Quality Assurance Lead/CQC Nominated Lead and Caldicott Guardian within the third sector

General Background

An exceptionally experienced and qualified children's nurse, health visitor, senior public health practitioner, and Quality Assurance Lead.

During a successful career as a Senior Children's Staff Nurse and Nurse Manager for the NHS, including at the renowned Great Ormond Street Children's Hospital, Sue has supervised and mentored nursing teams and planned and assessed nursing care for seriously ill children.

Over 20 years' experience in nursing in the community as School Nurse and a Health Visitor, coordinating services, managing risks and supporting the physical and mental well-being of children and families.

Specialised in health protection during the covid epidemic, leading communications with high-risk settings such as care homes, schools, supported living, domiciliary care and prisons to deliver outbreak and public health advice for continually evolving situations.

Provided accurate, concise and objective situational update reports for the UK Health Security Agency, which informed the UK government and national public health strategy and as Health Protection Operations Manager for Suffolk County Council. Chaired Situational Review and Outbreak Response meetings, providing clear and concise reports to the Director of Public Health and other professional bodies.

Quality Assurance Lead, Caldicott Guardian, Clinical Lead, CQC nominated lead and member of the senior leadership team, for a third sector organisation, working with children, young people and families ensuring best practice, high-standards, compliance and continuous improvement across the organisation, developing organisational quality assurance and policy frameworks, alongside organisational management of patient safety, risk and clinical governance.

Sue leads other areas within the organisation including, equality, diversity and inclusion, participation and engagement, restorative supervision and freedom to speak up.
