Design Concept

“조각보”(Jogakbo) : Korean Patchwork

“Jogakbo” is a traditional Korean textile art derived from the “bojagi” (wrapping cloth) culture. It involves sewing together small scraps of fabric to create wrapping cloths. These cloths, composed of pieces in various shapes, sizes, and colors, are arranged either symmetrically or freely to express a sense of visual beauty. \They convey a positive and harmonious message through the symbolism of “wrapping something precious.” In our space, we aim to recreate this harmony by allowing a variety of shapes and colors to coexist. By blending traditional colors of the past with contemporary design, we hope to create a space that feels youthful and refreshing.

Colorful Delight & New-tro Vibe

We reinterpret the sentiment of traditional Korean aesthetics through a modern and sensuous design language, offering an experience that feels both familiar and refreshingly new. By reimagining traditional colors and patterns in a contemporary context, we aim to create a space where the emotional essence of Korea lives on in a modern way—through a vibrant harmony of colors.

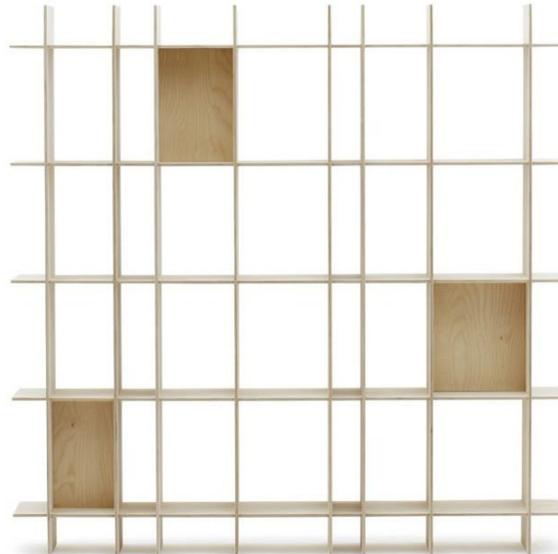

This space, where the past and present meet in a dynamic cultural scene, blends the warmth of retro style with modern trends. It promises both visual delight and the pleasure of lingering within.
