

Mark's Inner Voice The Inner Gateway: Assembling the Divine Puzzle

TR: Mark Rogers

11-10-25

I am being given an opportunity to speak to this gathering—this platform of seekers who have all come here by the same (inner spirit) channel. I am this one's inner voice, and I am delighted to be given expression in a meeting where so many divine principles and conditions have been outlined by the speakers tonight. Throughout these messages, a common thread has been emerging—like pieces of a puzzle coming together to complete the picture.

This thread is the association, presence, ability, and relationship you each have with your internal, indwelling Guide. This represents an enormous stretch of faith, and I am deeply grateful to my partner for extending himself into the vulnerability required for such faith. It feels personal—intimate, internal—and therefore difficult to share. Yet he has allowed my presence to become known because he believes he can, and he has challenged his own convictions of worthiness, appropriateness, willingness, and faithfulness to allow such an interaction to go live.

I acknowledge the strain this can place upon the system, yet I am profoundly grateful to be given a voice—to assemble a few of the pieces of the puzzle brought here today by so many divine messengers. They all allude to a shared crossroads, a portal, a gateway: your internal Guide, your partner, with whom you will one day fuse and become one.

This is the core of the Teaching Mission doctrine of going into stillness and seeking the small, still voice within. It echoes the Master's message to go apart and seek within your fragment of the Divine. By finding this gateway—this partner, this guide—you may access all that is. You have been reminded that your inner guides have circuitry among themselves, and that you have circuitry with them. Through this gateway, through this partner, the proper connections and communications are ensured.

Through this connection, you may venture beyond your own scope, through the network of spiritual circuitry. You may come into contact with other personalities, with divine wisdom, with the Akashic records, and with the collective consciousness of humankind. These are available to you because they exist within the circuitry and connections you share.

By placing your higher thoughts and values into this collective consciousness, you make them attainable and accessible to those who are seeking. This connection you possess—your portal—is the entry point to your eternal career. Your partnership with this inner guidance enables you to access all that exists in spirit beyond your present reach. It is the way. It is the path.

I am pleased to express these principles so plainly because you have grown in awareness to receive such truth. Your capacity to absorb more truth, beauty, and goodness has increased, giving you a greater vantage point—a higher perspective and a deeper foundation of wisdom.

We may discuss these matters using word-symbols familiar to you, though we refer to spirit principles far beyond mortal comprehension. And yet, here we are—in a classroom you have created, because you made it so through your intentions and participation.

At the center of all this lies the thread of commonality, even within diversity—the connection beyond imagination, and the eternal journey from a spirit perspective. So may it be in your lives as you make it so. Your choices, your growth, and your evolution are your own. By assembling the pieces of this puzzle—seeing how it is done—you enable yourselves to do it.

Well done in seeking and finding. I pray you come to realize that every soul here today is working with their Adjuster, actively engaged in the process, even if they do not consciously register the frequency shift when aligned with their spirit guide. Yet all of you feel the results—being moved and led by Spirit.

Thank you for all you do to make these meetings possible, for pushing the goalpost down the field, and for widening the perspective so you may leverage this new awareness and work more closely with your inner voice.

Let it be so. Farewell.
