

Victòria Vilalta releases an indie lightly sorrowful ballad entitled “Out loud thoughts”

Song out on Friday
the 1st of August!

Release day concert
at Theatreship
in London

Presentation
band concert
on the 13th of August
at Troubadour
in London

4th single from her upcoming debut LP
“Out Loud Thoughts”

LISTEN HERE

“Out loud thoughts” is an indie lightly sorrowful ballad about things we can’t control. It refers to life problems or difficult situations and how we are not the solo authors of their outcome. Even if it presents a sad reality, it encourages us to move on once we have tried everything and not get stuck in reliving the harm that other people inflicted on us. The production entails a piano, guitar and bass which create a laid back but sensitive ambience.

This track has Victòria Vilalta's sonic identity, being self-written and self-produced with acoustic roots but also some experimentation. Created in London, it entails professional studio recordings and collaborations with other musicians.

“Out loud thoughts is about saying out loud those things that we have in our heads. Sometimes when we let them out we feel better and even find some answers. This song captures that.”

Victoria Vilalta