In a beautiful town, there lived three young schoolgirls - Mia, Ellie, and Grace.

Each girl had something they cherished doing: Mia adored drawing rainbows, Ellie found joy in singing, and Grace simply loved spending time with her friends.

One day at school, while Mia was happily drawing her favorite rainbow, another kid started laughing at her artwork. He teased, "Don't you even know how to color a real rainbow?"

Ellie and Grace witnessed what happened to Mia. Moments later, the teacher turned to Ellie and said, "I know you sing beautifully. Could you sing a song for us?" But after seeing the kids teasing Mia, Ellie felt nervous. Her voice cracked as she sang, and the children burst out laughing at her.
