What is PLA?

Poly-Lactic Acid (PLA), is a versatile material that can be used to make a wide range of products. It is one of the most commonly used BioPlastics and is derived from renewable biomass, such as corn starch and sugar cane.

Benefits of PLA:

- Renewable Biomass: PLA is derived from renewable biomass, specifically corn starch and sugar cane, making it a sustainable choice for many applications.
- Biodegradable and Compostable: PLA is biodegradable and industrially compostable, reducing waste and helping to mitigate environmental impact.
- High Strength: PLA is strong and durable, offering excellent resistance to wear and tear, making it ideal for use in various applications like packaging, food storage, and more.

Cautions:

- Avoid Aggressive Solvents: PLA is not compatible with most solvents, including Acetone and those found in household cleaners and paints. To clean, wipe with a damp cloth, if splashed with a solvent use gloves and dab dry with a clean dry wipe.
- Avoid High Temperature: PLA melts between 190C and 210C but is best stored at lower temperatures, ideally below 50C (104F) as above this temperature can soften and warp. Avoid storing PLA near heat sources, such as radiators or heaters.

Our PLA solutions are designed to be both sustainable and effective. By choosing PLA, you can enjoy the benefits of a biodegradable and compostable material without compromising on strength or durability. Our Storage Solutions are ready to be shipped, ready to be used, and ready to be enjoyed.

To Summarise, our products resist IPA and hand sanitiser (or equivalent used to remove the inhibition layer) but not extended exposure. Our products aren't Acetone safe. In case of a spill or splash, dab dry with a lint free wipe as soon as possible.

Custom is the New Standard

Simple Addition for Nail Technician is about the simple things that matter.

Our storage solutions are designed to provide simple solutions for the tools that make your art a reality.

These products have been designed with feedback from professional and capable nail technicians. They add to your process making treatment easier and smoother for you and your client.

Our most commonly requested customisation relates to colour; let us match the aesthetic of your workspace.

The main benefit of additive manufacturing is the ability to rapidly prototype your perfect fit. But if you're looking for something that's just the job, have a look through the following pages and let us know what you would like.
