The show

Anna's Italian Jazz Affair combines her Italian musical heritage with her love of the blues and the Great American songbook.

Trained in theatre, Anna inhabits the character of every song she sings.

With songs like Tu Vuo' Fa' l'Americano evoking 50s Italy, Fool That I Am by Etta James, and Cole Porter's So in Love, she shares stories of love, loss, and everything in between — always with charisma, emotion, and a glowing intensity.

Born near Milan living in Edinburgh, Anna's early music training was on classical piano. This gave her the solid musical foundation on which to build her singing voice.

A lifelong choir singer, she discovered jazz in Edinburgh through lindy hop dancing. One night, when a singer couldn't reach the high notes of La Vie en Rose, Anna jumped in — and stole the spotlight.

She completed a master's degree in Italy before moving to Edinburgh in 2015 to study Acting for Stage and Screen. Following graduation, she began attending jam sessions around the city, gaining a reputation on the scene.

Anna's first solo show, Late Bloomers' tales, which premiered in the Fringe in 2019, has been performed over 100 times, not just in Edinburgh, but in Milan too.

Anna is known for her rich vocal tone and magnetic stage presence. In collaboration with the refined musical sensibility of her pianist David Patrick, Anna's performances - whether a melancholy ballad or a joyful celebration of life - are heartfelt, stylish and impossible to forget.
