The Centrifugal Defense Mechanism

The Inside-Out Action

Internal Threat

Ebullition

Eruption

Sulphur's primary action is centrifugal: it violently pushes disease from the internal organs outward to the skin, sacrificing the exterior to protect the vital interior.

The Human Heat Engine

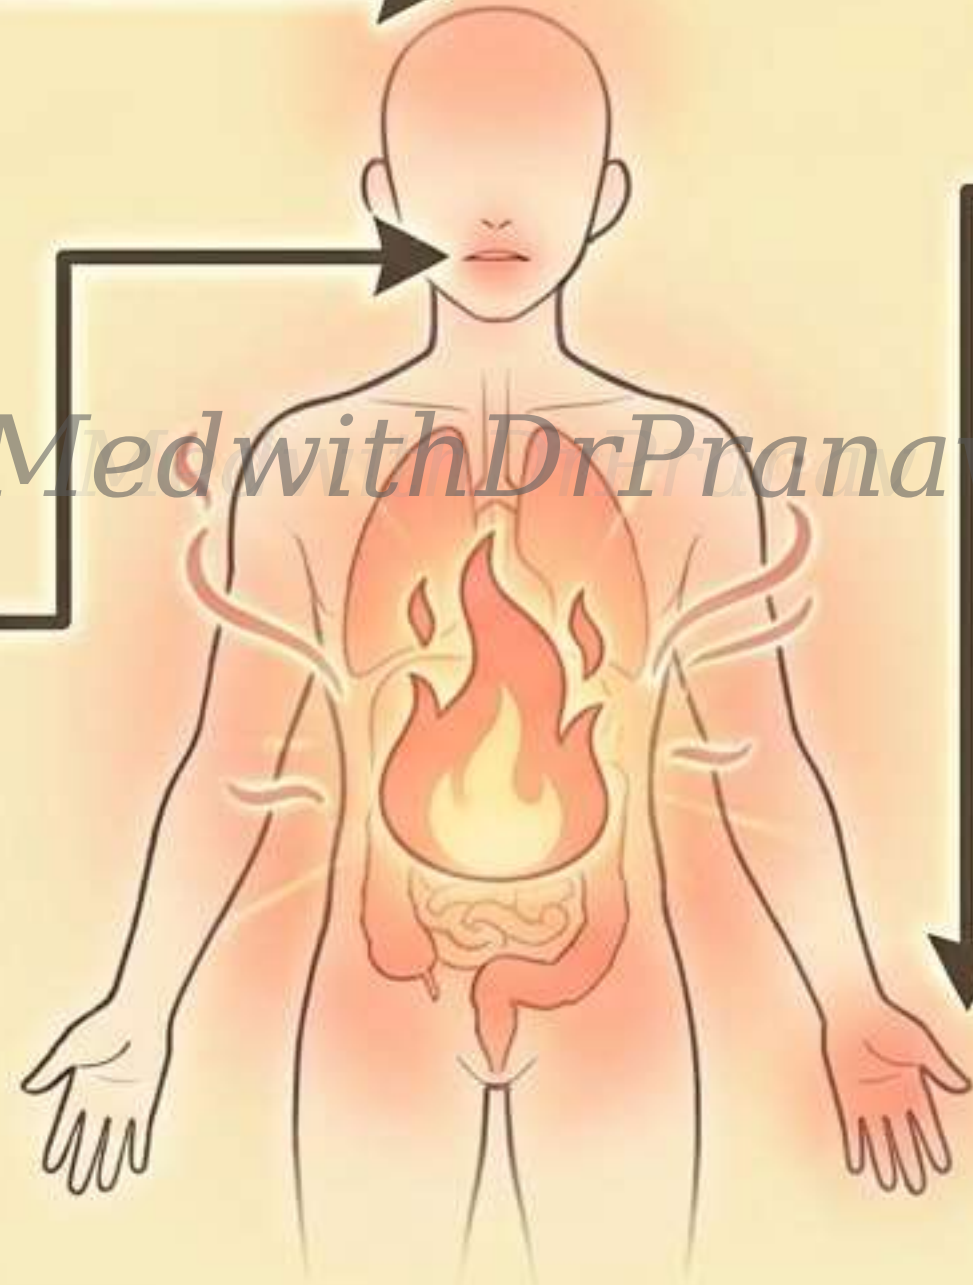

The Crown

Constant heat on top of the head.

The Vents

Red, burning orifices (lips, ears, nose, eyelids, anus).

MedwithDrPranav

The Soles

When to Summon Sulphur

The Lingering Foe

For lingering infections (like a stubborn flu) that won't resolve on their own.

The Stalled Recovery

When carefully selected remedies fail to act, Sulphur arouses the body's reactionary powers.

The Relapse

For complaints that constantly return and slow convalescence after illness.

The Surface Eruption

Acute uses: abscesses, eczema, conjunctivitis, and hemorrhoids.
