I. How does Lifewave Technology work?

LifeWave lighttherapy technology was invented by American scientist David Schmidt while working on research projects for the United States Army. His goal was to develop a new natural method that would increase energy and reduce pain without the use of chemicals, and thus in a completely safe way – and that’s how Energy Enhancer patches were created.

LifeWave bioelectrodes are a modern form of phototherapy. They contain organic crystals that, when exposed to body heat, reflect small amounts of light in the infrared and visible light bands.

The bioelectrodes, placed on the body, stimulate nerves and acupuncture points on the skin’s surface, providing health benefits unattainable with any other product currently available on the market.

FTIR (Fourier Transform Infrared Spectroscopy) confirms this phenomenon. The bioelectrodes contain a patented blend of amino acids, water, stabilized oxygen, and natural organic compounds.

However, none of the substances contained in the bioelectrodes penetrate the body.

Lifewave technology is designed to be very simple to use. It uses non-transdermal patches worn on the skin and causes no side effects. Nothing enters the body – no chemical or natural substance, no medication, pill, or injection. The uniqueness of this technology is confirmed by international patents. The effects are numerous and much needed in modern societies, as well as in animals. From pain reduction, improved sleep, and increased energy to faster wound healing and improved health and well-being.

II. What is phototherapy?

Often called light therapy or heliotherapy

The science of phototherapy, which has been around for about 100 years, uses light to improve the health of the body. As far back as two thousand years ago, the ancient Greeks had a center for studying the effects of different colored lights on the body. Even the ancient Egyptians, who promoted health by focusing sunlight through colored glass on certain areas of the body, understood this concept.

Phototherapy is a treatment that uses specific wavelengths of light to improve or treat certain medical or skin conditions. The light triggers biological reactions in the body or skin. 🌞

Common types of phototherapy:

1. UV phototherapy (ultraviolet light)

Used by dermatologists to treat skin diseases such as:

- Psoriasis
- Eczema
- Vitiligo

Types include:

- UVB therapy
- PUVA therapy (psoralen + UVA light)

These slow excessive skin cell growth and reduce inflammation.

2. LED / red-light therapy

Often used in wellness clinics and spas. It uses red or near-infrared light to:

- support skin healing
- reduce inflammation
- stimulate collagen
- help with muscle recovery

Examples include devices like LifeWave X39 patch, which claims to stimulate light signals in the body (photobiomodulation).

3. Blue-light phototherapy

Commonly used for:

- acne treatment
- killing bacteria that cause breakouts.

4. Neonatal phototherapy

Hospitals use blue light to treat newborn babies with Neonatal jaundice by helping the body break down excess bilirubin.

Simple explanation:

Phototherapy = healing with light.

Different colors and wavelengths of light cause different biological effects in the body.

- ✓ Skin repair
- ✓ Anti-inflammatory effects
- ✓ Improved cellular energy

III. Lifewave – phototherapy and photobiomodulation

LifeWave X39 patch and other LifeWave patches use a type of light therapy commonly described as phototherapy / photobiomodulation using infrared light.

1. Infrared phototherapy (main mechanism)

According to the manufacturer, the patches work with infrared light produced naturally by your body as heat. The patch is designed to capture and reflect certain wavelengths of that infrared light back into the skin.

- Your body emits infrared radiation (body heat).
- The patch contains materials (crystal structures) that reflect specific wavelengths of that light.
- The reflected light stimulates nerves or points on the skin, which may trigger biological responses.

2. Photobiomodulation

The company often describes the mechanism as photobiomodulation, meaning low-level light influencing cellular activity.

This type of light therapy is also used in:

- red-light therapy devices
- low-level laser therapy
- some infrared therapy devices

These light wavelengths can influence cell signaling and inflammation processes.

3. Key difference from typical light therapy devices

Most light therapy uses external light sources, such as:

- lamps
- LEDs
- lasers

LifeWave patches are different because they do not emit light themselves.

Instead they reflect the body's own infrared light back into the skin.

Simple explanation:

LifeWave patches = infrared phototherapy + photobiomodulation using reflected body heat/light.

- No drugs
- No electricity
- Uses the body's own infrared energy

Benefits:

- Anti-aging - younger and healthier look
- Body / organs regeneration
- Higher performance, energy and stamina
- Lower cortisol and stress
- Improved sleep
- Improved blood pressure
- Healthier body
- More energy through the day and better sleep at night

Introducing the LifeWave X39™ patch.

A historic breakthrough in affordable stem cell activation technology.

The first product designed to activate your body's own stem cells ~ organs healing and regeneration.

Experience a new level of vitality with improved energy and sleep, reduced pain, reduced lines and wrinkles, and faster wound healing—these are just some of the benefits. As we age, our stem cells lose their healing properties. Imagine if we could increase the number of peptides that can activate our stem cells and restore their youth and health. This healing is completely non-invasive, safe, and affordable. Clinical studies confirm that LifeWave X39™ improves overall health and helps you regain your former vitality. Developed over the past 30 years, LifeWave X39® patches deliver powerful health benefits supported by clinical studies.

What the company says about GHK-Cu:

LifeWave states that the X39 patch is designed to stimulate the body to produce more of a peptide called GHK Cu peptide.

GHK-Cu is a naturally occurring peptide in the human body discovered by Loren Pickartin the 1970s.

Scientific research has associated this peptide with:

- tissue repair
- skin regeneration
- anti-inflammatory effects
- activation of certain repair genes

Levels of GHK-Cu decline with age, which is why it is often studied in longevity and regenerative research.

What the patch claims to do:

The manufacturer states that the patch may:

- stimulate the body through phototherapy signals
- increase GHK-Cu expression
- support the body's natural repair processes

It is often described as helping the body activate its own regenerative pathways.

Why people mention “stem cells”?:

The “stem cell” phrase comes from research suggesting GHK-Cu may influence signaling involved in stem cell activity.

This relates to Stem cells, which are cells capable of developing into other cell types and helping repair tissue.

However, the important distinction:

- ✗ The patch does NOT contain stem cells
- ✗ It does NOT inject or add stem cells

The claim is that it supports signaling pathways related to the body’s own repair processes.

“The X39 patch uses phototherapy to reflect the body’s infrared light back into the skin. This signal may help the body increase a naturally occurring peptide called GHK-Cu, which is associated with tissue repair and healthy aging.”

Why many people feel benefits:

Users commonly report improvements related to:

- recovery

- sleep
- skin appearance
- inflammation
- energy

But these experiences are personal reports, not guaranteed medical outcomes.

- X39® can be used more generally and if someone had to choose 1 patch, X39® is recommended to be that one patch.

Energy Enhancer patches reflect specific wavelengths of light, which stimulate specific points on the skin that stimulate the body's cellular energy production (beta-oxidation). Beta-oxidation produces more than twice the amount of energy from burning carbohydrates, making it the most effective and natural method for increasing overall energy levels. Studies show that Energy Enhancer patches promote better exercise and post-workout relaxation. They also increase flexibility, strength, and endurance in healthy individuals when worn for an hour.

Glutathione is a small protein produced in the body and essential for the body. It performs three crucial functions: as an antioxidant, an immune stimulant, and a detoxifier.

Without glutathione, cells would be subject to constant oxidation and destruction, the body would exhibit poor resistance to bacterial and viral infections and the development of cancer cells, and the liver would be damaged by the toxins accumulating within it.

Patch Placement

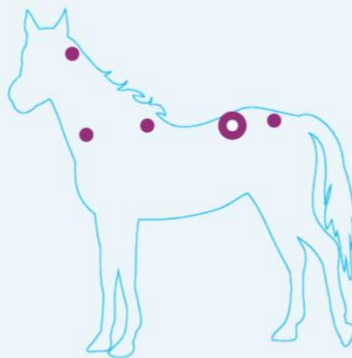

INSTRUCTIONS

Locate the area on your horse that you wish to patch, where they appear to be having the most pain.

Remove a plastic bead from the bag. Then, remove the adhesive backing of a TAN patch and place the plastic bead in the center of the adhesive side of the TAN patch.

Place the TAN patch with bead on the location you desire on the LEFT side of the horse. Then, press down firmly on the patch to ensure it is secure to the horse.

Repeat steps 2-3 with the WHITE patch, placing the patch and bead on the RIGHT side of the horse.

- Benefits: reduction of stress, toxins, heavy metals and inflammation, reduced fatigue, more energy, sharper mental focus, better sleep.
- Ideal for people that need detox, or have any type of inflammation

The Principle Behind Patch Combinations:

- Each patch works by stimulating specific acupuncture points through phototherapy.
- Combining patches allows you to address multiple needs simultaneously — e.g., energy, pain relief, sleep, or stress.
- The body naturally responds to multiple points being stimulated, amplifying benefits.
- Patches are non-invasive and drug-free, so using more than one is generally safe.

Tips for Using Patch Combinations:

- Apply on clean, dry skin at recommended acupuncture points.
- Limit overlapping patches in the same area; each should have its own target location.
- Start slowly with one or two combinations to see how your body responds.
- Consistency matters: benefits build over time with repeated use.
- Track your results — energy, sleep quality, pain levels — to adjust your combination.

VII. Questions and answers

Are Lifewave patches safe for everyone and are there any contraindications or side effects to using them?

The manufacturer of LifeWave patches declares that they are safe and formulated to support the body's natural processes without the use of synthetic substances.

However, as with any product that affects bodily functions, there may be contraindications, especially for people with certain medical conditions or those taking certain medications.

If you have any concerns about your health, allergies, or medications, I strongly recommend consulting with a doctor or other qualified health professional before using LifeWave patches. This is the best way to ensure that the product is suitable for your health and safety.

I always recommend thoroughly researching any wellness product before using it. The safety and effectiveness of any product, including LifeWave patches, may vary depending on the user's individual health conditions.

For example if someone had heart attack and has high blood pressure using Energy Enhancer and X49 may not be recommended as it increases energy flow through the body – however X39 patch that improves your own stem cells could be very beneficial helping regulate heart and blood pressure.

That's why I recommend to schedule Lifewave patches Consultation with me and we can discuss your health needs and concerns.

How fast can I feel / see results?

The time it takes to notice results is also highly individual. Some users report improvement after the first use, while others may notice results after a few days, weeks or months of regular use (depends on the patch type and condition treated). It is recommended to use the patches according to the instructions and observe your body's reactions.

The benefits of these patches may vary from person to person and depend in part on individual health status and goals. Generally, LifeWave patches are designed to support the body's natural processes by stimulating acupuncture points with light, which can help improve overall well-being, increase energy levels, support recovery, and relieve pain.

However, it is important to remember that LifeWave patches are not medicine and should not be used as a substitute for professional medical advice. If you have any health concerns, I recommend consulting a doctor before using this product.

How long does one patch remain effective and how often should I replace it?

According to the instructions included with the package, one patch can be left on for 12 hours and then removed for another 12 hours. After the break, apply another patch.

How can I choose the right Lifewave patch for my individual needs and health concerns?

Thank you for your interest in LifeWave patches. I understand that you want to choose the right product for your individual needs and health concerns. To do this, it's best to familiarize yourself with the available patch types and their intended uses. You'll find detailed information about each patch type, along with recommendations for their use, on the manufacturer's website and in this E-book.

Furthermore, I recommend consulting with a qualified specialist or doctor who is familiar with your health history and can help you choose the most appropriate solution. Every body is different, and tailoring your therapy to your individual needs is crucial to achieving the best results.

If you have additional questions or require more personalized advice, I encourage you to contact me so I can provide more detailed information and help you make the right decision.

Can it increase cancer?

This is the most common concern.

The patch does not contain stem cells and it does not add anything to the body. It simply reflects your own body's infrared light back into the skin to stimulate natural signaling pathways. It's designed to support normal repair processes, not to stimulate abnormal cell growth. However, like with any wellness product, anyone with a serious medical condition should consult their physician.
