Highlights – among many other

Lascaux: The Sistine Chapel of Prehistory!

The Lascaux Cave, often called the "Sistine Chapel of Prehistory," is a masterpiece of prehistoric art. Discovered in 1940 in southwestern France, it houses breathtaking cave paintings dating back around 17,000 years. Graceful wild horses, powerful bison, and mysterious symbols testify to the creativity and spirituality of our ancestors. The stunning frescoes captivate with their detail and vibrancy.

To protect the original artworks, the cave was closed to the public—but precise replicas allow for an immersive experience. Lascaux remains a window into the past, sparking both wonder and mystery. A truly incomparable treasure of human history!
