

Call for artists, intellectuals, independent thinkers, and rebel minds

Zattere is a space open to experimentation, reflection, and creation. Our goal is to build a collective collection that speaks to alternative culture, through a critical and forward-thinking perspective, to imagine a world far from consumerist logic. To do this, we are looking for fellow travellers willing to question everything — starting from the cultural products that surround us.

What we are looking for:

- Alternative culture: Share your experience with films, books, music, performances, etc.
- Recommendations for reading/viewing/listening: Help us build a common library of works that inspire, provoke, and transform.
- Art and activism: Contribute with texts, illustrations, photographs, or any creative expression that challenges cultural and social norms.

Who we are looking for:

Curious people who are capable of questioning dominant narratives.

We're not seeking professionals or experts: we're interested in anyone with something to say, willing to express it authentically. Whether you write, draw, photograph, or invent stories, your vision matters — especially if it stems from a commitment to free, transfeminist, decolonial, and, perhaps, a little insolent culture.

How to participate:

- Send your contribution (texts, images, or other works), along with the completed release form, to zattere.org@gmail.com by 01/03/2025, specifying the title of the CALL you're responding to in the subject line.
- Feel free to interpret the theme however you like: we have no rigid rules or fixed expectations.

Each submission will be carefully reviewed and discussed to become part of our next collective project — a raft of ideas, stories, and provocations to navigate stagnant or stormy waters.

If you believe ideas need spaces to float — and sometimes even to drift — we invite you to join us.

Note: If you have a contribution that doesn't fit the themes of the currently open CALLs, send it to us anyway! Your work could inspire the theme for a future CALL, or we may gather all the "off-topic" contributions into a new publication. Please specify "Off-topic Contribution" in the email subject line.
