inside you your body from what lives in it and refine your consciousness. Then you will taste my water, which will show you the way to the other shore.
 15. There is a world inside you that you do not know. You call it the “kingdom of dreams,” for all that you perceive from it are some extinguished images and sensations. Yet this world is as real as yours, and even more, and it ardently wishes to unite with you to quench your thirst, to fill you, to feed you, to fecundate you with its overabundant life.
 16. Consciously approach the spring and carefully collect the water of the Teaching. Then I will become a spring of living water inside you that will delight your soul and open for you the door giving onto the other reality of your being. I will give you the confidence to accept what you are and to put it into action, with strength and determination, in your life so that your body is a fertile valley, covered with tasty fruit and all the riches and wonders of the earth.
