Arm Chair 02 | MOR033

This chair follows the principle of its organic structure. The central body weight is dynamically distributed across its thin flexible legs.

Aranha armchair by Marco Sousa Santos is with a round seat in rattan, synthetic weave or leather. using a mix of digital tooling with traditional wood joinery. Inspired from Aranha, the new aesthetic combines modern and retro elements, making it suitable for various decor styles, featuring a wooden frame with a light brown stain, which contrasts nicely with the vibrant red seat

Modern Balance | MOR033

The chair's tectonic form is defined by its rectilinear geometry and orthogonal lines, yielding a paradigmatic example of contemporary design. The black metal frame, with its slender profiles and sharp intersections, establishes a visual hierarchy that prioritizes clarity and precision.

The upholstered seating area, clad in a soft gray fabric, introduces a tactile counterpoint to the frame's hardness, while the armrests' planar surfaces provide a functional datum that underscores the chair's ergonomic considerations.

The overall composition exhibits a nuanced balance of materiality and void, as the open framework allows the chair to inhabit space with a sense of airiness and visual levity.

This symbiosis of form, material, and function coalesces to create a design that is at once aesthetically refined, comfortable, and pragmatically suited to modern interior environments.

Japandi Black | MOR033

This Japandi-inspired chair features a slender, streamlined frame with subtly outward-angled legs, crafted from black-stained ashwood.

The backrest, woven from rattan, introduces a light and airy element, adding visual interest to the overall design. The solid, rounded seat is designed for optimal comfort, with smooth curves that harmonize with the chair's sleek profile.

The dark finish of the ashwood frame provides a striking contrast to the natural tones of the rattan backrest, creating a visually appealing dichotomy.

The chair's versatile design makes it an ideal addition to various spaces, from dining areas to living rooms, where its unique blend of modernity and organic charm can be fully appreciated.

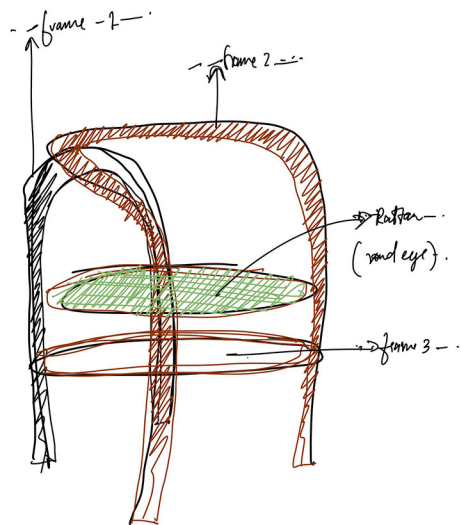

Tangled Chair | MOR033

The ashwood frame, stained in a rich palette of black, charcoal, and walnut, assumes a sleek and modern silhouette, punctuated by rounded armrests and a woven cane seat.

This masterful blend of materials and forms imbues the chair with a timeless essence, rendering it versatile enough to complement a wide range of interior decor styles.

The chair's design heritage is rooted in the 1960s, when TON collaborated with visionary architects, including Antonin Suman, to pioneer innovative designs leveraging bentwood technology.

The resultant armchair, featuring a bentwood frame finished in black lacquer with intricate engraved rings, exemplifies a harmonious fusion of traditional craftsmanship and modernist sensibilities.

The Swivel Chair | MOR033

This chair embodies a sleek, modern aesthetic, distinguished by its distinctive silhouette and ergonomic form. Drawing inspiration from the iconic Goya Armchair, the Studyo 4 Estofados model boasts a swivel base and luxurious leather upholstery.

The chair's slender, toothpick-like legs provide a sense of visual lightness, while the high-density foam-filled seat and backrest ensure optimal comfort. The linen fabric covering adds a touch of warmth and texture, inviting users to sit and relax.

The chair's curved profile cradles the body, making it an ideal choice for creating inviting, functional spaces that blend seamlessly with diverse decorative styles.

With its harmonious balance of form and function, this chair is poised to become a versatile, design-forward addition to any room. Its understated elegance and comfort make it perfect for everyday use.
