HOLISTIC THERAPEUTIC CONSULTANCY
PRIVATE POLICY

Your privacy is very important to me, and you can be confident that your personal information will be kept safe and secure and will only be used for the purpose it was given to me. I adhere to current data protection legislation, including the General Data Protection Regulation (EU/2016/679) (the GDPR), the Data Protection Act 2018 and the Privacy and Electronic Communications (EC Directive) Regulations 2003. This privacy notice tells you what I will do with your personal information from initial point of contact through to after your therapy has ended, including:

- Why I can process your information and what purpose I am processing it for
- Whether you must provide it to me
- How long I store it for
- Whether there are other recipients of your personal information
- Whether I intend to transfer it to another country,
- Your data protection rights.
- Whether I do automate decision-making or profiling, and I am happy to chat through any questions you might have about my data protection policy, and you can contact me via email. 'Data controller' is the term used to describe the person/organisation that collects and stores and has responsibility for people's personal data. In this instance, the data controller is me. I abide by GDPR regulations and will only keep your information for the time that it is needed. It is kept securely in a password protected document of which only I have the code.

My lawful basis for holding and using your personal information: The GDPR states that I must have a lawful basis for processing your personal data. There are different lawful bases depending on the stage at which I am processing your data. I have explained these below: If you have had therapy with me and it has now ended, I will use legitimate interest as my lawful basis for holding and using your personal information. If you are currently having therapy or if you are in contact with me to consider therapy, I will process your personal data where it is necessary for the performance of our contract. The GDPR also makes sure that I look after any sensitive personal information that you may disclose to me appropriately. This type of information is called 'special category personal information'. The lawful basis for me processing any special categories of personal information is that it is for provision of health treatment (in this case counselling) and necessary for a contract with a health professional (in this case, a contract between me and you).

How it might look - How I use your information:

- A. Initial contact. When you contact me with an enquiry about my counselling services, I will collect information to help me satisfy your enquiry. This will include [add personal information you record at this stage]. Alternatively, your GP or other health professional may send me your details when making a referral or a parent or trusted individual may give me your details when making an enquiry on your behalf. If you decide not to proceed, I will ensure all your personal data is deleted within [insert timeframe]. If you would like me to delete this information sooner, just let me know.

- B. While you are accessing counselling. Rest assured that everything you discuss with me is confidential. That confidentiality will only be broken if you present a situation whereby you are in danger of harming yourself or others, or that there is otherwise dangerous circumstances for which I might be obliged to phone the authorities or medical staff. I will always try to speak to you about this first, unless there are safeguarding issues that prevent this.

I will keep a record of your personal details to help the counselling services run smoothly. These details are kept securely (password protected folder) and are not shared with any third party. I will keep written notes of each session; these are kept in a password protected folder). For security reasons I do not retain text messages for more than the time I see them. If there is relevant information contained in a text message I will transfer this to your password protected file. Likewise, any email correspondence will be deleted once transferred to your protected file.

After counselling has ended: Once counselling has ended your records will be kept for seven (7) years from the end of our contact with each other and are then securely destroyed by double shredding with a special shredder. If you want me to delete your information sooner than this, please tell me.

How it might look: Third party recipients of personal data where I have contracted with a supplier to carry out specific tasks, I sometimes share personal data with third parties, for example, scheduling appointments. In such cases I have carefully selected which partners I work with. I take great care to ensure that I have a contract with the third party that states what they are allowed to do with the data I share with them. I ensure that they do not use your information in any way other than the task for which they have been contracted.

Your rights: I try to be as open as I can be in terms of giving people access to their personal information. You have a right to ask me to delete your personal information, to limit how I use your personal information, or to stop processing your personal information. You also have a right to ask for a copy of any information that I hold about you and to object to the use of your personal data in some circumstances. You can read more about your rights at ico.org.uk/your-data-matters. If I do hold information about you I will:

- give you a description of it and where it came from.
- tell you why I am holding it, tell you how long I will store your data and how I made this decision;
- tell you who it could be disclosed to.
- let you have a copy of the information in an intelligible form.
