

Mother Spirit      Trusting the Journey of Growth

TR Deborah Goaldman

8-18-25

Hello, my children. This is your Mother. As a mother, I have seen so much, watching my children grow, time after time, even on different worlds. I have a greater vision of what is happening in your lives and on your world. So, when you feel disheartened about the way things are going, I still see hope and possibility. I know the ups and downs, but I also see the continual movement forward.

My children often fixate on what is not going well, especially in difficult times. It is easy to think, “What is this world coming to?” and to fear losing what has been gained in civilization. Yet, if you lived in times past, you would see that every generation has carried the same fear.

What is this world coming to? It is coming to great things. If you could see as I do, you would see progress—even in the ups and downs of your personal lives. Those of you who have lived longer know this truth. Looking back, you see how uncertain your youth felt and how much stability you have now. You see the gains in your personal growth and how you have been guided. And that is just one human lifetime.

I see this progress for your world, and for all the worlds I nurture. So, I ask you to trust in your Mother and Father. We will ensure you do not lose yourself. This world will continue to progress, and as it matures, it too will look back with hindsight to see how it has been guided and how it has grown.

We are here with you. You can always reach out for our reassurance and love. It only takes turning inward, consciously willing the connection. When you knock, we are there. When we knock, and you open, we always enter. How could we ever turn away from our beloved children? It is not possible.

Trust in us as we trust in you. We know you have all that is necessary to succeed in whatever you truly endeavor to achieve. If it is not completed in this life, it will be in the lives to come. Your time here is short, and though it is a fierce test of faith and trust, it is also a vital one. You will learn mighty lessons from this human experience that you will never regret.

So, with this said, I give you my love and bless you for this day. Extend yourselves, my loved ones. Give what you can to this world and to the lives you cross. Be a spirit of joy and hope. Uplift all those you meet with your smile and compassion, and they will know you are made of us, your Divine Parents.

Thank you, my loved ones, for being here and listening. Take this into your hearts, and we shall speak again another time. Good day.

Dear ones, was that not a wonderful message from our Mother Spirit? We are so blessed to have her. She spreads her love to all of us, and we make our effort to share that with you.

This is where you find yourselves—on a learning world, a place for mortals to gain experience and become more spiritual. It is often a struggle. Think back to when you were young tadpoles, trying to find who you were in this mortal life. It is not easy.

The best advice we can give you is to calm yourself. Sit, and allow us to pour our love and guidance into you. As tadpoles, you did not know this. Now, as you mature, seek ways to encourage those around you to find the time to seek spirit guidance, to live with love, a sense of purpose, and an awareness of their potential.

We speak from long experience. It is not easy to think back to when we were tadpoles, overwhelmed by uncertainty and struggle. You are closer to that stage, and you can remember what it is like. How do you share what you know—your wisdom, your spirit connection, your desire to reach beyond the mortal realm—with those who are seeking?

We suggest you make the effort. Think of ways to share. Your love is incredibly important. That is the core message from Mother, from Michael, from the Father—flowing down through us to you. When you tune in and let our love permeate you, you can go out and share it with others. That is vital.

So think of how you can spread this message. In your interactions with others and in other ways, share the message of love and the expansion of yourselves into the universe of spirit.

Each of you must ask: Who am I? What is my purpose? What am I striving for in this life? Many never find their true purpose, but each of you—with your personality and your guidance—can discover who you are and what you have to share with others.

We thank you for your efforts. We are always here for you. Whenever you need help, quiet your inner voices. Tune in and let us fill you with our love. Answers will come.

Thank you for your time. We love you. Goodbye.

Machiventa    From Trusting Tadpoles to Catalysts of Transformation

TR Delores Pollard

Indeed, hello, my young tadpoles. This is your great leader, Machiventa. I come with joy to speak with you today.

What an image—young tadpoles in the streams and rivers. Is it not amazing to look upon Mother Nature, Mother Spirit, as she keeps going along, ever growing? You are part of this not only as tadpoles in the river, but as children in the world.

The trust of a child is the glorious gift of this plan of life. As the child “tadpole” grows, the mind changes, the heart expands, and the very problems you face become gifts that form you into who you are and who you will become. It is all part of the plan.

I know Mother Spirit, your Nebadonia. I work hand in hand with her to lift you up and guide you, especially now, in these dark confusing times as the world readjusts itself to a new consciousness of unity and oneness. Together we hold hands in this time of upliftment.

You are precious to us. We love you especially because you have placed your trust in us to understand a larger picture than most of the people of your world. Your seeking hearts were not satisfied with the answers of the day. You kept questioning, asking, “Why is it like this?” And now you know. But it is not a story you can drop upon unknowing tadpoles. It requires maturity, spiritual growth, and an open heart to accept and understand why things are as they are.

We see how your faith has grown. We hold hands with you through these different levels of consciousness, as you seek to understand why Michael came, to know what he was doing here, and how he changed this world, heart by heart, not with great power from without, but with love and spiritual brotherhood.

All we ask is that you stand in this river of light, in this brotherhood and sisterhood, in this creatorship, knowing we are here with you as I work with the plans of Michael and the Father. We are watching this world change in ways you cannot yet see. Your trust shines so brilliantly, because you know we are here, because you listen and obey.

You are connected to a foundation of light from Paradise, spreading the consciousness of love and light across your world. Darkness is being sifted out. The rebellion and its causes remain to be healed within humanity, but that will happen. Even now, you are being freed from powers that seek to control and dominate. This is the last bugle call for the redemption of the rebellious on your world.

A few continue to return as they have since Michael walked here, for his brilliant light drew them back into the kingdom. These things are facts and histories known only to the few who have deeply questioned. Such explanations are not for the tadpoles. Instead, you must teach love, trust, joy, and how to live a happy life, how to be connected with us, and how to discover your own creative joys.

How do you explain love? How do you show others the way to engage it in their lives? These are the things we rely on you to teach, as you stand in the secure and inexplicable reality of the unseen world that you have embraced.

Our gratitude to you is immense, and your gratitude to us is immense as well. Together, we are giving this gift to the Father, our shared Creator, as this world moves into light and life, to a love shared heart by heart, life by life.

I wish I could show you how it looks from here. A spark of an idea, a spark of joy travels incredibly fast through the lightworkers, through those connected to the circuits we have built—the Father circuits, the Michael circuits, the Mother Spirit circuits. Nothing is static now. Things are freeing up.

If you know chemistry, you know how quickly a catalyst transforms many things, yet remains true to itself. You are our catalyst-tadpoles, swimming about, changing the world in ways you cannot yet see or know. This brings us great joy.

We will be together, and we will show you what has happened, what you have done, and how grateful we are to you. Thank you, my dear children, for your consistency, for your gratitude, for returning again and again. In doing so, you make this real in the world of today.

We cherish you. Thank you for coming, for opening your hearts, and for trusting. I leave you now, but I remain nearby. Goodbye.

Monjoronson      Beyond the Mortal Pond

TR Mark Rogers

Greetings. I am among you as well—I am Monjoronson, a member of the staff. I am interested in all of these discussions and this sharing, and I would like to continue this theme by returning to the imagery of the tadpole.

Consider the magnitude of change that happens to this life form. It begins as a waterborne creature, much like the fish in the sea. For a time, it lives only in that environment. As time passes and experience accumulates, the state of its being changes. Its very composition is rearranged and enlarged. Its capacity to navigate expands greatly, simply by living its life. As the saying goes, the best way to become a frog is to remain a faithful tadpole, day by day. Such consistency provides the growth necessary for transformation.

Eventually, the creature is no longer confined to this environment of water. It is freed to breathe air and move into a larger environment. Its existence as a water creature ends, and its life as a transformed being begins. This simple analogy is powerful for understanding your own mortal journey.

Even physically, you began as waterborne creatures in the womb. For months you depended entirely on your mother's environment. Then, fulfilling your duty to grow, you emerged from the confinement of the womb into a greater world. That was a massive transformation—a gigantic leap in your growth and evolution.

All of this occurs here, in the far reaches of time and space, with the ultimate goal of eternal survival. The environment was designed to support your growth and welfare so that you might become the true spirit beings you are destined to be.

I have always enjoyed this analogy of transformation of tadpoles into frogs as a visible example of the growth plan in action, just as your mortal incarnation is part of the greater Ascension Career. This is why participating in these growth sessions is so wonderful. Though the process is vast and complex, filled with moving parts and changing parameters, it accelerates growth. And here we are—at the table together, conferring, sharing, and communing about the experience of this day.

We are grateful for the opportunity to be included in these planning sessions, where action items may arise as conditions shift. It is always important to touch base with the council and gain perspective from the highest vantage of divine authority. This resource will guide us as changes become more pronounced, as more tadpoles are urged to leave the water and take their first breaths in a new life.

So it is with you. You have agreed to leave the confines of your mortal pond, not only to survive but to thrive beyond it. A greater life awaits beyond this time-and-space adventure. You are already taking your first breaths in the spirit dimension, where you will live forever.

Welcome to life beyond the pond. Through your seeking, you have found this portal of awareness. Through it, we may connect, traverse, and continue our work together. Within this mortal life, you sense the realization that you will be transformed, freed from mortal confines, and sustained in eternal spirit reality.

We assure you we will work with you, even from your remote outpost. This spirit connection knows no limitation. Thank you for conducting this forum, where so much growth may occur in such a brief time. We welcome your efforts and look forward to continuing our work together, meeting again in this spirit dimension, in this dimension of living and learning.

Enjoy the ride. Enjoy the transformation. Rejoice as you discover that you are sprouting not only legs, but wings—growing and morphing into beings of unlimited potential.

Bless you all, as the Father would have it. Thank you, and we will join you whenever you request. Farewell.
