What is the Scopus Standard?

Scopus is the premier, multidisciplinary abstract and citation database used for tracking academic impact and identifying high-quality journals. It utilizes a rigorous selection process to ensure only high-quality, peer-reviewed journals are indexed.

Peer-Reviewed Titles

Indexed Records

Scopus acts as the gatekeeper of research credibility.

The Currency of Global Research

Publishing in Scopus-indexed journals is essential for career progression.

Visibility

Articles are visible to researchers in 200+ countries and indexed in universities worldwide.

Advancement

Publications are globally accepted for faculty recruitment, tenure, promotions, and PhD evaluation.

Funding

Scopus indexing is officially recognized by research councils and funding bodies for grant allocation.

Why Scopus Journals Are Exclusive

Scopus does not index every journal. Each is evaluated by the Scopus Content Selection & Advisory Board (CSAB) based on strict quality criteria.

Tracking Your Academic Footprint

Citations are a global measure of research influence.

H-index

Accurate author profiles that distinguish researchers and track productivity.

Citation Tracking

Monitoring scholarly impact through precise analysis.

Journal Metrics

CiteScore, SNIP, and SJR used to rank universities and evaluate faculty.

The Quality Divide: Scopus vs. Non-Indexed

Feature	Scopus-Indexed	Non-Indexed
Peer Review	Strict	Varies
Global Visibility	High (200+ Countries)	Limited
Citation Tracking	Yes	No
Institutional Recognition	Global	Local
Risk of Predatory Journals	Low	High
Career Value	High	Low–Moderate
