Shri Guru Ravidass Sangats 40th Anniversary

Luton has been home to the Ravidassia Sikh community since the mid 1950's providing employment in many of its factories and foundries for the newly arrived Indian Immigrant community. Numbers of which, steadily rose in the 1960's and 1970's and by the early 1980's there was a significant community.

This generation strove to maintain their culture, heritage and values whilst coexisting with western society and traditions. Despite their struggles and only initially intending to stay for four or five years and then return to India, Luton had now become their home.

During the early years there was much talk of establishing a place of worship and a focal point for the community. Enabling gatherings for faith celebrations and festivals for them to attend, and mark the rites of passage ceremonies. In 1983 this vision became a reality as several members of the first and second generation immigrant community joined together to collectively purchase the Welsh Methodist Church site at 31 Cardigan Street.

The Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat opened its doors for worship in early 1983. With Mr. Sadhu Ram, Mr. Nasib Chand and Mr. Tarsem Lal as its founding Trustees. Mr Piara Lal as the President, Mr. Baldev Raj Bungar as General Secretary and Mr. Sodhi Ram as Cashier.

Fundraising efforts took members across the country as they sought much needed funds to purchase the property outright. Before this time, worship and social gatherings were usually confined to local school halls with Beech Hill School a popular choice.

At the time, most community members were blue collar workers in millinery, hat making, manufacturing, ball bearing, automobile production and other associated industries. Due to the nature of the employment wages were not highly paid, however community members still dug deep into their pockets to find much needed donations to enable the purchase of the Church in Cardigan Street. They achieved all of this, despite at the time still facing discrimination, racism and prejudice throughout each layer of society. Many were still struggling settling in their first homes in the UK, supporting families back home in India and bringing up their young families. In 1983 the average house price in the UK was £27,363 and the average weekly wage £203.77.

Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat plays an important role in helping with community work and cohesion for Luton.

It is so heart warming to see a faith organisation play an active role within the town. We are honoured to work alongside such an organisation.

A Celebration of 40 years

In 1997, Luton Borough Council, a newly formed unitary authority awarded the Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat its first grant to support the elderly community with a weekly Lunch Club, or Wellbeing Club as it is now called. Over twenty-five years on, the lunch club is still running every Wednesday. To date it has provided over 65,000 hot and freshly cooked meals.

Ravidass Sangat has broadened its approach and services reaching out to wider community needs across Luton. This is often through working in partnership with like-minded organisations, to set up an array of services to improve the quality of life of local and disadvantaged communities.

In recent years the Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat has broadened its approach and services reaching out to wider community needs across Luton. This is often through working in partnership with like-minded organisations, to set up an array of services to improve the quality of life of local and disadvantaged communities.

Donation Centre and NHS staff at the Luton and Dunstable Hospital. Furthermore 4,000 items of snacks, drinks, fruit, personal hygiene products and PPE equipment for frontline staff was provided. By the end of 2022 there had been in excess of 210,000 deaths from COVID in the UK.

The founding members could not have imagined that a community that was struggling to fund their own place of worship forty years ago were now supporting others less fortunate than themselves. It is a testament to the values instilled by the first and second generation communities that of resilience, dedication and seva (selfless service to all).

We look back at the events of 1983 and the iconic 80's decade that shaped and influenced the early years of our Guru Ghar. In doing so we detail the life stories of some our members, who despite personal difficulties still maintained committed to continuously support the development of their community, prioritising the values instilled by their faith.

It was a great pleasure to visit Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat just before we went into the first lockdown in 2020. I received such a warm welcome that I immediately felt at home and, needless to say, the food was amazing. It was no surprise to me then that the principle of Seva was expressed so profoundly, so lovingly and with such dedication throughout the pandemic. I am constantly inspired by the example of service and care for others that is shown by people of all faiths and none across all communities in Luton and Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat is second to none in that. Congratulations on your 40th Anniversary; the value you have brought to Luton endures much longer.”

1980's – An iconic decade

The decade itself was not only a defining time for Luton's Ravidassia community, but also an iconic period for the United Kingdom. Arguably no other era changed the social and political atmosphere so drastically. From the conservatism of Margaret Thatcher to the decline in trade union influence, family owned shops giving way to privatisation and high consumerism. Energy companies were amongst the first to be privatised, with British Telecom in 1984.

Pop artists began to feel the need to make a difference. The 1980's Ethiopia famine was one of the worst humanitarian events of the 20th Century.

According to the United Nations

Ethiopia's food shortages and hunger crisis from 1983 – 1985 led to an estimated 1 million deaths. In 1984, Band Aid with the song "Do They Know It's Christmas?" raised over £150 million for relief efforts.

In 1981 the first recorded case of the AIDS virus in the UK occurred and despite medical advances the World Health Organisation has detailed the death rate to this virus to be over 40 million.

Video games including Pac Man and Super Mario were all launched in this decade with huge advances in technology during the 1980s. On January 1st 1983, the Internet was born when ARPAnet adopts TCP/IP protocols which would allow data exchange among a network of different models of computers. Home computers also became popular during the decade.

Throughout the 80's, domestic football was dominated by Liverpool FC. However Luton Town FC still managed to lift their first major trophy in 1988, lifting the Littlewoods League Cup on 24th April.

Until 1982 there were only three TV channels in Britain, BBC 1, BBC 2 and ITV but in that year Channel 4 began broadcasting. In 1980 the walkman, a portable music player was introduced. CD players went on sale in 1983. The first artificial heart was installed in 1982. The first heart and lung transplant was performed in 1987. In 1983 Magnetic Resonance Imaging or MRI was introduced.

We are delighted to have worked in partnership with Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat on Bangla Fest and Sunday Exercise and Fitness sessions at the Creaky Bones Club. The Club was established as a response to local community needs to improve health and wellness and has proved to be very effective during Covid as a way to engage and keep community healthy. We congratulate Luton's Shri Guru Ravidass community on their milestone 40th anniversary and wish them all the success in future.

We at Bedfordshire Police would like to start by congratulating the Guru Ravidass Sangat on reaching this momentous occasion of 40 years of service to not only the Ravidass Community but the wider community of Luton and Bedfordshire. The support of the Sangat has been hugely appreciated by all of us within Bedfordshire Police. I have been nothing but amazed by the work that I have seen the Sangat complete in the three years that I have been leading the team. They always make themselves available should me or a member of the team need to seek advice, and the welcome we receive from the whole community when we attend the Gurdwara is nothing short of breath taking. Congratulations on reaching this milestone of 40 years.

1983 - 40TH ANNIVERSARY-2023

31 Cardigan Street has been a place of worship since 1881 in Luton initially by Methodists, serving and supporting local communities. The local Ravidassia Sikh community have continued that tradition when the former church was converted to a Gurdwara, in the 1980s. The building is however more than just a temple and place of worship it is a recognised as a community base, which reaches out beyond the local Ravidassia Sikh community in the town, to the diverse communities of Luton. The Sikh tradition is well known for its good works through its food programme and community kitchen, but the role of the Ravidassia Sikh Community is much wider in terms of charity works and support to deprived and vulnerable peoples of Luton.

In recent years the Sangat offered their support to Bedfordshire Police by bringing hot food to the station during the Covid Pandemic, knowing that officers would be working long hours without being able to make time to feed themselves. The support of the sangat was invaluable during this time as they regularly visited our stations to make sure officers had the opportunity to eat. Over the last 8 years I have worked closely with Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat and in this time, I commend the work that the sangat do on a wider scale across Luton. Luton is a hugely diverse town with people from many different religions and background residing within it, I have seen the Guru Ravidass Sangat work tirelessly over my time to support all of the communities in times of need and in celebration, congratulations on reaching 40 years”

Bhagat Ram

Bhagat proudly displayed his passport and emigration voucher that brought him to the UK in 1963. Bhagat was living in Beas Pind, Jalandhar in the Punjab and was studying. At that time the British Government invited people living in Commonwealth countries to emigrate to the UK to support the labour needs, and as a way of thanking those countries for their role in the two World Wars. Bhagat knew nothing about this scheme until his brother told him to go. Bhagat's brother had been in conversation with a friend and thought this would be a great opportunity as employment prospects in India were poor. He was so keen that he even completed the application form for him, but Bhagat was reluctant to leave. However, he felt that he couldn't let his brother down so, he agreed.

Bhagat was issued with a voucher and came to the UK. Fortunately, some people from his village were already in the UK and were able to meet him at Heathrow and give him short term accommodation. Bhagat's uncle, who lived in Luton, came for him and on 20th July 1963 Bhagat began his life in Luton. At that time families supported each other a lot in settling in the UK.

Initially, Bhagat worked in a scrap yard but one of the other men there dropped some metal which narrowly avoided hitting Bhagat. Bhagat left and went to work in a factory on Wingate Road, manufacturing steel boxes for the Shipping Industry, where he stayed for two and a half years until he had a serious accident with some industrial machinery that left him with his little finger hanging off. He was quickly taken to the Luton and Dunstable Hospital and they managed to save his finger. Bhagat started work at Johnson Tools and Dyes, Dunstable, until he was made redundant.

Bhagat was out of work for six months before he found another job, this time at Kents, but after eighteen months, he was again made redundant. Luckily, Bhagat found some stability at Goldstar, where he worked for eleven years before retirement in 2006.

Bhagat recalled that he would often work seven days a week and would take on overtime. The intention was to earn enough money to go back to India and have a better lifestyle. However, when children were born and other families settled in the UK, it raised questions about why would want he want to go back and what he would do there.

Bhagat visits India annually since retirement to see extended family and looks forward to doing this again once it is safe to travel. During Covid, Bhagat and others have collected and donated money to their home village Beas Pind, Punjab to help those less fortunate.

In 1970, Bhagat bought his first home, in Holland Road Luton. With a growing family of two sons and a daughter, Bhagat moved to a larger home in Birdsfoot Lane. Bhagat has two young grandchildren by his youngest son.

It has been a pleasure to be associated with your organisation that has had such a positive impact on the diverse communities of Luton for many years. Luton Irish Forum has gained first-hand experience of the outstanding contribution Shri Guru Ravidas has made. You introduced us to your community through the wonderful and shared experience of learning to cook Indian food during the Cooking in Harmony Project. The frequent distribution of hot food during the Covid-19 pandemic was well received by many of our members. We have also enjoyed sharing in each other's cultural events. On behalf of the staff, volunteers and trustees of Luton Irish Forum we look forward to continued partnership working with you while we enhance the lives of our communities together.

Dhanna Singh Mahey

When Dhanna came to the UK, he was leaving behind a wife and three young children in the village of Mitapur, Punjab to give his family a better future. Dhanna had attended technical college and was a carpenter with plenty of skills to offer in a new country. On reaching the UK under the voucher system, Dhanna stayed with family and quickly found work with George Dodd Builders based in Frederick St Luton. Dodds specialised in doing up houses and selling them on, other larger properties were converted to flats. Dhanna was in demand as a carpenter because doors and windows on many of the properties he worked on were not standard sized and had to be made to bespoke measurements.

All of this time, Dhanna stayed in touch with his young family, and managed to go back to India to visit them, but it was five years before he could bring them over to Luton and the family initially settled with family in Claremont Road. With two families living together there was 16 people living in one house in the early years. Eventually Dhanna bought his first house in Havelock Road, later moving to Reginald Street in 1980. Dhanna's wife soon found employment in a Hat Factory near to home, as a machinist. All of this was new to her, as culturally it would have been unusual for a woman to work outside the home.

Fortunately, Dhanna had quite a lot of family in Luton and they helped one another, often meeting up at the SKF Social Club for a drink and a chat. Dhanna later worked at SKF, Vauxhall, Wimpey Builders and found it easy to find work. At Vauxhall Bedford Trucks, Dhanna was trained in spot welding, welding the body work on lorry cabs. Bedford Trucks operated a night shift and Dhanna worked from 6.00pm to 7.00am, catching up on his sleep while the six children were at school.

Dhanna was a founder member of the Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat Gurudwara, fundraising and bringing his practical skills to refurbish the building. Other Sikh (Ravidassia) communities across the UK also donated and there was a sense of shared purpose in creating local worship spaces. Sadly, in December 1992 there was an arson attack on the Gurudwara which was a terrible setback after all the time and money that the community had contributed. Literally everything was burned apart from the Holy book (the Shri Guru Granth Sahib), which miraculously was unscathed along with the exterior walls. Fortunately, the Gurudwara was insured, and the slow process of rebuilding could take place. The rebuild took around 18 months and today it is a beautiful multi-purpose building with a welcoming atmosphere and a feeling of peace and friendliness.

Like many immigrants, Dhanna only intended to stay for four or five years and then return to India, but over time he realised that his children were very settled in the UK and for them, going back would be placing them in a very different society.

Kamla Kainth

Kamla came to the UK when she was about 10 years old and her family settled in Southall, West London. Her dad had been living in the Fiji Islands and had a UK passport, which enabled him to emigrate with his family to the UK. Kamla nearly emigrated again, this time to Canada. The company where her dad worked was Canadian, and were offering assisted passages. Kamla's dad asked Kamla and her sister if they wanted to go and both girls said a huge no! So, the family stayed in Southall.

Kamla came to Luton when she married in 1972. It was the perfect place to settle and her in-laws were in Luton too. Both Kamla and her husband worked in Luton's famous hat industry at Bermona Hats on Bolton Road. Kamla's husband worked blocking hats, which is how they are shaped, and Kamla worked as a machinist.

It wasn't long before Kamla's first baby was born and for a while she gave up work to be a full time mum. When she returned, it was to Eastex, where she used her sewing skills again, as a top sticher on high-end fashion garments. Her mum in law looked after Kamla's daughter.

Kamla had always loved sewing, from when she was a little girl living with her auntie and uncle in Jalandhar. When she left Eastex, she continued as a seamstress from home, making suits and dresses, often without a pattern. Kamla recalled the late night last minute alterations leading up to a wedding to ensure that the bride looked her best on the day. She was always pleased to do this and there must be many Luton brides who benefitted from Kamla's skills and kindness.

UB Foods was a leading employer in Luton, making sandwiches for M&S. Kamla started working there in 1987 part time as her family grew up. She stayed for 23 years, making many good friends along the way. After being made redundant, she returned to sewing, this time making medical supplies.

Retirement has been busy for Kamla. She and her husband visit India sometimes twice a year but Kamla said that the Indian summer is too hot for her and travelling between the UK and India gives her the best of both worlds. It's always lovely for her to meet up with family, but equally special to be with her children and grandchildren in the UK. "Family is the most important thing," said Kamla.

A few years ago Kamla became Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat's first ever female Trustee, a position that she believes will inspire other women to achieve more.

Kamla reflected on how good living in the UK has been for her and her family. She is very grateful for the NHS and that she has been able to contribute to a private pension. If she was back in India, Kamla felt that 'they would still be slogging' rather than enjoying an active and fun retirement.

Jagan Nath

Jagan was just 16, when he came to the UK in 1960. He'd passed his matriulation (O'Level equivalent) and his dad, who was already in the UK, sent for him. Jagan recalled his Mum crying when he left and everyone coming to the train station to see him off. It was a long plane journey alone and a very long way from his hometown of Garhi Mahan Singh, near Apra in India's Punjab. Jagan was really hoping to get an apprenticeship but when this did not work out, determined as ever, he went to evening school to study English and Science, while working in a Plastics extrusion company in Harpenden. Jagan recalled that pay and conditions there were good but the three shift system was hard going, even for a young person. Jagan said "we sacrifice a lot when we leave our country."

Jagan enrolled on an engineering course to improve his career prospects and found work at Luton's Kent Meters. A year later, he started a skilled role as a machine setter at AC Delco Dunstable and stayed there for over 35 years. When AC Delco closed in 2002, Jagan went to work for Bernard Matthews, but by this time, Jagan was experiencing health problems with his knees and while the company would have welcomed him working part time, Jagan retired. Retirement meant that Jagan was able to spend more time serving as a Committee Member, at the Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat Gurudwara, where Jagan has held key roles over the years as President, General Secretary, Trustee and now as Head Trustee.

The Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat Gurudwara began as a dream for the Luton Sikh community, who were worshipping at Beech Hill School and dearly wanted their own premises. Through community donations and fundraising, the beautiful Gurudwara in Cardigan Street was purchased. A former Methodist Chapel that needed renovation. Jagan as well as many of the elders were key to the success of this venture. Over the years, Jagan said that the community has become "more flexible, and adaptable in their thinking, meeting, socialising and integrating with other communities."

Providing for his family has been central to Jagan's life. Over the years, the family have moved many times in Luton. Each move has been to create more space and a better environment. Jagan also has a lovely house back in India, but he has no plans to move back. "Our children and grandchildren are here" he said. "They don't want that life and we can't do without them."

Jagan does go back to India annually, but also loves going on holiday. To date, he has been to America, Dubai, Sri Lanka and all across Europe. Jagan has loved seeing all of these very different places but always returns to home in Luton. Jagan thanks God that he is here, in the UK for many reasons, most recently he has been benefitted immensely from the support the NHS has provided him.

Ramesh Sondhi

Ramesh was still under 16 when he arrived in Luton on 20th February 1967 with his mother. The youngest of seven siblings, Ramesh had recently lost his father. His elder brothers already settled in Luton felt a sense of responsibility to their younger brother and applied for Ramesh to join them as a dependent sibling.

Originally from Beas Pind, Jalandhar, Punjab, Ramesh settled with his eldest brother in Kenilworth Road. He recalls that during home football matches none of the family would leave the home, fearing attack by football hooligans. Racist abuse was common and occasionally windows were smashed. The weather was very cold and in the early months the snow was heavy and hard to adjust to however, despite the difficulties, Ramesh was determined to progress and better his life.

He soon found employment at Jewish owned fur coat company on Old Bedford Road. – it was a good start to Ramesh's career. After 3 years, Ramesh joined Vauxhall Motors and stayed with them for 10 years assembling large vehicles for Bedford Trucks.

Ramesh married Harbhajan in 1974 and a year later he had saved enough to put a deposit on his first home. "I paid £10,900 for my first house in Sundon Park in 1975, and I have been very happy here." Ramesh and Harbhajan soon had a family of their own, and his two sons and two daughters settled well in the area.

Later he joined another factory on Wingate Road leaving Vauxhalls. Often working 12 hour shifts, seven days a week and Ramesh was happy, and remained with the company for 26 years.

When the company closed he joined Loomis Security, a firm specialising in replenishing cash machines. However, near tragedy almost struck, on a routine drop to a cash point in Enfield, Ramesh was the driver and his truck was ambushed by gunman. Unaware of what was exactly happening outside his truck, he heard a commotion and as he was about to leave his cabin the gunmen fired. Ramesh was shot in the stomach but fortunately survived. Since retiring he has submerged himself to be a committed volunteer for Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat.

As the community settled in Luton there was a real need to set up a Gurudwara for everyone to congregate and worship together. In the early days the community hired Beech Hill School or Maidenhead Junior School halls to worship. In 1983 the dream of having the communities own place of worship became reality as the community came together and purchased an old Methodist Church in Cardigan Street. Ramesh was amongst the founding members. "We went house to house and up and down the country to raise the funds and establish our Gurudwara .... It was a great sense of achievement." "Luton has given me so much... I came when I was a young boy and now I am a grandad.. who is still able to support my family members back in India."

1983 - 40TH ANNIVERSARY-2023

I'm delighted to congratulate Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat on celebrating their Gurudwara's 40 years in Luton anniversary. Their contribution to our Luton community embodies the values of Shri Guru Ravidass, particularly sharing and supporting others, none more so than when providing hot meals for those in need, particularly during the Covid pandemic. Working across communities and supporting interfaith work have all contributed to helping build strong community cohesion in our town. Thank you for your hard work and commitment to Luton and here's to many more years to come.

Gurdev Bungar

Before she came to England Gurdev was attending the Government women's college in Ludhiana, studying Economics, Political Science, English Literature and Language. Ludhiana is very industrial city and locally known as mini Manchester.

After marriage when Gurdev arrived at Heathrow, she and her husband Baldev Raj Bungar were interviewed by the immigration authority. It was a detailed interview. "You can speak better English than me," said the Interviewer. At the time Baldev Raj was living in Bedford with his Aunt, where they stayed for very short while, before coming to Luton. There staying with Baldev Raj's uncle at Mansfield Road.

In Gurdev's family, her eldest son is married to a Finnish woman, a senior nurse and Gurdev's younger son is married to an English woman. Gurdev sees no difference between people of different races. Gurdev's granddaughter, Anna loves visiting her Granny and always wants to be an Indian princess.

Gurdev was offered a place on a teaching course but at that point she fell pregnant and had to make a choice about her career. She chose family. Gurdev started working later in the Eastex clothing factory. When she fell pregnant to have her son, the staff gave her a huge send off. Most of the staff at that time were Italians and Gurdev was fluent in Italian too.

Once Gurdev's eldest son was born, she helped her community, taking people to the Social Security office or the Doctors. In 1970, the family moved to Stopsley. Baldev Raj had steady work at Vauxhalls as an Electrical Engineer and a workmate suggested that he apply for a council house. They got one almost straightaway in Wigmore Lane in Stopsley. It used to be closed with a gate, which meant that all the neighbours could celebrate festivals in the street.

As the children grew up, Gurdev felt it was time to look for a job and a role at the airport came up. Gurdev started working in retail eventually she was, promoted to Senior Sales, Shift Controller and Supervisor role. Gurdev only retired last year. She really enjoyed working there.

During her time at the airport Gurdev was recognised by her employer Alpha Retail, for her long term service (21years), in 2001 with a special ceremony at Hampton Court Palace.

In 1980, the family had moved to a larger home in Telscombe Way. In 1985, they had moved to Oving Close and they are still there today.

In the early years Gurdev volunteered within the Luton Sikh community, using her fluent English to help others with form filling and applications. Her husband who was fortunate to have a car, used it to offer lifts to appointments. It was a very close knit community. A number of events in the community galvanised them to decide that they needed somewhere of their own to worship and come together. It would take a lot of fundraising and hard work but the community was committed to this project.

Through collective efforts the community was able to purchase the Welsh Methodist Chapel. The Gudwara opened in 1983 and many local dignitaries present including Kelvin Hopkins were present.

She feels blessed that her marriage of more than 50 years to her husband Baldev Raj has brought her much and joy and happiness.

Piara Lal

Piara Lal was born in 1944, in Jadali, Punjab, India. Piara Lal lost his mum when he was only nine years old and he has few memories of her. He was brought up by his brothers' families. He was fortunate that his family were able to send him to school and then onto High School. At Ramgarhia college he studied English. After completing college, Piara Lal married Nashattar Kaur in 1961 but after only two months of marriage, Piara Lal came to the UK in January 1962, leaving his wife in India. Initially staying in Scotland, Piara Lal received news that there was work in Luton and he travelled south. His first job was in the Alliance Foundry, Icknield Road, Luton.

At the time Piara Lal lived with his nephew, Tarsem, in one room where they also cooked and slept. With the prospect of bringing Nashattar to the UK, Piara Lal needed somewhere more suitable to live. He struck lucky with a three bedroomed house on Old Bedford Road, one of Luton's most expensive areas, in 1965.

In 1967, his wife Nashattar was able to come to the UK. In 1969, the couple were blessed with a son, Nirmal Rai. A second son, Surinder was born in 1971, his daughter, Manjit was born in 1976 and a third son Amarjeet, in 1973. Tragically, Amarjeet aged only 19 was killed in a road accident on 5th November 1991. Both Bonfire Night and Diwali fell on the same night that year and the week should have ended on a celebration with Mr Lal's son Surinder's wedding. The family were so devastated by Amarjeet's death that the wedding was postponed for a year while they grieved. Over 30 years on Piara Lal still misses Amarjeet so much.

Piara Lal started working at SKF in 1966, buying a bigger 4 bedroom house in Elgar Path in 1972. It was newly built and had much more space. Around that time, Piara Lal bought a convenience store in Rockley Road. The shop was Nirmal Rai's first job. After two years, he asked for a bigger shop. There was a Coop in Abbotsford Road, so Piara Lal bought that. Surinder moved to Bedford and the family bought another shop there too. Eventually, Mr Lal closed the Luton shop and the whole family moved to Bedford.

On 18th October, 2008, Mr Lal had retired from SKF after forty two years of working there. He had a huge party at Chaul End Lane, surrounded by friends, family and work mates. The SKF Managing Director even came all the way from Sweden and presented Mr Lal with a beautiful silver plate to honour his service to the company.

In the early 1980's Luton's Ravidassia community had grown, and they wanted somewhere that they could all worship together. Piara Lal initially viewed the Chapel and saw its potential as a Gurdwara. Next, he and other community members had to fundraise to buy the Chapel and they travelled across the UK to ask for donations.

Eventually, the community proudly opened the Gurdwara with some distinguished guests in early 1983.

In 1992, the Gurdwara was arson attacked. It says something about the resilience of the community that they rebuilt the Gurdwara. Today it is a beautiful building; a place of peace and a hub of the community.

1983 - 40TH ANNIVERSARY-2023

As a Christian I am always inspired by the practice of Langar (or free kitchen). As part of a Near Neighbours programme to share food traditions a few years ago, a group from our church enjoyed joining Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat for a number of sessions to cook - then at some of their delicious recipes. We were delighted when these appeared in a recipe book for us to follow at home. Sharing hospitality without discrimination in this way is a powerful demonstration of concern for one's neighbour, whoever they may be and we are privileged to have this example here in Luton.

Pal Ram Salan

Pal was sixteen when he came to the UK from Jadali, Punjab, India in 1969. It was snowing heavily on the day he arrived. As he had turned sixteen, he was too old to go to school and literally, within a day of arriving, he had started work at a Foundry in Chaul End Lane. Pal's father was already working there. It was dangerous work and Pal was put to work hauling up buckets of molten metal by pulleys. This was made more dangerous as Pal did not understand English very well.

Home was two rooms which he shared with his dad and two brothers. It was so cold and the rental house had no fire. It was a common career path for the community to work at a foundry or factory, improve their English and then move on to the Vauxhall or SKF factories.

Pal moved to Leagrave Road in 1983 and he has been lucky to have good neighbours, with many members of his family living within walking distance. Pal really valued education for the next generation because his generation had so little themselves.

Pal spent forty years working at SKF and before that at Brown Green Foundry and George Kent Meters. He also worked at London Brick Company for a short while. Pal joked at that at the time, if you left a job that you could find another one on the same day.

Pal married in 1971 but the new couple had nowhere to live because his family home was too crowded. He struggled to save the deposit for his first house - a 2 bed house for £1500 in Salisbury Road! The mortgage was £20 per month and he was earning about £10 per week.

In 1974, when Pal was working at Kent Meters, he suffered an awful industrial accident which affected his sight. Pal had finished for the day and was just going to use the company shower when his foreman called him back to finish something. As Pal was working the hot metal blew up in his face. Pal's Shop Steward used his own car to take Pal to the Luton & Dunstable Hospital (L&D), where he stayed for two weeks. After two weeks at the L&D, Pal was due to be moved to a convalescent hospital, but he refused as he wanted to be at home, with his wife for her to look after him. Luckily the nurse, who was English, understood Hindi and agreed to this. Pal's wife nursed him brilliantly, administering eye drops three times a day.

Pal has recently had a stroke and has been under the care of the Luton & Dunstable Hospital. He recently saw a doctor who was of Pakistani heritage but was surprised when the doctor only spoke to him in English. Pal is making great progress although he acknowledges that the NHS care he is receiving is easier to access than the healthcare support he would have received in India.

Simar Kaur

Simar grew up as the eldest in a family of five brothers and one sister in the village of Jadali, Punjab, India. She came to the UK with her husband Sucha, in 1968 and lived with her in-laws.

Arriving on 28th December, Simar was greeted by the harshness of an English winter. But there was a warm welcome from her husband's family at their home at 65 Dane Road. Conditions were quite cramped as despite the house having three bedrooms, the couple were sharing with up to ten adults from her husband's family. Everyone just made do but the important thing was that the family was together. As her husband was the eldest of his family in the UK, they had their own room. There was little in the way of heating and no landline phone.

When they moved to Stanley Street Simar soon settled in keeping the house work up to date, looking after everyone and sewing from home for an income. Her first job was sewing coats for a person from her own community and then for an English man who used to drop a wide assortment of women's clothing to sew. Her husband's brother married and his wife came over from India. It was then that her husband and brother decided to jointly buy a home in Chester Close. Her sister-in-law, is a lovely friendly woman.

By now, Simar had a daughter, Lakshmi, and three sons, Nirmal, John and Parvinder who attended Beechwood School. As her sister in law also had a son, they were great company for one another and were brought up together. Simar's daughter has now been married thirty one years and has two children who have been to university.

Simar related to some sadder times. They couple bought a shop in Barton Hills but found it hard to make the shop pay for itself. Barton Hills was a new estate at the time, and this should have been a lucrative location. Recession hit during the 1980s and Simar's husband turned to drink. He was a man who believed the best in people but received bad advice. Simar tried to warn him but by then, they had lost everything. All of this impacted severely on Sucha's health and he died aged 42 on Christmas Eve 1992. This left Simar widowed with four children, the youngest aged only five. But she was a determined and resilient woman and returned to sewing to pay the bills.

Her older son bought a house, in Leagrave Road, and for a while everything seemed to settle. However, his wife forced him to sell the house which left Simar homeless and she had to rent. The rental property in Tenby Drive was filthy, damp and cold. Simar worked in a Nursing Home in Marsh Road as a Cook. It was very hard work but she carried on.

Simar is now happily settled in a lovely home on Ash Road. Despite all the sadness that has been around Simar, she still has a wonderful giving nature and will go out of her way to help people.

Surrinder Pall

Surrinder was born in Pandori Ghandar Singh, Punjab, India. Surrinder's father was a teacher, assisted by the voucher scheme and he was already in the UK. On arrival Instead of teaching, Surrinder's dad worked in a foundry. Surrinder's uncle was living in Luton and invited him to come and work in the Alliance Foundry. Not long after he made the move, they both went to work in SKF.

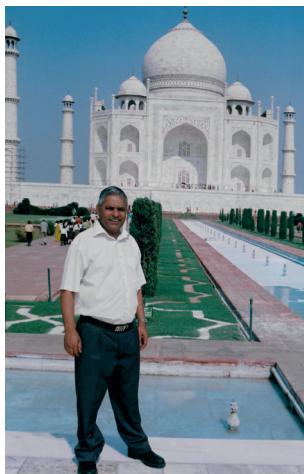

Surrinder was 11 when he came to the UK in 1960s, with his mum and three brothers, and he attended Beech Hill School until 1969. Starting school in the UK was a different experience for Surrinder. It was bonfire night on his first day and snowing. He had never seen snow before. The family were living at 33 Moor Street for about six months.

In 1969, Surrinder finished school and started work at Softalite on Biscot Road. Surrinder wasn't too keen on the job and on August 4th 1969 he started at Byways Ltd, a Jewish family business, where he stayed until 24th February 2017. This was a company that made hat linings. Over time, the company grew and moved to larger premises on Enterprise Way. This gave Surrinder a lot of job security.

During this time, Surrinder's dad had bought 19 Spencer Road, which was a three bed house, but in need of modernisation. Surrinder married in 1974 and moved out of Spencer Road in 1977. His son was born in 1975 and his daughter in 1976. Surrinder loved living with the family but it was too cramped and they needed more space. Surrinder applied for a council house and was given one in Wexham Close, Marsh Farm.

In 1995, the family moved to Austin Road. When they moved to a five bed house, it was because there were now four children and they needed more room. The house cost £83,000. Surrinder's family have all grown up and moved out now. Surrinder and his wife now live in a smaller house in Barton Hills.

Surrinder's wife was already in the UK when they married, in a Registry Office in Bedford. Surrinder first went back to India in 1986, It had changed a lot. The family house was still there, looked after by his cousins but his dad sold it and instead built a house in the city.

Sadly, Surrinder's dad who was a severe diabetic had an infected finger which turned gangrenous. Once back in the UK, he got the medical care he needed. Unfortunately, his father slipped into a coma and died on November 5th 2006. After that Surrinder has been going to India virtually every year.

Surrinder's mother passed away 2nd January 2020 and Surrinder and his brothers went back to India together to pray for her.

Of course, Surrinder's children's lives are rooted in the UK. Surrinder has six grandchildren. Surrinder retired on 24th February 2017 at 63, after 47 and a half years, taking voluntary redundancy. Life is more relaxed now.

Bikram Rai

Bikram was fifteen when he came to the UK, so he was fortunate to attend Stockwood school for about six months. There were few opportunities to go on to college and it was important to be earning. Bikram started as a Sheet Metal Worker at South Beds Sheet Metal company on Union Street in July 1967. He stayed with South Beds Sheet Metal for 5 years, moving to another factory and then on to SKF where he worked from 1984-1988.

Bikram said that earning money was vital, not just to support his family in Luton, but to send back to India to help improve the lives of families there. Sadly, Bikram's brother died in an accident back in India. Bikram had already lost his mum when he was seven and his elder brother had always been the one to look after him.

In July 1988 Bikram became a Financial Advisor for Gresham Insurance, based in Alma Street, Luton. He had no financial background but Gresham offered training. Bikram worked there for five years before the firm was sold to an American company, who closed all of the offices. Bikram struck out for himself and in 1994 opened Rai Insurance Services Ltd in Crystal House, where he has worked for twenty eight years, with a client base all over the UK.

In recent years Bikram has been promoting natural health remedies on the radio. Bikram gets a lot of calls from people wanting health advice who had given up with their GP. Bikram has done extensive research into natural remedies and gets huge satisfaction from helping people, despite not making any money from this. People have been so grateful.

Bikram moved to Leagrave Road and has been lucky to have good neighbours for over forty years, with a lot of family living on the same road. Originally, Bikram paid £8000 for his house in 1975. The house gave him everything he needed – three bedrooms, front and back gardens and an ideal location. Bikram says that over time, the commercial traffic on the road has increased which has brought a lot more pollution.

When he moved to Leagrave Road, he was one of the first Asian people to live there and now he has Pakistani neighbours on both sides. Everyone gets along well. Bikram's wife also sewed from home. She had no formal education so it was hard for them to find work outside the home, especially work that would fit around a young family. This meant that wives did not have the opportunity to improve their English. When Bikram's family were grown up, his wife started packing sandwiches at a factory in Alma Street and her English improved rapidly.

He has lived in the UK for over 55 years now and feels this is home.

Shri Guru Ravidass Ji was a prominent visionary of the Bhakti movement during a period of extreme caste oppression in India.

Through his life, he strove to remove the obstacles that were creating barriers to perceived lower castes. He strove to uplift them economically,

1983 - 40TH ANNIVERSARY-2023

Community Interest Luton was glad to work with Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat on several skills and enterprise enhancement projects that targeted and supported the most disadvantaged communities across our town.

Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat's warm and friendly approach and reach into some of Luton's deprived wards enabled our partnership project to be successful with many 100's of people benefitting as a result. We congratulate everyone at Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat on their milestone 40th anniversary.

I have been highly impressed with how faith communities across Bedfordshire rise to support the challenges that society is facing, be it the cost-of-living crisis, influx of refugees, support to minority communities or providing multiple provisions throughout the pandemic. The Shri Guru Ravidass Sangat is a shining example of this.

It has adopted its approach to provide a range of support programmes reaching out, assisting and supporting the most vulnerable and disadvantaged in society. From its learning programmes, social gatherings and weekly lunch club – it has expanded its offer to deliver much needed services. None more so than when providing over 21000 hot meals for those in need during Covid. May your good work continue and in doing so inspire others to follow too.
