DIY Print & Cut Guide (Fronts & Backs)

What You'll Need

- Printer (inkjet or laser)
- Heavy cardstock: 100 lb cover (≈270 gsm) feels solid and professional; 80–100 lb cover (≈216–270 gsm) also works beautifully.
→ A thicker paper helps your cards shuffle smoothly, resist bending, and feel closer to a real deck.
- Paper trimmer or craft knife + metal ruler + cutting mat.
- OR sharp long-blade scissors (8"+) if you prefer scissors.
- Laminating sheets or pouches (3 mil).
→ Lamination seals the ink so it won't rub off on your hands, keeps colors vibrant, and protects the edges from showing white paper if scratched.
- Optional: 1/8" corner-rounder for smooth rounded edges.
- Files included: FRONT PDF and BACK PDF (card backs).

Quick Start (do this → tell me what you see → next)

1. Open the FRONT PDF (and the BACK PDF if you'll print backs).
2. Scale = 100% / Actual Size.
→ You should see a normal page preview with borders; do not use "Fit to page."
3. Paper size = US Letter (8.5" × 11").
→ The preview should show 0.5" margins on all sides.
4. Quality = High/Best; turn OFF Economy/Grayscale.
→ Colors should look rich in the preview.
5. If your printer supports duplex: turn Duplex ON → Flip on short edge.
→ The dialog shows 2-sided printing.
6. Print ONE test sheet (front + back if duplex).
→ Hold it to the light: fronts and backs should line up.
→ If not aligned, try Flip on long edge or rotate the BACK PDF 180°.
7. When the test looks good, print the full set.
8. No duplex? See "Manual back printing (no duplex)" below.

How the Sheet is Laid Out

- Each sheet = 4 × 3 grid → 12 cards.
- Card size = 1.75" × 2.5".
- Printable area = 7.5" × 10" (because of 0.5" margins).
- 1/8" (0.125") gutter between cards → this is your safe cutting channel.

Lamination & Finishing Touches

After cutting, it's highly recommended to laminate each card — this is what gives them a real-deck feel.

It keeps your artwork vibrant, prevents fingerprints, and protects the edges from wear over time.

How to laminate:

- Use 3 mil laminating pouches for flexibility when shuffling.
- You can laminate before or after cutting — many prefer to laminate the full sheet first, then trim and re-round corners.
- Leave a tiny sealed edge (about 1–2 mm) around each card so the pouch stays closed.
- If you're using self-adhesive laminating sheets, press firmly along the edges to make sure they're sealed.
- Laminated cards feel best on 80–100 lb cardstock — strong but not too stiff.

Troubleshooting Tips

- Backs don't line up? Try changing "Flip on short edge" to "Flip on long edge," or rotate the BACK PDF 180°.
- Colors look dull? Set your printer to "High" or "Best" quality and make sure Economy or Grayscale mode is off.
- Rough edges? A fresh blade, rotary trimmer, or sharper scissors can make a huge difference.
- Cards curling slightly after lamination? Let them cool flat under a book for a few minutes — they'll settle perfectly.

Care & Sacred Use

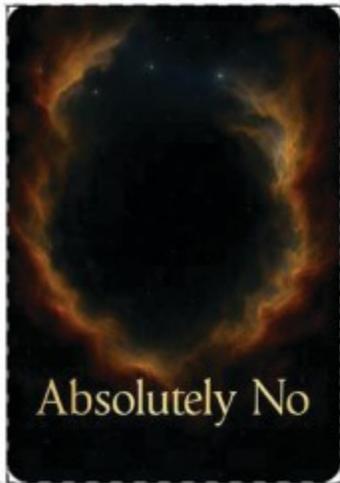

Your cards carry energy — treat them kindly and they'll speak clearly.

Store them in a small pouch, drawstring bag, or decorative box.

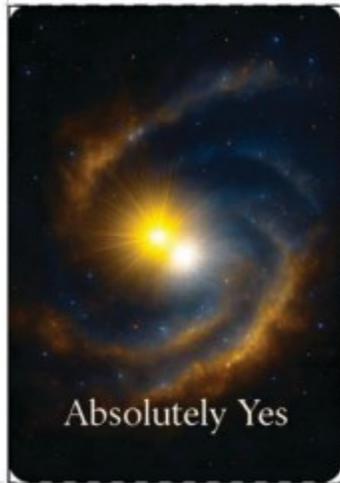

Before your first reading, hold the deck to your heart and say:

"May these cards speak with truth, clarity, and compassion for the highest good."

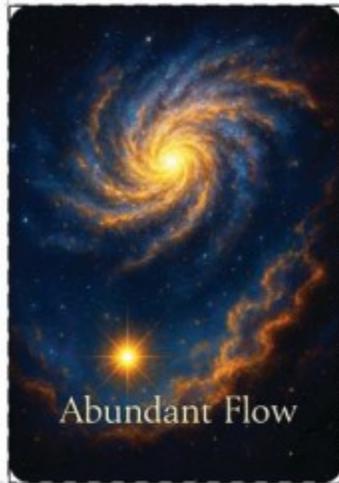

To refresh their energy between uses, gently tap the deck, fan it out under moonlight, or rest it on a piece of selenite or clear quartz.
